NEW COAL PACT REACHED; MINES SEIZED BY F.D.R.

$1.50 a Day Pay Hike Agreed Upon

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—A new contract for soft coal miners embodying an average $1.50 a day pay raise was agreed on tonight, a few hours after the government took control of 235 idle mines.

The agreement, reached by operators and President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, will go before a full negotiating committee for ratification tomorrow.

The government stepped in to operate the mines after a wave of wildcat work interruptions that had partially closed plants turning out war vital steel.

Await Official Approval

Seizure of the mines despite the imminence of an agreement was probably motivated by the fear that many miners would remain idle even after an agreement was reached. Many miners have been refusing to work without a contract and two weeks or more may elapse before a contract can be signed, due to the need of securing approval of wage provisions from the war labor board and Economic Stabilization Director Davis. There are 3,478 soft coal mines in the country.

Within an hour after President Roosevelt ordered Interior Secretary Ickes to take over the mines, Ickes assumed control and the government thus was back in the coal business for the fourth time since the country declared war.

Details of the new contract were not officially disclosed but it was reported miners now receiving $8.50 a day basic wage will receive $10.

This meant the operators had acceded to Lewis' demands for a return to the 7-hour day, with time and a half for all time spent beyond that under ground, except for a 15 minute lunch period.

Swap for Royalty Demand

This was the proposal of Labor Secretary Perkins on the main wage demand of the miners. It was frankly regarded as a swap for Lewis' 10 cent a ton royalty demand.

A $75 vacation payment, as a compromise for Lewis' demand of $100 and the old payment of $50, was said to have been accepted.

Differentials of 4 cents an hour and 6 cents an hour for the second and third shifts, respectively, were also reported granted.

On the controversial foreman's issue the reported agreement allowed for exemption from united mine workers membership of a superintendent, a mine foreman, and a fire boss. All but three supervisory employes at each mine thus would be brought into direct membership in the United Mine Workers.

Charge Army High Jinks in Ward Stores

Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday charged army officers at various of its seized plants with offensive conduct toward women employees and customers.

In a letter to Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, in general charge of the seized properties, the company demanded that steps be taken to protect the morale of the company's employes, the service to its customers, and the company's reputation during army operation of the plants.

The instances of misconduct cited, all supported by affidavits, include drunkenness on the part of army officers in the stores, entertainment by the officers of women friends in the seized stores after hours and improper advances to women employees.

Conduct of Major Related

One incident cited occurred at the Jamaica [N. Y.] store, and involved a major, who, "with a strong odor of liquor on his breath, insulted a young lady who was trying on some clothes with the help of a saleslady. The major pawed over the customer under pretense of seeing if the fit were proper and the fabric suitable."

Mentioning that the army has placed its officers in charge of Ward properties valued at more than 30 million dollars, the letter asserts:

"These properties and values have been placed in the hands of army officers who not only are without experience in Ward's business, but also lack the character which is necessary to the execution of their responsibilities."

Store Doors Left Open

It cited the following instances of misconduct at the company's store in San Rafael, Cal., which it said the army has illegally seized:

1. The doors to the store were left unlocked after business hours on Jan. 10, Jan. 17, and March 19, 1945.

2. On Friday, March 9, the army's night occupation officer was intoxicated when he reported for duty. At 9:10 p. m., which was after business hours, this officer admitted a girl, not an employee, in civilian clothing.

3. On March 10 at 5:45 p. m. an army captain who was intoxicated reported for duty and was left in charge of the property overnight. On March 13, this same officer was intoxicated in the store at 6:15 p. m. and two empty beer bottles were on the shelf in his office.

"No Smoking" Rule Ignored

4. During the first week in January, 1945, an army captain asked a Ward employe if it was all right to bring some girls after business hours, and if he knew of any girls who would come there.

5. Army officers regularly smoke while walking thru the store, in violation of the store's established regulations. They fail to observe "no smoking" signs where large quantities of merchandise are warehoused.

6. The army's finance officer persistently engaged in unbecoming conduct and interfered with the work. An affidavit from one of the employes stated: "The finance officer spends about four hours each day in the cashier's department, sitting on the desk and joking with the cashier. Of late, due to these

THE JOB OF BREAKING THE STRANGLE HOLD AFTER RESCUE

GLORIA DICKSON, 27, FILM ACTRESS, DIES IN A FIRE AT HOME

Hollywood, Cal., April 10—Film Actress Gloria Dickson, 27, suffocated today in a fire that gutted her two story home. The blonde actress' body was found face down on the floor of the bathroom upstairs.

Firemen said the flames apparently broke out in a first floor rumpus room. Overstuffed furniture in the room was badly charred. They theorized that Miss Dickson was taking a nap in the upstairs bedroom and was driven into the bathroom by flames.

William Fitzgerald, ex-marine and former middleweight boxer, to whom Miss Dickson was married a year ago, arrived at the house before the actress' body was found.

Miss Dickson, born Thais Dickerson at Pocatello, Idaho, entered theater work thru the federal theater project productions. As a result of her performances, she was given a screen test and subsequently signed for the lead in "They Don't Forget."

Miss Dickson's first husband was Perc Westmore, film makeup artist, whom she married on June 20, 1938, and divorced on June 21, 1941. Her second marriage was to Ralph Murphy, Hollywood director, on Oct. 10, 1941. This ended in divorce in April, 1944.

Army to Send All Able Men Overseas

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—Every able-bodied soldier in the United States who has not seen service overseas is scheduled to go abroad just as fast as he can be replaced by a returning veteran. War Secretary Stimson announced the plan in a communication made public today by Rep. Mahon [D., Tex.], member of the house appropriations committee.

Plea for Combat Men

Prompted by a suggestion by Mahon that "the bottom of the barrel should be scraped" of soldiers still in this country before switching combat units from the European theater to the Pacific war fronts, Stimson wrote:

"According to February figures, there were approximately 8,050,000 men in the army, 5,150,000 of whom were overseas.

"Of the 2,900,000 on duty in the United States, almost half [roughly 1,400,000] have already been earmarked for overseas duty and are being trained accordingly either in tactical units or as individual replacements and students in replacement training centers, training regiments and schools; 180,000 others were in army hospitals."

1,385,000 Others in Service

The war department chief said the remainder, some 1,365,000, are in essential administrative and service jobs, concerned with overseas supply, plane maintenance, cargo loading, communications or transportation. He added:

"Every one of these soldiers, except those who have already seen overseas service or who are physically disqualified, is earmarked for foreign service as soon as he can be replaced by an overseas returnee or a limited service man."

Chicago G.I.s Don't Fall for Paris Wooing

BY ANNE BRUYERE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]
(Pictures on page 8)

PARIS, April 10—G. I.s may be babes in handling love affairs, but they are expert enough when it comes to being serious about matrimony. So said today Dr. Bruce Hopper, former Harvard professor and author, who meets hundreds of Yanks daily as deputy director of the Expeditionary Forces club in Paris.

"From close contact and observation of our men," continued Dr. Hopper, "I've come to the conclusion that a majority of the G. I.'s have not strayed."

Chicago Yanks admit they sometimes get terribly excited about certain glamorous, superbly elegant French girls who are masters at the art of light love making, but it doesn't last.

Favors Home Town Girl

Lanky, blond, blue eyed Master Sgt. Robert Nordmark, 5327 Potomac av., Chicago, says he has been in Africa, Italy, England, France, Belgium, and Holland, but he hasn't seen a girl who could take his mind off his home town sweetheart, Frances Braught [5439 Augusta-blvd.].

"See," he enthused, "it takes America to produce beautiful, intelligent, and honest girls, full of clean fun. Frances went to Austin High school with me. I know how she grew up. I have complete faith in her. We like to dance, play tennis, cook, and drive; all sorts of little things I want to do all my life. I can't even talk to the Frenchies here. Their background is too different from mine."

Nineteen year old, tall, black haired George Rito, seaman 1st class of 429 N. St. Louis av., Chicago, confesses the pinup French girls have turned his head like the time he drank Burgundy wine, champagne, cognac, gin, and vodka all the same evening, but nothing much happened.

Letter Changes George's Ideas

"Whenever I get that feeling again," he laughs, "I grab a letter from my girl Mary Lou Humphries [3824 Pioneer av.] and read it thru 10 times. That sets me straight. I love her because she writes nice things. She, my sister, and my brother's girl chum together. I wouldn't want any lovewise Parisienne taking her place. She's quiet, but I know she likes me very much. Boy, I wish I were back home and married to her now."

Tanned, auburn haired, gray eyed Sgt. James J. Feeley, 722 W. 67th st., Chicago, is already married.

"My wife means even more to me now that I've seen Italian, Belgian, and French women," he opines. "They aren't my kind of people.

"I married a girl I'd grown up with. We were buddies years before our first kiss.

"The girls here label us G. I.'s babes in the art of love. They say we treat our love making too lightly, like children playing bubbles, but we appreciate the real thing we have waiting for us back home."

U. S. FLYERS BAG 397 NAZI PLANES IN DAY OF RECORD ATTACKS

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—American fighter pilots and bomber gunners destroyed 397 German aircraft on the ground and in the air today and shattered aerial warfare records in the most devastating blow ever delivered against the German air force in raids on more than 26 enemy air fields. The previous over-all score of enemy planes knocked out in a single day was 352 on July 17, 1943, in the Scheweinfurt and Regensburg areas.

Mustang and Thunderbolt pilots of the United States 8th air force alone set these records:

1. Destroyed 322 enemy planes on the ground and in the air—previous record, 177, last Sept. 5.

2. Destroyed 284 planes on the ground—previous record, 147, on Sept. 5.

3. The 339th Mustang group destroyed 100 planes on the ground—previous record, 56th Thunderbolt group, 70, on Sept. 5.

4. One squadron destroyed 62 planes on the ground—previous record, 47.

5. The 56th Thunderbolt group set a new all-time group total of 904.

6. Of 38 planes shot down in aerial combat, 35 were German jet propelled fighters, the biggest single day's bag.

The remainder of the 397 planes destroyed were credited to bomber gunners; to continent based American 9th air force pilots, and fighters of the 1st tactical air force operating from France. In the last four days at least 765 enemy planes have been destroyed.

FOREIGN OFFICE AIDS TAKEN IN MUEHLHAUSEN

Cower in Garages and Basements

MUEHLHAUSEN, Germany, April 8 [Delayed]—(AP)—Two hundred eighty-five members of the German foreign ministry were captured last Thursday when the 6th armored division rolled into this city 19 miles northwest of Weimar.

Captured officials handled matters such as salaries, exchange of nationals with other countries, personnel, and press communications. Among them were several who had spent many years in Washington. However, Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and other top figures in his department were not among the prisoners taken.

Moved a Month Ago

This section of the foreign ministry, whose work was generally administrative, was transferred to Muehlhausen from Berlin about a month ago when many government offices were moved into this area some 140 miles southwest of Berlin.

But the staff barely had time to get set up and organized when tanks of the 6th armored division roared into the city.

The officials were found cowering in apartments, basements, garages, and homes of friends. Inasmuch as the officials were civilians they were placed in charge of allied military government officers and placed under house detention.

Seize Rail Officials

Just before taking this picturesque old world city of 50,000 the division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow of Washington, D. C., also seized numerous members of the German railroad ministry at Scherbda, 10 miles south of Muehlhausen. The photographic department of Transocean news agency was captured at Langensalza, five miles southeast.

The enemy officials said Berlin was at least 75 per cent destroyed and most government buildings gone. They added that the SS [elite guard] and Gestapo still held an iron fist over the people of the ruined capital.

"Most of us feel the war is lost, but until now we did not dare talk about it for fear of what might happen to us," said one official.

Insist Hitler Is Alive.

People in Germany generally have ceased to believe some secret weapon still might win the war, he said. However, they believe the war will continue if the SS and Gestapo hold the whip hand, he added.

The people are extremely pessimistic about any group of Germans wresting power from Hitler, Himmler, and their henchmen. Hitler is still very much alive, the captives insisted.

Fear of the Russians pervades the entire German nation, it was said.

Chicagoan Is First Soldier in Hannover

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HANNOVER, Germany, April 10—The 84th infantry division today captured Hannover, seat of the ancestral home of England's ruling house which changed its name to Windsor during World War I.

The first Yank to enter the city, 90 per cent destroyed from five years of bombings, was a Chicagoan, Pvt. Walter Regisus, 2030 S. Halsted st.

"It was like going thru France," he said. "Those frauleins wanted to kiss me—I guess they didn't hear about anti-fraternization."

Regisus is a member of the 334th regiment, which is commanded by another Chicagoan, Lt. Col. Charles Hoy.

Largest City Captured

The city's inhabitants, draping tablecloths, sheets or old fashioned night shirts from their windows as a sign of surrender, waved and cheered as the Americans entered. The burgomeister either had fled or had gone into hiding and there was no one to surrender the town. The Americans just took over.

The 334th regiment captured intact the suburban homestead of Von Hindenburg, which was preserved as a military shrine by Germany. The home was complete with the trophies, decorations, medals, and banners of the field marshal, who became president of the reich and admitted Hitler to his cabinet after the Nazis' victories in the elections of 1932.

Just as the regiment entered the ancient Prussian stronghold, Maj. Gen. Alexander R. Bolling, commanding the 84th division, received word that his son, Lt. Alexander Jr., 22, captured in Alsace last month, had been liberated from a German prison camp.

Seize Two Bridges

Bolling's doughboys plunged across the Leine river above Hannover this morning, advancing so swiftly that they seized two bridges intact and charged into the city.

By this turning movement the Yanks enveloped the Nazi resistance center west of the river in the marshes where elements of panzer grenadiers, reënforced by marines from Hamburg and Bremen, were putting up a bitter resistance yesterday.

By sundown today this group of 700 Germans, which is the largest force Field Marshal Kesselring has had time to fling into defensive action since the break-thru, surrendered with their battalion commander and his staff.

BRITISH DOCKERS GET $155 A WEEK ON U.S. ARMY JOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 10—Twelve dock workers unloading American army supplies at a north England port earned an average of $155 during the week ending April 8, 1944, a select committee on national expenditure reported today. The pay ranged from $130 to $187 each, the investigation disclosed.

Women assembling aircraft engines at one plant averaged $60 a week. One woman earned $97.50.

Leyte to Get V-Mail Station

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., April 10—V-mail service to fighting men in the Philippines will improve materially this week with the opening of a processing station on Leyte, Col. David H. Stephens, Pittsburgh, Pa., chief of the army postal section, said today.

Altho faster than air mail in some theaters, V-mail has not been popular with G. I.'s in the southwest Pacific because of its slowness. The latest postoffice department check showed that the average V-mail letter required 20 days to arrive from the United States as compared with 14.3 days for air mail and 33.7 days for ordinary first class mail.

Less Time to Reach Britain

On the other hand, the average V-mail letter requires 11.1 days to reach England, while air mail takes 16.8 days and ordinary mail 23.5. This situation is true in most theaters.

V-mail has been slow in reaching the Philippines because the rolls of microfilm containing the photographed letters have been routed to Port Moresby, New Guinea, for processing. From there they are flown to the Philippines.

May Cut Air Mail Time

Meanwhile, straight air mail from the United States has been expedited by the air transport command's policy of allocating 32 per cent of its cargo space to mail. This generous allotment was made in view of the great distances in the Pacific.

Col. Stephens said that he felt the average transit time for air mail could be cut to 11 days but no less, because of war conditions. When planes were needed to move wounded from Iwo Island, for example, they were diverted from the mail routes. For a week little mail arrived in the Philippines. It had been unloaded in Guam.

U.S. 1ST AND 9TH DRIVING ON FOR REICH CAPITAL

Simpson Pushes to Brunswick Edge

PARIS, April 11 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army, in a neck and neck race with Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army toward Berlin, quickly toppled Hannover, Germany's 12th largest city yesterday and swept on 28 miles into Brunswick's outskirts at a point only 110 miles from Berlin.

Tank units of the 9th also overran Saltzgitter, site of the Goering steel works 10 miles southwest of Brunswick.

First army troops in a 40 mile advance on the south smashed into Nordhausen and likewise struck within 110 miles of Berlin with the seizure of localities near Auleben, 45 miles west of Halle and 57 miles from Leipzig.

Farther south Lt. Gen. Patton's army rolled on to the outskirts of Erfurt and Coburg, 50 miles from the Czech frontier in the drive to split Germany.

Canadians Gain in Holland

On the northwestern end of the front in Holland the Canadian 1st army gained up to 10 miles, overrunning the first V-2 weapon site near Hellendoorn, 18 miles southeast of Zwolle on the lower Ijssel river. Canadians fought their way into Deventer, on the Ijssel 18 miles south of Zwolle.

Canadians were reported to have contacted allied 1st air borne troops near Westerbork, 25 miles south of Groningen, thru which runs the escape route for an estimated 100,000 to 200,000 Germans pocketed in the Netherlands.

Two Canadian forces driving north along the Ems river reached a point 20 miles south of the German port of Emden and barely more than 100 miles from Germany's North sea coast.

To the right of the Canadians, British 2d army troops were meeting resistance as they slowly cleaned out an area between the Ems and Weser rivers north of Osnabrueck. [British troops, last reported on Monday five miles south of Bremen, have entered the western suburbs of that port, ABSIE, the office of war information transmitter in London, said in a broadcast heard by NBC.]

30 Mile Gap in Nazi Lines

A dispatch from Field Marshal Montgomery's headquarters said British troops broke thru a 30 mile gap, in German lines north of Hannover. The British broke out of their Weser river bridgehead at Hoya, 40 miles northwest of Hannover, and in a nine mile advance punched within two miles of the communications hub of Rethen, on the Aller river, the last of three water barriers between Bremen and Hamburg.

They were across the Weser on a 12 mile front southeast of Bremen. Berlin radio said they also had crossed the Aller in the Verden area, 20 miles southeast of Bremen and 50 southwest of Hamburg, German's greatest port and second largest city.

On the southern end of their front the British took one town 10 miles north of Hannover. Another British division stabbed northeast of Hannover to within 10 miles of Celle, an Aller river city 120 miles from Berlin.

Ride Captured Half-Tracks.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army doughboys, riding captured German half-tracks, stormed and captured Hannover. Troops of the 84th infantry division made the quick conquest of the city.

Elements of the 30th infantry division, sweeping around Hannover, cut the autobahn [highway] midway between there and Brunswick and then captured Vechelade, only five miles west of Brunswick. This stroke put these troops within 110 miles of Berlin.

The 9th's 2d armored division farther south crashed thru hastily erected Nazi mountain defenses and captured points 10 miles from Brunswick as they began enveloping operations against that key road junction city.

The 9th army gains put it only 160 miles from Russian troops along the Oder river east of Berlin.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army tank columns, also dashing toward a juncture with the Russians, reached a point within 52 miles of the Elbe river.

Tanks of the 3d armored division entered Nordhausen, north of Gotha, climaxing a 40 mile drive. To the southeast other 1st army tanks were near Auleben. Another column hammered its way 36 miles to a point near Clingen, which is 19 miles southwest of Nordhausen.

Hodges' armor was driving down a corridor by-passing the towering Harz mountains on their left.

Two flying columns of the 3d armored division met at Gieboldhausen and a sharp fight with enemy tanks temporarily slowed up their advance.

Other advance 1st army units reached Niedergebra, Herzberg, and a point near Wernigerode, nine miles east of Duderstadt.

3 Miles from Coburg

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army troops battled within 2½ miles southwest of Erfurt, one of Germany's main salt producing centers, with the capture of Schmira. They also took Witterda, six miles northwest of Erfurt, a city of 150,000 population where Martin Luther once lived. Berlin said Erfurt was being shelled.

Fifty miles south of Erfurt other 3d army units captured Wohlsbach, three miles southwest of the stronghold of Coburg, northern Bavarian stronghold 50 miles from the Czech frontier. Coburg, a city of 30,000 population, is the home of the duke of Coburg, grandson of Queen Victoria of England. Hitler and his Nazi party held a convention there in 1922.

The 3d army was within 12 miles of Weimar, birthplace of the German republic and 60 miles from the Saxon city of Leipzig. It was taking prisoners at the rate of nearly 7,000 daily. Since it landed in Normandy the 3d army has taken 423,000 prisoners, 222,838 in the last 33 days.

The third's 11th armored division entered Rodach, nine miles northwest of Coburg. Unternubrunn, 10 miles southeast of Suhl, also was entered.

Advance on Schweinfurt

Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army, operating on the southern flank of the 3d, jabbed within six miles southwest of Coburg with the 106th cavalry of the 45th division fighting its way eastward.

In the center the 42d division moved closer to Schweinfurt, taking 11 more towns in the area behind close air support.

On the southern end of the 7th army line the 63d division was driving enemy troops from the Hardthauser woods toward new positions south of the Kocher river. Elements of the 63d were fighting near Lampoldhauser.

The 7th army was striking within 45 miles of the Danube's headwaters. The French 1st army captured Pforzheim, 15 miles southeast of Karlsruhe and 22 miles from the big communications center of Stuttgart.

French troops attached to the 6th army group continued their advance south of Karlsruhe despite lively enemy resistance along the remnants of the Siegfried line.

French armored units, in taking Pforzheim, 15 miles southeast of Karlsruhe, now are all along the banks of the Enz river between Pforzheim and the Neckar.

The German news agency DNB broadcast an announcement that a hold-out garrison in Wuerzburg, behind the 7th advance elements, had surrendered.

TWO NAZI GENERALS SEIZED BY CAVALRY GROUP OF 9TH ARMY

BLOMBERG, Germany, April 10 (AP)—The 113th cavalry group of the 9th army captured two and possibly three German generals today east of the Weser river.

One blundered into American lines. The other was in charge of induction of Germans into the army in the Einbeck area. At first it was reported that this general wanted to put up a fight.

Capt. Ernest Kaufman, Philadelphia, Pa., tied a white handkerchief to his jeep, ventured into Einbeck alone and told him the town would be flattened if he did not surrender. In 10 minutes the general was en route to American lines in a shiny black car, sitting stiffly in the back seat.

Another general was reported to be in the Einbeck hospital area, long with several hundred wounded Germans.

NAZI NEWSCASTS INTERRUPTED; GIVE NO REASON

LONDON, April 11 [Wednesday] (AP)—German radio news services resumed broadcasting shortly after midnight following an unexplained silence of more than five hours for some stations.

DNB's European service that went off the air at 8:20 p. m., came back at 12:40 a. m., with an announcement that a holdout garrison at Wuerzburg had surrendered. Its service then was interrupted again by a loud whistle. The German agency's home service, which had stopped at 7:05 p. m., resumed at 12:40 a. m., also. The Transocean agency was silent, except for call signs, from 8 p. m., to 10 p. m.

No allied bombers were reported over the reich before 10:20 p. m.

NAZI HANNOVER HOME OF BRITISH RULING FAMILY

Hannover, German city captured by the United States 9th army, is the place of origin of the present ruling house of Great Britain.

When Queen Anne died childless in 1714 the British throne passed to the Elector George Louis of Hannover, a great-grandson of James I. James had been king of Great Britain and Ireland from 1603 to 1625.

Preferred to London

George Louis assumed the name George I. when he ascended the British throne. He did not speak English and naturally preferred Hannover to London. He retained his German as well as his English titles and passed them on to his descendants. The anglicizing of the house of Hanover [as the English spelling became] began in earnest with George III., the first George's great-grandson, but until 1837 Britain and Hannover continued to be ruled by the same sovereign.

It was not until 1917 that the British king renounced his German titles. George V. was then the sovereign. At the same time a proclamation was issued changing the name of the royal house to Windsor. It had officially been known as the house of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, popularly as the house of Hanover or Brunswick.

Capital of Kingdom

Hannover, now the capital of the Prussian province of the same name, was in earlier times the capital of the electorate and the kingdom of Hannover. Its importance as a trading center dates back to the late middle ages.

Hannover's 1939 population was 472,529. The city lies in a sandy, fertile plain at the junction of the Leine and the Ihme rivers. The city's excellent rail connections have fostered its growth as a manufacturing center.

STASSEN TO PICK TWO VETERANS AS PARLEY AIDS

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., April 10 (AP)—Two discharged service men will be assistants to Comdr. Harold Stassen at the San Francisco world peace conference, Stassen said here today on the eve of his departure for the United States.

Stassen, one of the American representatives, said he will choose an honorably discharged marine and soldier who have been in combat. He plans to pick men who are returning for schooling and who are interested in government.

The former Minnesota governor said he does not expect to represent the service men's viewpoint at the conference because he believes the delegates should represent all of the people instead of any one group. He said he envisions a new world, but one in which peace will be purchased only at the price of world-wide policing.

NAZIS ATTEMPT RESCUES BY AIR IN RUHR POCKET

WITH THE UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY, April 10 (AP)—Pilots reported today that the Germans were sending air transports into the Ruhr pocket at night in an apparent attempt to remove key personnel and equipment in the narrowing circle. It is likely they have been able to get out some top ranking generals and key personnel caught in the encircling move by the United States 9th and 1st armies.

As of midnight last night the 1st army had taken 18,667 prisoners from the pocket and the 9th army had counted 17,897 [total 36,564], with thousands more still inside the pocket. The rate at which prisoners were being taken upholds the present official estimate that there were some 100,000 Germans troops caught in the Ruhr, including service elements.

Resistance has been lessening the last few days. Infantry men captured a bridge on the Lenne river near Oberberge and then pushed on to the town of Visbeck. Ninth division infantry pushed west almost five miles south of Mechede. Armored units drove 13 miles west of Oberkirchen to the Lenne river. In the southern part of the pocket American troops advanced to a line roughly six miles north of the Sieg river.

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's piano playing crony, Dr. Ernst [Putzi] Hanfstaengl is back in a British internment camp after two years in the United States, it was reliably reported today. It is reported he was handed back to Britain because he could offer little information about the Nazi regime.

BELIEVES ALLIES PREPARE JOINT ENTRY IN BERLIN

Cut Reich Into Segments for Final Mop-Up

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Germany, April 10—As American armies marched on toward Berlin, a study of maps and objectives today disclosed that allied operations may have shifted from the military to the political.

It now seems patent that the Tehran conference reached an agreement that the Russians and British and Americans should enter Berlin together, for the Red army, after plunging westward 1,500 miles, has sat still along the Oder river for three months, only 30 miles from Hitler's capital.

To Berlin Together

The United States and British armies striking eastward to Berlin seem to be jockeying to keep abreast so that Field Marshal Montgomery and Gen. Eisenhower will pass thru the Brandenburger Thor at the head of Unter den Linden together.

The military hierarchy must be extremely busy handling this problem diplomatically so as not to cause ill will or jealousy, and it is still a deep secret whether Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th or Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army will have the honor. Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army seems definitely out as it sidetracked to the west to compress the Ruhr pocket.

It is generally believed that to preserve the balance and apportion the glory equally, Simpson will obtain the coveted mission to enter Berlin.

Preparing for Mopup.

American military operations under way in Germany are merely cutting up the reich into segments, to be mopped up at leisure. The seizure of Berlin, in conjunction with the Russians, will capture the heart of the country. Steel fingers projecting northeast, east, and southeast are ripping the country apart, severing highway, railroad, telegraph, and telephone connections, disintegrating and demoralizing the German army's entire defensive structure.

There will be more battles, more casualties, even sporadic, uncoördinated counter-attacks, but they represent only the personal, fanatical, desperate resistance of Nazi leaders who believe they are doomed to the gallows as war criminals when and if they surrender or are captured and who still exert sufficient terror over their men to prevent them from laying down their arms.

This is my own appraisal of the situation today, based on my experiences as a reporter covering World War I. and following the present conflict from its inception.

End is Arriving

My belief is not based on any secret information imparted by Eisenhower, Simpson, or Montgomery, but derived from examination of the maps, from elementary knowledge of the waning strength of Hitler's war machine and the gigantic building up of the allied military force, from conversations with enemy prisoners, and from observation of German civilians in the vast territory overrun.

The armies' staffs and generals are so close to the picture and so preoccupied with their own individual sectors they may fail to read the handwriting on the wall and not realize the end of organized resistance is arriving.

In the haste and excitement of these slashing sweeps, severing vital arteries of the reich, stitching pocket after pocket as tanks and motorized infantry surround area after area, they may not realize that it's a policing rather than a military job we're now doing—rounding up the enemy in conveniently small bunches, then packing them away in prisoner cages.

Hold Important Fifth

Following are the reasons why I am convinced the war from a military aspect is over:

Firstly, of pre-war German territory, the Russians and the western allies occupy 20 per cent, but that fifth is the most important area of the reich, embracing perhaps 75 per cent of the nation's industrial areas, with Russians holding Silesia and the allies holding the Rhineland and bottling up the Ruhr.

The Czechoslovakia area around Pilsen, with its Skoda works, is the principal concentrated war industry region left to Hitler. The fabulous rumors of how the Germans constructed underground factories and dispersed heavy industry are proven untrue by our findings in the Ruhr basin.

Reich Bled White

Secondly, the allies hold 20 million of the original 75 million German people in the areas occupied, because the population is densest in the industrial regions seized. The tyrannized inhabitants of satellite countries still under the Nazi yoke are a mence rather than an asset to Hitler.

Thirdly, Germany is bled white by five years and seven months of war, chiefly in the blood drenched Russian campaigns, where, besides battle losses, it suffered crushing casualties from partisans behind the endless lines of communication.

It is estimated the Russians have slain at least 2,000,000 Germans, captured 2,000,000, and that the British and Americans have captured at least 1,000,000. The loss of 5,000,000 able bodied men would sap the strength of the strongest nation.

This massive butchery explains why, in the most critical campaign of the war, Hitler could place only 300 divisions in the field, whereas a quarter of a century ago in 1918 the kaiser's imperial army numbered more than 400 divisions from a smaller populace.

Down to 1,500 Men

But the German division of today is only a mockery of the real continental division of 10,000 men. Not a half dozen number 6,000, not a dozen total 4,000, and the rest range down to the ridiculous figure of 1,500 men, as captured units and rosters and ration allocations prove.

Fourthly, every German soldier and every German civilian is convinced the war is lost and that Hitler's gamble has failed. Prisoners and peasants, shopkeepers and industrial workers unanimously reflect the attitude that all is over, and even rabid SS [elite guard] men, Gestapos, and Brown Shirts admit the struggle is finished, explaining they can't quit because of their honor and their pledge to the fuehrer.

No More Softening Up

Lastly, our operations disclose an innate realization victory is won. British and American bombers no longer pound interior Germany nightly and daily. For the last 10 days aerial bombing has been confined to the fringes not yet conquered and to the Ruhr, to break down opposition and clear the path for the penetrating columns.

Already, the reich needs no more softening up, but on the contrary requires whatever industry remains to carry on and be ready to fill normal peace time requirements when the end is officially announced.

POLITICAL UNREST EXPECTED TO DELAY FRENCH ELECTIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 10—French local elections scheduled to be held three weeks hence are likely to be postponed because of military developments, and the return of large numbers of prisoners, and a growing political unrest in the country, it was indicated today.

Requests to delay cantonal elections have been made direct to Gen. de Gaulle. Both Communists and extreme right elements are in favor of postponement.

It has been pointed but that returning prisoners cannot be registered in time to vote and that many are still in Germany. Some observers also believe that rising dissatisfaction with the government's failure to cope with the food situation, and a fear of inflation would make elections at this time inexpedient. The government has insisted, however, that elections will be held.

One reason for the government's stand is that the resistance movements recently have been encountering opposition in the rural districts. The resistance movements are being held responsible for administration evils. De Gaulle supporters also are uneasy now that the national consultative assembly, appointed last fall, is not regarded as giving a clear reflection of popular currents.

RUSSIAN TROOPS SEIZE BIGGEST PART OF VIENNA

LONDON, April 11 [Wednesday] (AP)—The Russians hurled the Germans from all of Vienna west of the Danube canal yesterday and thrust within three and a half miles of cutting the rail escape route from the narrow port district and eastern suburbs still held by the enemy.

Heavy fighting raged in the strip between the canal and the Danube river, a space three miles long and less than a half mile wide. Soviet artillery from three sides raked the district, which includes the Prater and the commercial areas of Leopoldstadt and Briggittenau.

All the main portions of Vienna, including the old city bounded by the Ringstrasse, were in the hands of Marshal Tolbukhin's 3d Ukrainian army, while Marshal Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian forces drove west along the Danube's north bank to the city limits of Vienna.

10 Mile Wide Escape Gap

Malinovsky's men seized a dozen suburbs including Deutsch Wagram, in the middle of the Marchfeld plain and less than three and a half miles from the Nazi escape railroad that leads northward from Vienna to Brno [Bruenn] in Czechoslovakia. The entire gap remaining to the Germans, from the Danube north of Vienna eastward to Deutsch Wagram, was only 10 miles wide.

In the south, Tolbukhin sent some of his forces on toward Graz and Munich.

The Moscow bulletin which announced this series of successes also listed a staggeringly large bag of German troops taken in the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, which fell Monday.

A total of 92,000 Germans were captured in the five day final assault, Moscow said, while another 42,000 were killed. Fifty thousand of those captured were taken after the city's formal fall at 9:30 p. m. Monday. Among the prisoners were 1,819 officers and four generals, including the commandant, a Gen. Lasch.

Westward Drive Expected

The Russians were officially silent concerning operations on any other fronts, but German reports said the Red armies also had opened a final assault to reduce the holdout citadel of Breslau, capital of lower Silesia, and thereby free additional forces for a concerted drive westward toward the onrushing American armies.

The Berlin commentator, Lt. Col. Alfred von Olberg, broadcast that "strong Russian concentrations in the Bunzlau and Guben area, 53 miles southeast of Berlin, and the appearance of fresh forces in the Kuestrin area, 32 miles east of Berlin, indicate that Russian wedges will be aimed at both flanks to outflank Berlin from north and south."

NAZI RESISTANCE HAS COLLAPSED: IKE TO GERMANS

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters told the German people flatly tonight that "German resistance in the west has collapsed." It called on workers in North sea ports to block Nazi fanatics from wrecking harbor installations in order to save jobs for dock employes.

Allied stations sent out this warning in both English and German on authority of the supreme commander: "Allied armies are now threatening your towns. German resistance in the west has collapsed.

"In these last weeks of the war the future of your towns is in the gravest danger from fanatics who may make a last minute attempt to make the ports unusable. The power of the men behind these fanatics is crumbling. It will be broken with the arrival of allied armies. Then your ports will be used at once."

Eisenhower urged the people to prevent the Nazis from seizing the last food and fuel stocks in the cities.

WAR CRIMINALS BARRED TO EIRE, CHURCHILL HINTS

LONDON, April 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill implied today that he would see to it that no war criminals find sanctuary in neutral Eire.

The queston arose in commons when Dr. James Little, a Presbyterian minister from Belfast, asked the prime minister whether he would "take steps to make sure that no war criminals find sanctuary in any country embraced within the British commonwealth of nations."

The written reply from Churchill was: "Yes sir."

Eire, whose leaders have challenged the contention that southern Ireland is part of the British commonwealth, has evaded giving the allies flat assurances that axis war criminals would be banned.

BOMBS AND GUNS RIP SCHWEINFURT AS G. I.S CLOSE IN

Nazi Garrison Fights Back from City's Ruins

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

WITH THE U. S. 42D DIVISION NEAR SCHWEINFURT, Germany, April 10—Schweinfurt, center of Germany's vital ball bearing production and one of the most heavily bombed cities in the reich, today was given what may be the last blasting needed before its fanatically resisting garrison surrenders or dies.

While infantry and tanks moved in to surround the city, more than 200 Marauder medium bombers and escorting Thunderbolt dive bombers roared in with bomb loads and hundreds of big guns shelled the enemy without pause until the town—viewed from an observation post less than two miles away—seemed virtually leveled.

Still, from the ruins of what was once a thriving city of 41,000, the desperate Germans hurled back artillery and mortar fire, and it may be that American infantry and armor will yet have to provide the coup de grace.

Leaflets Urge Surrender

That is, unless Schweinfurt surrenders. Some of the artillery shells we poured in today contained leaflets telling the enemy troops and what civilians remain that their cause is hopeless and urging them to yield rather than be annihilated.

The 242d and 232d regiments of the 42d Rainbow division were moving on Scheinfurt from the west and northwest, the 222d regiment was advancing from the south, and combat command A of the 12th armored division driving from the southeast.

The 242d was facing more than a hundred 88 millimeter guns which the enemy has dug in west of the city. It was reported that there may be as many as 5,000 German troops defending the city.

Watches Bombardment

We watched the air and artillery assault from the observation post of Company B of the 1st battalion of the 242d regiment. Just before the initial wave of bombers came in, the company commander, Capt. Joseph A. Shoemaker, Hornell, N. Y., and his forward artillery observer, 1st Lt. James Rutledge, Lansing, Mich., called for a shell concentration on German pillboxes at the western edge of the town, about 3,000 yards from us.

As the shelling abated, 72 Marauders of the 12th tactical air command, escorted by 36 Thunderbolts, winged in.

Observation Point Shelled

When smoke cleared and some of Schweinfurt showed itself again, our artillery fire was intensified.

The Germans retorted with 88s and mortars, trying to knock out ours and other observation posts. We went diving as the rafters of our old building trembled. One soldier in our party was injured severely by a shell fragment. We were also strafed by a Thunderbolt pilot who had lost his way.

Twice more the Marauders came in big waves—one of 48 planes and another of 70, and there were other smaller sorties, always with Thunderbolt cover, during the daylight hours.

FRANCE BASED PLANES FLY TO CZECH TARGET

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH AIR FORCE, April 9—[Delayed]—Medium bombers with fighter cover from France crossed Germany into Czechoslovakia for the first time today and dropped bombs in a railroad yard at Eger. This correspondent accompanied the mission in the transparent snoot of a special P-38. The round trip, started after lunch, was completed in time for dinner.

Across central Germany, the bombers and fighters did not sight a single enemy plane in the air. From home port the route passed over bomb gutted villages and cities behind our lines. Over the green bluffs on the Rhine, the battle smoke formed a haze on the horizon ahead. On the highways, men and equipment were moving toward the front—day time mobility which is denied the enemy by our air superiority.

Over the front lines, smoke rose high from several villages and some farm buildings—sturdy brick, stone, and mortar of typical German construction. Approaching the target, the course was changed radically for deception. Railroad yards were blasted with two ton bomb loads, and a near-by airport was hit without any flak rising.

GERMANS TREAT BRITISH BETTER THAN AMERICANS

Find More Suffering Yanks at Camp

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

U. S. 1ST ARMY ADVANCE HDQ., Germany, April 10—Between 600 and 1,000 allied war prisoners, most of them Americans, were liberated when doughboys punched into Duderstadt, seven miles east of Goettingen. Early reports indicated that most of the men are suffering severely from malnutrition and that the Americans had been given extremely harsh treatment.

"Our treatment really wasn't so bad," said several British empire soldiers, "compared with the Americans. They were locked in separate enclosures with insufficient medical care and weren't allowed to share our Red Cross rations. No explanation was ever given for the difference in treatment, but they really had a hard time of it."

Marched 600 Miles

One Scot who had been captured at Dieppe, was among prisoners marched 600 miles from a camp in Poland since late January. Another was taken in Italy six months ago. A third, captured at Dunkerque, said:

"When I saw the Americans coming to free us I couldn't speak."

Long term prisoners looked in very bad shape as a result of malnutrition. Many suffered from dysentery and numbers of British prisoners, who passed us, had lice in their clothes. They apologized, saying it had been almost impossible to wash.

Men who had been in captivity up to six months still had rosy cheeks and some flesh. All said the worst trouble was the meager food ration. The old timers said they had been forced to learn to speak German in order to eat, implying they had been able to supplement their diet from civilians.

Get Soup Every Third Day

"But things were a lot rougher on your fellows," said one Briton. "A lot of your fellows wore British uniforms if they could get them in order to get better treatment."

One South African gun sergeant, captured in 1942 in Tobruk, said rations became worse last December. Red Cross parcels were not given the prisoners and their food consisted of one small loaf of bread for four men, a piece of sausage four inches square, and a bowl of watery soup every third day.

"We learned what bad treatment could really be when the Americans arrived at our camp late in December," he said. "They had been captured during the German breakthru [in the Ardennes].

'Just Living Skeletons'

"When they arrived at camp we shared our Red Cross parcels with them, but immediately the Germans took the parcels away from the Americans and ordered that they were not to receive any gifts. Then the Americans were locked in a separate enclosure.

"Quickly the Americans developed dysentery and then they were treated shockingly. They were living in barns with no sanitation facilities. The men were just about too weak to move and there was no place for them to go with their dysentery. You can imagine the condition of their living quarters. When we last saw them, they were just living skeletons."

BRITISH SMASH AHEAD ON WIDE FRONT IN ITALY

ROME, April 10 (AP)—The veteran British 8th army, opening what is expected to be a major battle in Italy, crossed the Senio river today on a wide front in a campaign to annihilate the German 10th and 14th armies before they can retreat into the mountain fortress of southern Germany.

The 8th, with a brilliant record reaching back to El Alamein, moved into action last night after a six months' lull behind a murderous artillery barrage and the greatest coordinated aerial assault ever carried out in Italy.

The break across the Senio was accomplished near Lugo, a town of some 14,000 inhabitants, about 15 miles west of Ravenna and junction point of the Faenza-Ferrara and Ravenna-Bologna roads.

The American 5th army front was active, with the United States 473d infantry regiment, operating with the 92d division, fighting its way into the southern outskirts of Massa.

SPAIN MOVES TO BAR GERMAN WAR CRIMINALS

MADRID, Spain, April 10 (AP)—Spain is inspecting all foreigners arriving from Germany to prevent persons classified by the allies as war criminals from settling in Spanish territory, it was learned today.

The foreign section of the Spanish police is preparing a questionnaire, to be distributed soon, for all Germans not in diplomatic service who already are in the country.

The Germans must state whether they are Nazis, how long they have been party members, what their activities were during the Spanish civil war, whether they are members of the German army, and whether they were classified by the allies as war criminals.

FRANCE KILLS VICHY'S 3 YEAR BAN ON DIVORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 10—Continuing its work of tossing Vichy laws in the wastebasket, the council of ministers, headed by Gen. de Gaulle, today scotched the three year delay in divorce actions decreed by Marshall Petain as part of his policy to preserve the integrity of French family life.

In place of the Petain legislation, which made divorce next to impossible, the De Gaulle government reëstablished the old republican law which permits loveless couples to be legally separated on almost any grounds and with a speed that depends only on the lawyer's ingenuity in piloting their action thru the labyrinths of court procedure.

In addition to abolishing the three year delay between the filing of a petition and the first court action, the ministers today streamlined the general procedure, reducing all delays to a minimum. The new law retains the traditional air tight secrecy on all details of divorce cases and adds severe penalties for any attempt by intermediaries to facilitate the divorce.

39 MEN RULE 900 LOCALITIES IN TRIER AREA

Refugees Pose Problem for AMG Officers

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 10—The experience of our allied military government [AMG] at Trier, just across the frontier in Germany from Luxemburg, gives a fair picture of the problems and accomplishments of our authorities in other cities an ' provinces on the west bank of the Rhine.

Trier, the center of the Moselle wine industry, was evacuated after our air raids last Dec. 21 to 23. Ninety per cent of the business district of the town had been demolished.

When our military government officers arrived, the day the city was captured, only 2,500 of the 88,000 population remained. They found the usual thing — complete chaos; a city without water, gas, or electricity, and with no government.

Take Over 900 Localities

Lt. Col. S. S. Speaks of Columbus, O., with a detachment of 14 officers and 24 enlisted men—F detachment—took over the entire district, comprising altogether 900 localities with a peace time population of 250,000

About 7,000 evacuees have now returned. Of these, about 300 Germans, technicians and workers, were drafted into jobs to maintain order, to restore communal life as far as possible and, above all, to push food production.

Water and sewer mains were knocked out and are not yet in use, altho expected to be restored soon. By improvisation and the use of generators found here and there, electric lights have been turned on.

Officers remarked that their greatest problem was that of displaced persons. Thousands were being evacuated thru Trier daily by train, but there were still 14,000 in a camp on a hill. They had to be fed, and the only way food could be had was by requisitioning it from German civilian stocks.

But because of the wholesale German evacuation, the seizure of food has not yet caused a serious shortage as far as the German civilian population of Trier is concerned. There is a shortage of dairy cattle, however, and the milk supply situation is really serious. The burgomeister is requisitioning daily 500 liters [a liter is 1.05 quarts] for children.

Maj. M. D. Weldon of Lincoln, Neb., formerly with the Nebraska agricultural station, has charge of the program of food production.

"It is surprising," he said, "how similar German agriculture is to ours, altho the crops in Germany are more diversified. The main crops in this district are potatoes and small grains—oats, barley, wheat, and rye. A considerable area also is normally planted with clover and fodder beets."

Mines Take Toll

"The land is good," Weldon said, "but there still are many mine craters unfilled and even some live mines around in farmlands." In a typical day, five horses and a cow were killed by mines, and a German farmer's leg was blown off.

Along the Moselle, Weldon said, the soil is noticeably acid, and all salts, such as sulphate and potash, have been washed out. The soil, therefore, needs lime and fertilizer. Weldon is having difficulty finding seed also, particularly for potatoes.

With greater use of women on farms and mutual help and lending of farm machinery and horses as required, Weldon said he thought labor and tool shortages could largely be overcome.

Bird Collector

Corp. W. J. Beecher and some of his Solomon Islands birds.

The hobby of collecting museum specimens helps a soldier forget the danger of heavy enemy fire, it was explained yesterday by Corp. William J. Beecher of 3048 N. Troy st., who gathered several hundred zoological specimens for the Chicago [Field] Museum of Natural History while under enemy fire in the Solomon Islands.

Beecher, an assistant in the museum's department of zoology before he was inducted into the army on July 6, 1942, has spent most of a 45 day furlough at the museum, where he is working on the collections of birds, mammals, lizards, snakes, and frogs that he sent from the island.

On some of the islands, the soldiers used small gullies, rather than foxholes, as protection from Japanese fire, Beecher said.

"When the Japs fire got heavy, we'd hit for these gullies," Beecher related, "and while we were there it was just as easy for me to pick up a few lizards or other specimens as it was for me not to do anything.

800,000 FREED BY U. S. CREATE VAST RELIEF JOB

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 10—Eight hundred thousand displaced persons have been liberated by American armies on the western front, Brig. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelsen, chief of the displaced persons branch of G-5, said here today. This is only half the number originally estimated to be in the areas already captured from the enemy, and it is believed the Germans have been taking many of the able bodied ones back with them, he said.

A displaced person is officially defined as "one who by reason of war is in a country other than his own, and who wants to get back." Of those liberated so far, 10 per cent are children whose parents cannot be located. Many of the children were born in Germany.

Given Special Care.

These "orphans" are given special care and cannot be adopted by outsiders until parents have had every opportunity to find them.

Mickelsen said the 100,000 persons liberated west of the Rhine "were in excellent physical condition and wore good clothes. But we never ask the women where they got their clothes," he added.

The ranks of displaced persons are expected to be swelled by the capture of the Ruhr industrial area. When the UNRRA takes over the job of feeding, rehabilitating, and repatriating, it is estimated there will be 1,500 camps, with 3,000 persons in each, despite the fact that all French, Belgian, and Dutch are being brought back home as fast as possible. Thousands of others have no countries or homes to go to.

Allied Nations Agree to Help.

Each allied country has agreed to help repatriate its own nationals, and the French have about 100 liaison officers working with our units.

All D. P.s are given registration cards and are "dusted and redusted" for enemy aliens or sympathizers.

Military teams of from three officers and five enlisted men to units five times that size have charge of arrangements to feed, lodge, and otherwise take care of the D. P.s. The Germans are required to provide food and lodging and sometimes even payments to the D. P.s. The setup has worked very well, Mickelsen said.

Assisting the military teams are 45 UNRRA teams as well as 25 French teams, known as M. L. L. A. [Mission Liberation Liaison des Allies], Mickelsen said. The UNRRA teams are working under army command.

The UNRRA, when it takes over the whole job, is expected to have 450 teams in the field. Mickelsen praised the UNRRA units. He especially praised the MLLA teams, each consisting of four women and a man driver.

ANOTHER POLISH LEADER MISSING, LONDON HEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 10 — Another prominent Polish underground leader has mysteriously disappeared from Russian occupied Poland, it was reported here today. He is Wincenty Witos, leader of the Polish Peasant party, who was prime minister three times before the 1926 coup d'etat.

Three civilians and a man in uniform took Witos away from his home in Wierzchoslawice March 31, a Peasant party spokesman in London said today. It is believed he was spirited away to Moscow for talks with soviet authorities on the formation of a new Polish provisional government, but reports of Russian arrests of Polish leaders make his fate uncertain.

Capt. Alan Grama, Conservative member of parliament, plans to ask Foreign Secretary Eden tomorrow whether he has obtained any explanation from the Russians "of their policy of arrests and deportations of prominent Polish citizens, Red Cross workers, democratic party leaders and other patriotic and loyal workers."

CHURCHILL HINTS HE WOULD FIRE CABINET CRITICS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 10—Prime Minister Churchill today warned his cabinet ministers in the house of commons that he would not tolerate any attack in the preliminary general election campaign now under way which "reflects on the actual policies pursued by the government."

He said ministers in the government were allowed considerable freedom and that he had never asked a Conservative, Laborite, or Liberal to advocate anything except his own party's policy. He intimated that any member of the cabinet who criticized official policy in public would be called upon to resign.

This leaves Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin and other Laborite ministers only a choice between moderating their campaign speeches or quitting the government and turning the election contest into a free-for-all. If they refuse to bow to Churchill's demand, it means an end to coalition government.

TIGHTER DRAFT POLICY URGED FOR FARMERS

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—The senate military committee today approved a resolution stiffening the provisions of the draft law on the deferment of farm workers.

The committee wrote into the house-approved resolution a clause which had been drafted for the man power control bill, now conceded to be dead.

The clause specifies that local draft boards in classifying farm registrants shall make their determination "solely and exclusively on whether the registrant is necessary to and regularly engaged in an agricultural occupation or endeavor essential to the war effort and whether a satisfactory replacement can be obtained," without reference to the registrant's relative essentiality in any other occupation.

The committee also approved an army enlistment bill, previously passed by the house, designed to assist in rebuilding the regular army after the war.

CLAIMS SOVIET WAR COSTS TOP THOSE OF U. S.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

MOSCOW, April 10—A writer named Touretski in the current issue of the magazine Bolshevik says that Pierre Cot, former French air minister, in an article entitled "Fraternite," had placed the cost of the war to Russia at 250,000,000,000 gold rubles [$125,000,000,000] but that the actual figure is higher.

Touretski lists three principal categories of loss: Direct destruction and looting; estimated losses to national wealth occasioned by the diversion of man power and industrial production to the war; actual budgeted expenses of the war.

He points out that the United States has suffered relatively slight economic loss during this war compared with Russia and that no other nation has lost comparable wealth.

Truck Drivers of the 33d Have Busy Days

BY WALTER SIMMONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

DEMORTIS, Northern Luzon, April 10—"Well, anyway it's a steady job," sighed Pvt. Harry Larkowski, 1161 Eddy st, Chicago, as he drove his heavy truck into the 33d division quartermaster area near midnight.

Larkowski would have to spend another hour fixing some tires, but after that his time would be his own until 4 a. m. when he would begin another day.

This schedule is not unusual for the quartermaster's truck drivers during peak periods of activity. Often, however, they only have to work 12 or 14 hours daily.

Hit the Road at 5 A. M.

Up at 4 a. m., they breakfast at 4:30 and hit the road at 5. At noon they bum some chow wherever they are or eat K rations if they are on the road. Sometimes they haul ammunition to the front or help unload ships. If they are extremely lucky they get back to camp in time for supper. If not, they eat another cold K ration and keep going. When the driving day is over each man must take care of his vehicle.

The quartermaster company is commanded by Capt. John Thornton, Rockford, Ill. Lt. Col. Russel Kuhns, Springfield, Ill., is quartermaster officer, and his assistant is Maj. Jewell Bendt, Rockford. First Lt. Vincent Allegrini, 4946 Belden av., Chicago, is subsistence officer.

Two officers in the 33d division, 130th regiment, both worked in the same building of the Caterpillar Tractor company's plant at Peoria, Ill., before the war, but they never knew each other. They are Lt. Col. Orville Minton, San Jose, Ill., commander of the 3d battalion, who is 26 years old, and his executive officer, Maj. Herschel Williamson, Peoria, who is 25.

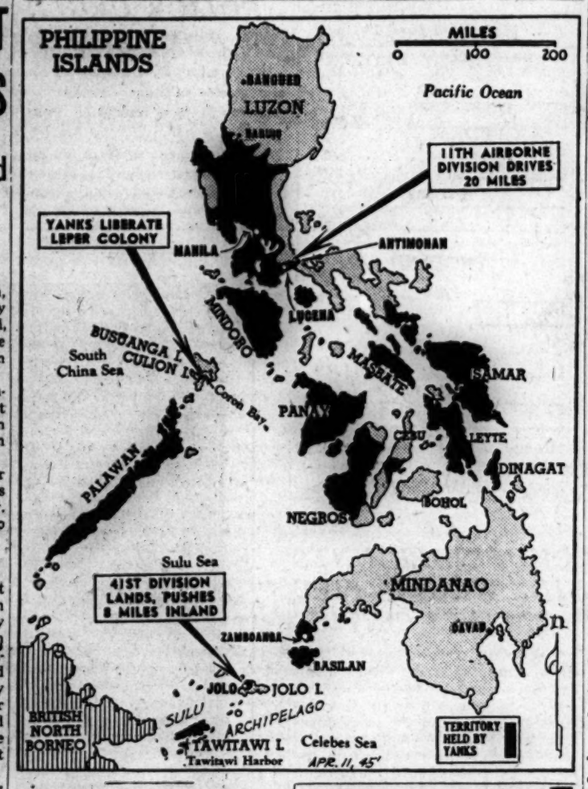
New Invasion by MacArthur's Men



YANKS INVADE JOLO; CONTROL SULU ISLANDS

Race 8 Miles Inland; Capture Capital

MANILA, April 11 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Veteran infantrymen of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st division invaded Jolo Island Monday. They seized the capital city and its air fields to take "complete control" of the Sulu archipelago. This new blow was announced by Gen. MacArthur today.

The 41st division, which captured the harbor of Tawitawi in the Sulu chain 30 miles from Borneo on April 2, swept ashore at the Jolo City waterfront on the north coast of the 20 mile long island.

After seizing the city, the Americans struck inland eight miles, scattering all enemy resistance. There was no indication of the intensity of the opposition at Jolo, but MacArthur said two weeks aerial pounding had disrupted enemy defenses.

Finest Port in Islands

Jolo, shrine city of the Moros, is the capital of the Sulu archipelago, which stretches between southwestern Mindanao and northern Borneo. It is the finest port in the string of islands.

MacArthur announced also that all organized Japanese resistance had collapsed on southern Luzon "and its liberation is at hand."

The 11th air borne division reached Antimonan, on the east coast, in a swift drive of 20 miles from Lucena. Thousands of crack Japanese troops are believed trapped in the long southeastern "tail" of Luzon.

Americans Occupy Bay

In the central Philippines, American infantrymen occupied Coron bay on Busuanga Island, north of Palawan, to rescue a colony of lepers at Culiton town. The bay once was used as a Japanese fleet anchorage during sorties against the American beachhead at Leyte Island.

MacArthur said the first medical and food supplies to be received at the leper colony in three years were delivered by the Americans.

In the air war, heavy bombers severely raked airdromes on Formosa and fighters strafed rail facilities. A freighter-transport was destroyed off the west coast.

Bombers flying the China sea have "almost cleared the shipping lanes to the south," MacArthur reported. He said that "in default of shipping targets, our heavy and medium bomber patrols of the blockade destroyed bridges, installations and railway equipment along the arterial railway line running north along the French Indo-China coast and bombed the Hoe How airdrome on Hainan."

LONE B-29 RAIDS YOKOHAMA AND TOKYO, JAPS SAY

San Francisco, Cal., April 10—(AP)—Radio Tokyo reported a lone Super Fortress bombed the Kanto area of Tokyo and Yokohama Tuesday noon [Japanese time].

"Two large planes, apparently B-24's" flew over southern Kyushu and the Goto Islands to the southwest, the report said.

The Japanese language broadcast added that "four small planes" raided Kagoshima prefecture at the tip of Kyushu, southernmost of Japan's home islands.

CHINESE RECAPTURE WEST HONAN TOWN IN COUNTER-ATTACK

CHUNGKING, China, April 10 (AP)—The Chinese high command said tonight that counter-attacking Chinese troops recaptured the western Honan province town of Changsuichen, 70 miles from the Shensi border.

"The enemy remnants fled toward Lining with our forces in pursuit," the announcement said.

The high command acknowledged that Japanese forces had entered Laohokow, former site of an advanced United States air base 200 miles northwest of Hankow, and said the Chinese garrison was battling the invaders within the city.

On the southern Honan front, the Chinese said heavy fighting was in progress in the Neisiang area with no change in the positions of the two forces.

East of the Peiping-Hankow railroad, the high command said, Chinese troops captured the north and west passes to Junan, 130 miles north and slightly east of Hankow. Street fighting was reported in Junan. Other Chinese troops were reported pressing on Chowkiakow, 30 miles northeast of Junan.

GUERRILLA UNITS TO FORM ARMY UNDER M'ARTHUR

BY DONALD STARR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, Luzon, P. I., April 10—Recognized guerilla units will form the nucleus of a Philippine army of 150,000 to serve under Gen. MacArthur in cleaning out pockets of Jap resistance and garrisoning the islands, according to Secretary of National Defense Tomas Cabili, ex-guerrilla leader on Mindanao.

Five thousand Filipinos already have enlisted in the army and are undergoing training under a program directed by United States forces of the far east, which is now screening the guerrillas to weed out the thousands who blossomed after the entry of American troops.

Recognized Force Defined

With the landing of military forces under MacArthur on Leyte, President Osmena issued an executive order providing that all Filipinos serving in "recognized military forces" in the Philippines were considered to be on active service in the Philippine army. Recognized military force was defined as "a force under a commander who has been appointed, designated, or recognized by the comander in chief of the Southwest Pacific area."

Acting under authorization of the Tydings-McDuffie independence act of 1935, President Roosevelt in the summer of 1941 called into the service of the armed forces of the United States in the Philippines all military forces organized by the commonwealth government. The commonwealth defense act obligated all male citizens for military service, and a program then under way provided 10 infantry divisions of approximately 8,000 men each.

Join in Defense of Isles

These joined the forces of the United States army's Philippines department, which included the Philippine scouts, in the defense of the islands against the invasion of the Japanese.

As guerrilla units are recognized they will become part of the Philippine army by order of the commanding general, USAFFE. In addition to aiding American troops in combat, Filipinos are being organized into military police units.

YANKS LAND ON ISLE 10 MILES FROM OKINAWA

Jap Counter-Attacks Are Beaten Off

GUAM, April 11 [Wednesday]—(AP)—Tenth army troops landed on Tsuken Island off Okinawa's east coast yesterday. They killed the entire Japanese garrison of about 150 troops. On the main island 24th corps doughboys battered at the "little Siegfried line" on the south for the sixth straight day without appreciable gains.

Some opposition was encountered on Tsuken, an island only a mile and a quarter long about 10 miles off Nakagusuku harbor. The island is important because in American hands it would complete American control of that one-time Japanese fleet anchorage. The Americans have seized the inner shore of Nakagusuku bay.

Intense fighting continued in the southern sector on Okinawa along the entire four and one-half mile line running from Uchitomari on the west coast to the town of Tsuwa on the east coast. Several enemy counter-attacks were beaten off.

Use Bombs as Mines

The Japanese were attacking American tanks with Molotov cocktails [bottles containing highly explosive liquid] and using 500 pound bombs as mines. While they have temporarily halted the advance toward the capital city of Naha they have been unable to shove the Americans back.

Front line reports said the fact there were no appreciable gains recorded may be attributed in part to the desire of Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold, the 7th division commander, to hold down his casualties by massing great amounts of artillery against Japanese in concrete pillboxes.

Artillery was seeking to knock out each emplacement before troops were sent forward—a long and difficult task.

Marines Gain Ground

Marines of Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger's 3d amphibious corps scored gains up to 2,500 yards in the north, overrunning enemy submarine pens and other installations.

Marine artillery battalions, not needed on the northern sector, where the marines are pinching off and cleaning up Motobu peninsula, were brought to the 24th army corps line to aid the doughboys.

Guns of American warships likewise supported the infantry men's southward drive. The enemy apparently is making the fight in hilly, southern Okinawa the determining action in defense of the island, 325 miles from Japan.

Meet Scattered Opposition

The marines in the north have met only scattered and ineffective opposition, much of it from poorly armed Okinawa home guardsmen.

The navy announced that 5,009 Japanese were killed and 222 prisoners of war taken in the first eight days of the battle for Okinawa.

There was no late estimate of American casualties. Field reports said they were running high in the southern sector.

The last official report of United States casualties covered up to midnight last Wednesday. At that time 175 marines and soldiers had been killed and 798 wounded.

FRENCH CANADA GIVES AMERICA A HERO AT IWO

Home Town to Greet Flag Raising Vet

Manchester, N. H., April 10 [Special]—Marine Pvt. Rene A. Gagnon, 20, who will get a formal welcome from his home state and city here Thursday for his part in raising the American flag on Mount Suribachi, Iwo Island, is a second generation American of direct French-Canadian descent.

Pvt. R. A. Gagnon

The population of Manchester is about 50 per cent of French-Canadian extraction, and the French language, which is spoken in most of the French-Canadian homes here, is the language of the Gagnon family.

"After using marine jargon for the last two years, I find I've forgotten a lot of my French, but I'm picking it up again," Gagnon said today.

Greeted by Mother

He was greeted on his return home by his mother, Mrs. Irene Gagnon, who still lives in the red brick apartment house to which her parents moved from Saint Francois du Lac, Quebec, when she was 6.

Mrs. Gagnon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Marcotte, were Quebec farmers until moving here. Mrs. Gagnon has cousins and aunts in all sections of Canada as well as relatives here.

Gagnon's fiancee is Pauline Harnois, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Harnois of near-by Hookset. This is also a French speaking family from Quebec. Rene met Pauline three years ago when both were employed in the spinning room of the Chicopee mills, a Manchester war plant turning out bandages.

Gagnon enlisted in the marine corps and was inducted May 6, 1943, the day before his 18th birthday.

A year earlier he had been rejected by the navy because of high blood pressure, but he underwent treatment from the family doctor which enabled him to pass the marine examination.

Visited by Governor

One of Gagnon's visitors since his arrival here was Gov. Dale, who sat in the kitchen of Mrs. Gagnon's home and chatted about the war with the marine hero. The governor and state and city executives will take part in the homecoming celebration Thursday, which will include a parade, banquet, and festival in Bronstein park on the bank of the Merrimac river.

Gagnon was one of six men shown in the famous Iwo flag raising picture taken by Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer. Three were later killed in action on Iwo, and John H. Bradley, 21, of Appleton, Wis., was wounded. The other unscathed survivor was Pvt. Ira Hamilton Hayes, 22, of Bapchule, Ariz.

HEATING OIL SCARCITY EXPECTED TO REMAIN EVEN AFTER V-E DAY

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—The end of the war in Europe will not mean more heating oil or kerosene for civilians next winter, the petroleum administration for war said today.

"More petroleum products of this type will be produced in the next six months than in any comparable period, but the nature of warfare in the Pacific is such that military operations will absorb the entire increase," said PAW Deputy Administrator Ralph K. Davies.

"The program the petroleum industry has been called upon to follow does not leave room for lifting of restrictions on home heating oil and kerosene consumption by civilians," Davies said.

OKINAWA GIRLS SPOIL ROMANCE FOR ONE MARINE

BY THOMAS MORROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. MARINES ON OKINAWA ISLAND, April 9 [Delayed]—Swing organ music issuing from a Japanese school house! Painted signs calling attention to "Radio Riley, the Voice of Okinawa; Statewide News," and "Okinawa Bell Telephone company!" Two marines eating sweet potatoes with an Okinawan housewife!

These things proved that in the area where the marines had landed the situation was well in hand.

Capt. Bill Parriott of Morgantown, W. Va., and Lt. William E. Daugherty proposed a patrol to talk some natives out of their caves. Pvt. Bill Sheenan of Port Huron, Mich., drove the jeep.

Pass Strolling Marines.

We passed thru Nupunia, Againa, and Gushikawa, and traveled down the east coast of Katonin peninsula. Along the way, we paused to pass the time of day with Pvt. Duncan Vercillono, Harvey, Ill., and Pvt. Kurt Boenker, St. Charles, Mo., a pair of strolling marines.

"Good war so far," Vercillono opined, "but I'm not going to say anything until we get the place."

"The pigs and chickens are okay," Boenker remarked, "but I'm disappointed in the girls. They're not what they told me. You might tell Maxine Schwendman of St. Peters, Mo., that I'll see her a couple of times when I get back home."

In Gushikawa, a group of women went about their community bathing in a long trough while traffic streamed by on the road. They were using the same water to wash their clothing.

Children Don't Play.

"The kids here don't play," complained Sheenan. "They just sit and eat."

A frame building in the middle of a school yard, an ancient wooden structure, one story with latticework windows, disclosed Pvt. John A. Retterer, whose parents live in Aurora, Ill., comfortably settled inside. He said he was satisfied with the campaign to date.

As we swung into the coral searoad along the coast of the peninsula, two Okinawa horses entered into a race with the jeep. They were traveling about 25 miles an hour before Sheenan, muttering uncomplimentary things about horses, got by them.

Lt. Daugherty saw a group of Okinawans at the foot of a hill, inland about a half mile. We started across a rice field toward them.

Meet Voluble Woman

"Better let me go first," said Parriott. "There may be soldiers in those caves, and you didn't bring your slingshot."

As we approached the group, we met a voluble young woman.

She seemed mildly annoyed because naval gunfire had knocked down her house.

"We like the Americans because they came to free us," she said.

U. S. TO RELEASE NAMES OF FREED G. I.S QUICKER

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—The war department announced today that names of American prisoners of war liberated by allied armies in Germany will be released immediately to newsmen in the European theater.

The new policy, effective at once, was instituted as a result of the recent liberation of large numbers of American soldiers from German prison camps. Previously, the names were withheld until the war department had notified the next of kin.

Official notification will continue to be given by the department but in many cases the first notice a family will receive will be thru newspaper reports or radio broadcasts. These reports, the department said, will be based on reliable information from American sources and the names and serial numbers will be checked carefully before the information is released.

Liberated prisoners will be permitted to write immediately to their families and friends. The families were urged not to write to the war department for information prior to receipt of the official notification from the adjutant general's office because no information will be available there. When official word is received from overseas, the department added, the next of kin will be notified within a matter of a few hours.

Ward in Criminal court in connection with a fake holdup and burglary of the Helena Rubenstein Beauty shop, 666 N. Michigan av., where she had been cashier. Found guilty as accomplices were Harry Trader, 22, 1307 Adams st., a clerk, charged with robbery and receiving stolen property, and Jose Gonzalez, 30, of 1313 Peoria st., charged with robbery. Mrs. Chandler was accused of turning over $240 to the two men in a simulated robbery and $469 later in a fake burglary.

BILL TO SUBJECT RADIO TO LIBEL LAW POSTPONED

Spokesmen for Stations Repeat Objections

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10—Sponsors of the bill to place radio on an equal footing with the press in reference to libel tonight postponed consideration of the measure to permit study of proposed amendments

They had spent the evening listening to objections from radio station spokesmen who appeared before the senate judiciary committee. Many of the witnesses repeated the protests against responsibility for libel they made last week before the same body.

The amendments proposed by Mayor Kelly, which some sponsors of the legislation said would not merely nullify the bill but would reverse its effects so that radio stations and speakers could commit libel in perfect safety, were held in abeyance. The Kelly amendments, a surprise to legislators who had understood he supported the bill, would exempt virtually any kind of libel from criminal prosecution.

Questions to the opponents were chiefly directed by Senators Connors [D., Chicago] and Downing [R., Macomb], co-sponsors of the bill in the upper house, Libonati [D., Chicago], who feels he was the victim of a scurrilous broadcast, and Butler [R., Chicago].

Deny They Can Delete

Radio station opponents of the bill, which do not include station W-G-N of Chicago, said federal communications commission regulations prohibit any censorship of political speeches. Asked whether they could not delete libelous, blasphemous, or obscene remarks from scripts, they denied they could. Several senators disputed this on the basis of experience.

As to the expressed fear by radio spokesmen of seeing officials go to jail for libels they could not prevent, Sen. Connors asked whether they could recall how many men had been imprisoned for press libel in Illinois. Opponents had no reply except for a statement that one man had been jailed in Monticello. Another senator said this was for contempt of court.

A new witness was Prof. F. S. Siebert, head of the journalism department at the University of Illinois, and a director of station WILL of the university.

Urges Exceptions

"I feel that radio should be held to some responsibility," Prof Siebert said. "There should be exceptions made for peculiarities of radio—the difference between press and radio and the federal requirements as to radio. Consideration should be given to the speed and dispatch of radio. There should be recognition of criminal intent."

In principle, radio should be held to the same accountability for libel as is the press, Prof. Siebert said.

Sen. Connors and Sen. Downing said there should be time for study of proposed amendments whereupon Chairman Thompson [R., Galesburg] continued the hearing at the call of the chair.

TRUMAN'S FIGHT ON PENDERGAST FOE KICKS BACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Maurice M. Milligan.

Washington, D. C., April 10—Capital tongues wagged today over the latest development in Vice President Truman's campaign of vengeance against the man who sent the late Tom Pendergast to jail.

Truman has been fighting for months to oust from public life United States District Atty. Maurice M. Milligan of Kansas City, Mo. The strange picture has been offered of a Vice President intruding upon senatorial patronage prerogatives to war upon the public official who broke up the corrupt Pendergast machine.

Truman's efforts to prevent the reappointment of Milligan to a fourth term may have boomeranged, it appeared. Milligan will lose the $7,600 district attorney post only to obtain a $10,000 job in the justice department, according to report.

The enmity between Truman and Milligan dates back to 1939 when the latter obtained the indictment of Pendergast, who brought Truman out of political obscurity to the United States senate. Pendergast pleaded guilty, went to prison, was paroled and died recently.

GIRL WHO BROKE BACK IS FLOWN TO COAST HOME

Miss June Dilworth, 20, of Ceres, Cal., a student at Aurora college, Aurora, left Chicago yesterday by United Air Lines for her home with the highest civilian travel priority.

The priority was granted because an injury to her back, received last November in a fall at the college, made other transportation unsuitable.

Miss Dilworth fractured her back in a fall when a bed sheet rope broke while she was attempting to escape from her third floor dormitory room during the annual observance of senior skip day. Seniors on that day traditionally skip classes, provided they can escape from the dormitory, which juniors seek to prevent.

She spent four months in Copley hospital at Aurora. Now, wearing braces, she is able to walk. She will rest several months before returning to the college.

BARKLEY BLASTS HIS COLLEAGUES ON ABSENTEEISM

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 10.—The habit of many senators to occupy their seats only during roll call votes or when legislation in which they are interested is being debated came in for heated criticism from senate leaders today.

The outburst was touched off by a quorum call during debate on the lend-lease bill. Vice President Truman solemnly announced that "49 senators having answered to their names, a quorum is present," while it was plainly evident that only 20 senators were on the floor.

The discrepancy between the announced attendance and the number actually present was due to a senate custom under which senators known to be in the capitol or the senate office building are registered as present.

No Excuse, Barkley Says

Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.], however, his face livid, leaped to his feet and shouted there was no excuse for such a showing. "The United States senate has reached an all-time peak of irresponsibility in its attendance on this floor," he declared.

Several senators rose to explain to Barkley that three committees were in session and many of the absent senators probably were there.

"The committees ought not to be in session when the senate is sitting," Barkley retorted. "Out of respect for appearances we ought to be on the job and appear as if we were doing our duty, whether we are or not."

Gallery Laughs

Barkley's statement brought a burst of laughter and applause from the galleries, in violation of senate rules, but no senator thought to complain to their chair about the breach of etiquet.

Sen. LaFollette [Prog., Wis.], chairman of the joint committee on reorganization of congress, echoed Barkley's criticism and formally notified the senate he would insist on enforcement of a senate rule requiring that senators may not absent themselves without permission.

"Does that mean we can't step out the door to speak to a visitor?" asked Sen. Taft [R., Ohio].

"Of course not, this isn't a fifth grade classroom," said La Follette.

Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], after counting noses, reported to Barkley that the 42 senators who by then had ambled in, 19 were Democrats, 22 Republicans, and one Progressive.

BIBLES NOT BOMBS CAMPAIGN OPENED HERE FOR $250,000

The Holy Bible was designated last night as not only the textbook of democracy but also the living spirit of that way of life when 500 clergy and lay leaders of Chicago's Protestantism met in the Palmer House to launch Chicago's participation in the 3 million dollar campaign of the American Bible society. Its slogan is "Bibles Not Bombs for Tomorrow's World."

President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston university, Boston, Mass., pointed to the Bible's role in the growth of true Americanism. Robert T. Taylor, a general secretary of the Bible society, emphasized the world's need of Bibles.

Dr. Marsh said that 33 million copies or portions of the Bible were distributed last year, and that it is in ever mounting demand. Eleven million copies will be needed this year by military personnel, in prison camps, and by people of liberated areas, it was pointed out.

Chicago's quota is $250,000. Nathaniel Leverone, Chicago manufacturer, presided at last night's dinner.

Jury Concurs in Capone Indictment for Killing

A coroner's jury yesterday concurred in the indictment of Mat Capone, 37, youngest brother of Al Capone, in the slaying of Jens D. Larrison, alias James D. Larkin, last April 18 in Capone's Hall of Fame tavern at 4839 Ogden av., Cicero. Larrison was shot to death in the tavern and his body was found in an alley at the rear of 1337 S. Kildare av. Capone, who was arrested March 2 and indicted by the grand jury, is in county jail awaiting trial in Criminal court.

JURY COMMENDS DETECTIVE FOR FATAL SHOOTING

Detective John McDonagh of the Warren av. station was commended yesterday by a coroner's jury for fatally shooting Peter Chapman, 38, a Negro, in the back room of a barber shop at 2441 Lake st. the night of March 27. Chapman died Saturday in Bridewell hospital. The jury found the shooting was justifiable homicide. McDonagh and his partner, Marvin Nelson, were summoned to the barber shop on a report that Chapman was threatening people with a revolver. When detectives arrived, they said, he raised his revolver as if to shoot and was immediately shot by McDonagh.

State Pays $3,850,007 to Pensioners in March

Payments amounting to $3,850,007 were made to 122,708 persons in Illinois last month under the old age pension program, Raymond M. Hilliard, public aid director, said yesterday. An additional $31,634.37 was paid by the state for medical care of old age pensioners.

U.S.O. LETTERS FAKED IN CHAIN DONATION PLOT

Circulation of chain letters on bogus united service organizations stationery, urging the receivers to write to a wounded service man and to wrap "a couple of dollar bills" around the note, was disclosed yesterday by Jeffery R. Short, president of the Chicago U. S. O. council.

Short said such letters turned up in Milwaukee and Chicago on the same day, and the names used were the same. Persons receiving the letters are asked to write the service men in care of a civilian.

The letters have been turned over to the postal authorities.

'WAY OF LIFE' IN YUGOSLAVIA IS SHAPED BY TITO

Censorship Law Hints Government's Course

BY CLAY GOWRAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 10—Marshal Tito, the 53 year old former metal worker and Communist underground leader, has promised his country two things after the war—a federated Yugoslavia and a good representative government.

A tremendous task lies ahead of him. Yugoslavia never has been united with all its units pulling in the same direction. Before the war the Serbs were on top and the Croats, Slovenes, and other nationalities lacked equal rights. Hatreds were formed that may not be eradicated for years.

Despite the suffering it has caused, the war has brought together in the same cause thousands of men of all the Yugoslav nationalities to fight against a common enemy. Their unity in battle may provide a foundation for unity in peace.

Tito appears earnest in his desire to give Yugoslavia a democratic government. But his conception of democracy is not that of the United States. One does not have to be in Belgrade more than a few days to realize this.

Critics Quickly Stilled

Critical Yugoslavs are careful not to talk openly against Tito's government or his Partisans. Tito's philosophy is that everything, every mind, must be directed fully against defeating the Germans: Any one voicing criticism hinders the government in prosecuting the war, therefore is an enemy of the government and must be treated as such. Critics are arrested, and altho treated well in jail are given to understand just what could happen to them. When they emerge after 10 days or so they do not talk any more.

A recent case, involving a certain Prof. Krstich of Belgrade university, gives an indication of what Tito's democracy probably will be. At a dinner at which a high government leader, Dr. Ivan Libar, was a speaker, the professor heckled him, interpreting with academic logic the Partisan promises of democracy. He was ejected.

The newspaper Borba, official organ of the Communist party, of which Tito is a member, had this to say about the incident:

"There are people who demand that every one be permitted to have what he wants and say what he pleases. They want freedom for such advocates of fascism as Krstich. They call that democratic freedom. But they are mistaken if they think democracy consists of that. . . . There is no freedom for the enemies of freedom."

Censorship Law Passed.

A censorship law passed last Nov. 13 says in part:

"Military censorship will forbid publication or distribution of statements in films, as well as in the mail or dispatches, which . . . are directed against gains of the national liberation struggle and its successful continuance, as well as those which belittle gains of that struggle. . . ."

For citizens of Yugoslavia the punishment is by military court and and can involve both imprisonment and property confiscation. For foreign correspondents it is expulsion.

Both the Borba's comment and the censorship law point to the same conclusion: "Freedom and democracy" are for those who follow the way of life laid down by the liberation movement.

Tito's Will Likely to Rule

Tito has promised to hold an election as soon as possible after the war. He is expected to keep his promise.

So it appears that after the war the government may be decided by the people of Yugoslavia. Who are the people? Illiteracy is high and political intelligence is scarce. The rural peasantry will follow the lead of its local leaders. The local leaders are Tito followers, of course. Completing the circle, the government will be the one they desire and what they desire is the fulfilment of Tito's will.

A word about possible foreign influences. With regard to the United States and Britain, they are going to be small. Tito and his Partisan government like and respect both nations but want to keep them out of Yugoslavia, politically and physically, for two reasons.

Tito wants Yugoslavia and the world to know his own liberation army is chiefly responsible for liberating and rebuilding the country, and he is afraid of foreign political and economic encroachment. He saw what happened to the liberation front movement in Greece when the British stepped in.

Too Cold for Swim

Yesterday's sunshine was warm, but Mrs. Franklin Willis and her daughter, Carol Patricia, found the lake too cold for a swim at Oak st. beach. [TRIBUNE Photo]

A beaming sun, a low wind and a temperature of 79.8 degrees created false impressions of midsummer yesterday and at least two brave Chicagoans learned the hard way that Lake Michigan is still too cold for swimming. Mrs. Franklin Willis and her daughter, Carol Patricia, fled to the Oak st. beach in the afternoon for a refreshing dip, but postponed their plans until another day when a cautious sampling of the water turned legs blue.

RENTS RAISED, 1,500 QUIT VITAL REFINERY JOBS

Lake Charles, La., April 10 (AP)—A controversy over house rents closed the $75,000,000 high octane gasoline refinery of the Cities Service corporation here today in a stoppage which the national war labor board declared "must be terminated immediately."

The board at Washington asserted the plant shutdown involving about 2,500 workers was seriously interfering with the war effort.

Plant workers said they remained away from their war vital jobs in protest against notice that their rents would be raised in the privately owned Maplewood Housing corporation project near-by.

Spokesmen said they had been advised that rents would be increased, effective April 1, from $54 to $66 a month on the larger houses and proportionate amounts on smaller units.

The housing residents held a mass meeting last month and set March 20 as a deadline for adjustment of the rents but action was postponed pending further negotiations. They refused to report for work today after negotiations had broken down.

SENATE PASSES BILL EXTENDING LEND-LEASE ACT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 10—The senate today extended President Roosevelt's authority to grant lend-lease aid to foreign nations until June 30, 1946. The extension bill, already passed by the house, was sent to the White House for Presidential signature.

The senate's action was taken by voice vote after an amendment offered by Sen. Taft [R., O.], which would have banned the extension of lend-lease agreements into the post-war period, was defeated by a tie vote.

After the roll call on the Taft amendment, Vice President Truman announced the vote as 39 yeas and 39 nayes. Thereupon Truman proclaimed in a loud voice he was breaking the tie and voting against the amendment. Truman's vote was unnecessary because under senate rules a tie vote defeats a measure and the Vice President can cast only an affirmative vote to break the tie.

Two Republicans Against

Only two Republicans voted against the Taft amendment, Austin [Vt.], who usually supports New Deal foreign policies, and Wiley [Wis.], who told the senate he disapproved of the measure because it would result in the cancellation of those contracts made under lend-lease which would not be completed at the end of the war.

The bill extending lend-lease, as it passed the senate, carries a house provision forbidding the President to make any agreements with foreign governments for post-war relief, rehabilitation, or reconstruction. Another section, added by the house, would permit the post-war fulfilment of agreements made during the war.

Taft's amendment would have stricken the second provision from the bill. He told the senate it provided a loophole thru which the administration could extend lend-lease into the post-war period.

Cites French Deal

Taft cited the lend-lease agreement with France under which that nation will receive 2 billion 500 million dollars' worth of goods. The agreement stipulates, however, that any balance undelivered at the end of the war can still be shipped and that France will have 30 years to pay for them.

After defeating the Taft amendment, the senate voted down, 46 to 28, an amendment offered by Sen. Langer [R., N. D.] which would have forbidden lend-lease authorities to include farm machinery in supplies sent to foreign nations. He said the shortage of farm equipment in this country did not permit any diversion to other countries.

Return to U. S. Impracticable

During debate on the Taft amendment today, Sen. LaFollette [Prog., Wis.] told the senate the amendment would force the President to come to congress for authority to make American resources available to other nations. He said congress never would get a statement of lend-lease finances if it gives the President exclusive control of its disposition.

Sen. Tydings [D., Md.], supporting the amendment, warned the senate against "signing a blank check" for lend-lease which would be used after the war.

Sen. Barkley [D., Ky.], administrative leader in the senate, declared President Roosevelt has solemnly stated lend-lease would end with the war. But, Barkley said, after the war much American lend-lease equipment will be left overseas and it may not be economically sound to bring it back.

HOW SENATE VOTED ON POST-WAR USES OF LEND-LEASE GOODS

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—The vote by which the senate today rejected the Taft amendment to the lend-lease bill: [The 39 to 39 tie was broken by Vice President Truman, who voted against the amendment.]

Navy Approves Wearing of Philippine Ribbons

24 MILLION BOND VOTE APPROVED BY PARK BOARD

The Chicago park district board yesterday approved inclusion of a 24 million dollar bond issue to expand and improve the park system on the ballot at the June 4 judicial election.

Robert J. Dunham, board president, said the plan called for the park district to sell six million dollars' worth of bonds annually for four years, beginning in 1946. If the maximum amount is not sold in any year the remainder will be sold later.

The issue will provide the financing for the first four years of a proposed 10 year program costing 60 million dollars which the park board announced in February. The program calls for 43 new parks, 18 new fieldhouses, extension of Lincoln park from Foster av. north to the city limits, and other improvements in existing parks.

CALLS ELECTION FOR HEIDINGER SEAT VACANCY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10—Gov. Green today issued a call for a primary July 31 and a special election Nov. 6 in the 24th congressional district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Rep. James V. Heidinger [R., Fairfield]. The district includes the 11 southeastern counties—Clay, Edwards, Gallatin, Hamilton, Hardin, Jefferson, Massac, Hope, Saline, Wayne, and White.

Introduction of Democratic bills by Sen. Daley [D., Chicago] and Rep. McCabe [D., Chicago] for congressional reapportionment caused only a ripple of interest in the legislature today. Minority members have refused to go along with administration bills.

"The Democratic bills are a fine example of gerrymandering," said Rep. Virkus [R., La Grange], sponsor of the remapping plans approved by Gov. Greer.

SENATORS LASH OPA THEORISTS IN MEAT PROBE

Black Market Blamed on Price Controls

BY WILLIAM MOORE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 10—Furious over the Roosevelt administration's meat famine, senators rocked the administration's artificial control of the nation's economy today with denunciation of burocratic theories that fail in their job of feeding hungry people.

A revolt that threatened the entire price control system came at a hearing by the senate agriculture committee, which for three weeks had been demanding that the government make possible greater production to end the food shortage.

There Chester Bowles' office of price administration took the most devastating licking of its stormy career when it admitted it cannot halt the black market in meat. Senators said the black market, created by government mismanagement, is the reason for the meat famine.

Agencies Under Fire

Every government agency accused of having a hand in paralyzing production of meat animals and ruining packers came under fire, particularly the war food administration and the department of agriculture.

Senators ridiculed the government position that permitting prices to rise sufficiently to insure adequate production would bring inflation. They raged against the meat and food subsidies by which they said Americans are being led to believe they are enjoying lower prices when they are actually preparing to pay the natural increase thru taxes—in the post-war period when they will have lower incomes.

Members of the committee demanded after the hearing that prices be permitted to rise enough to get production. Chairman Thomas [D., Okla.] said he will support legislation to force OPA to act in the crisis unless it voluntarily remedies the situation.

Packers Relief Denied

The drama of the hearing reached its height when a representative of the packers sprang to his feet to accuse the OPA of telling the committee it had reached a satisfactory agreement with the packers, when it is doing nothing to keep the packers from being forced out of business.

Calling attention to the burocratic theories, Wilbur La Roe Jr., general counsel for the National Independent Meat Packers' association said of the relief OPA had pictured for Packers:

"On pigs, they're going to give us X cents. We don't know what X is. The whole result of all these hearings is that we get X on pork and minus X on beef."

Under questioning by Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], the OPA said the army could materially alleviate the meat shortage of civilians by buying part of its meat from packing plants which operate under state, rather than national inspection.

Defends State Inspection

The OPA says the army now buys nothing but federally inspected meat, and that this system disrupts distribution around great metropolitan centers.

Lucas said that state inspection is thoroly adequate.

Denunciation of the OPA began with the questioning of Thomas I. Emerson, deputy OPA enforcement administrator, who told the old Washington story: He's on his way to another government agency job. But while still on the OPA payroll, he took occasion to scold the press and those who speak for the nation's hungry.

Emerson branded "utterly fantastic" the statement that 90 per cent of New York City's meat is sold in the black market. This statement had been made by Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] and others.

Examples of the testimony:

WHERRY — I'm telling you you can't buy a used car today except in the black market. Retail dealers will tell you they have practically lost all their business to the black market.

A Lot of Amateurs

WHEELER—You have a lot of amateurs in your enforcement division who are not beginning to cope with the violation that is going on wholesale under their noses. I can't understand why you people wouldn't find out, even if you didn't make an effort.

WHERRY—Sixty tons of meat is coming into Washington a week and being sold wholesale in the black market at 65 to 69 cents a pound. Do you think this is exaggeration?

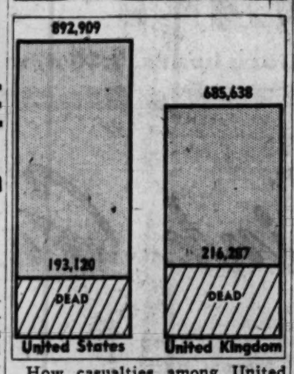
EMERSON—I do say your story that 90 per cent of New York's meat is sold black market is exaggeration . . . it's totally impossible.

WHERRY—That's what OPA said on the radio. The idea of OPA is to take a statement any senator makes and call it untrue. I don't want you to say over the radio that a statement of mine is untrue until you can prove it . . . Most of your men are academic and don't know what they're talking about. What's true in Washington is true all over the country.

EMERSON—We know generally what the facts are.

WHEELER—If you know what the facts are, there's something crooked in OPA—something rotten in your administration. . . . It's a joke the way you people are going at it. You've got a lot of people on your pay roll you ought to get rid of and get some investigators who know their business. . . . What do you think we senators are, a lot of children?

War Casualties



How casualties among United States forces compare with those of the United Kingdom.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 10—India ranks second to the United Kingdom in British empire war casualties since Sept. 3, 1939, to Feb. 28, 1945, Prime Minister Churchill disclosed in the house of commons today.

Announcing that 1,126,802 empire forces were killed, missing, wounded, or prisoners, Churchill said the United Kingdom total was 685,638; India, 163,486; Canada, 89,220; Australia, 87,256; New Zealand, 36,747; South Africa, 33,803, and the colonies, 30,652.

The figures exclude deaths from natural causes and civilian and merchant seamen casualties.

[United States casualties up to the early part of March totaled 892,909, Secretary of War Stimson announced on April 5. Army casualties numbered 798,383; navy, 94,526.]

ARGENTINE BEEF HELD IN MEXICO BARRED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—War food administration officials today said about 1,500,000 pounds of Argentine canned beef is tied up in Mexican warehouses. The reason given was that the meat has been barred by terms of a British-American-Canadian war time agreement covering imports of South American meats.

That agreement gives Great Britain exclusive right to buy South American exportable supplies of meat for use of the allied nations. The purpose of the agreement was to eliminate competitive bidding which might have had the effect of boosting prices above levels now being paid. Another objective was to conserve shipping.

Divided in Europe

Under the agreement, Argentine meats are moved to Europe and divided among British civilians and the armies of that country and the other allies. The United States pays only for that portion which is turned over to its army.

WFA officials said that after the agreement was signed, a group of Argentine shippers sent two consignments of canned meat to this country. One arrived at New Orleans where an embargo—designed to effectuate the British-American-Canadian agreement—prevented its being sold for consumption in this country. The American army requisitioned the consignment and paid the owners prices comparable to those being paid by the British, plus transportation costs.

Barred Admission to U. S.

The other consignment was diverted to Mexico where it was unloaded and placed in storage pending attempts of the owners to obtain permission for its admission to this country. This country has refused to grant such permission.

WFA officials said the British had offered to buy the meat but the owners had declined their offer.

In barring the meat, the American government was said to have been prompted by the belief that nothing was to be gained by importing Argentine meats during the war. Any diversion of South American meat to this country would reduce British and allied supplies in Europe and increase the demands upon this country.

OPA Shifts Apple, Berry, Tomato Prices ½ to 1 Cent

ARMY ACCUSED OF HIGH JINKS IN WARD'S STORES

Morale Sags and Service Suffers, Letter Says

After Hours Visit Told

7. On March 9 at 11:40 p. m. an intoxicated woman came out of a barroom in the company of an army private and an army lieutenant who also was intoxicated. They proceeded to Ward's store, where the lieutenant opened the door with his key, and all three entered. Affidavits in Ward's possession establish that this incident was witnessed by a San Rafael policeman, a navy shore patrol officer, and a military police sergeant.

The letter cited the following instances of misconduct at the Jamaica [N. Y.] store:

1. At a farewell party for an employe given in a public restaurant, the army major in charge of the plant became intoxicated, poured a pitcher of water over a girl employee's hat, invited other employes to drink with him and compelled them to pay for the drinks, and embraced and kissed female employees at the bar to their obvious embarrassment.

Ousted from Powder Room

He also made several attempts to enter the powder room, and was ejected by a restaurant employe. The restaurant proprietor complained that the major was ordering rounds of drinks indiscriminately and refusing to pay for them. His conduct toward female companions of male employes became so obnoxious that the male employes asked him to leave.

2. The army major in charge of the store repeatedly had liquor on his breath during business hours.

Face "Covered by Lipstick"

3. This major regularly forced his attentions upon the female employees in a manner destructive to store morale, saying that he was "lonely and wanted companionship." A former employe said under oath: "During the course of the evening [of the store party] I noticed the major was quite heavy with liquor and was making passes at many of the female store employees whose resistance was unavailing; in fact, his face had been quite covered with lipstick at the end of the evening."

4. On one occasion during the course of a merchandise meeting being held in the major's office during business hours, the major fell asleep in an upholstered armchair. When the telephone rang, it was necessary to shake him before he could be roused to answer the telephone.

Witnesses "Feared" to Talk

The letter said that the company was unable to obtain affidavits covering many other instances of reported misconduct "because the witnesses have husbands or sons in the army, and fear retaliation."

Col. R. P. Kuhn, in charge of Ward's seized Chicago properties, said he had reported the incidents mentioned to "proper authorities" and was awaiting orders.

Officials of Ward's refused to make public the names of the army officers involved until the army has requested and received copies of the affidavits which the company holds.

MRS. LUCILLE ERICKSON

Eugene Erickson, 23, a seaman in the navy whose wife, Lucille, 18, committed suicide Monday when she learned he had filed suit for divorce, returned to his home at 4927 Virginia av., Gary, Ind., yesterday with their daughter, Patty Ann, 2.

Erickson returned on a leave last week after serving in the Pacific, but did not visit his wife, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albie Pettit, 1706 Warren blvd., said yesterday. A few months ago Mrs. Erickson had filed suit for divorce charging cruelty, but withdrew the bill. Her parents said the service of the papers was the first she knew of Erickson's cross suit. She took poison.

An inquest will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in the county morgue.

TRACE WRECKED FEDERAL CAR TO STUDEBAKERMAN

An automobile of the federally owned Defense Plant corporation, which was found wrecked on a safety island at 91st st. and South Chicago av., at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, was abandoned by Bernard Finnegan, an official of the Studebaker corporation at South Bend, Ind., South Chicago police learned yesterday.

The car was found piled up on the island, but the driver had fled, police reported. The license number was traced to the Studebaker corporation, which had leased it from the government agency, it was learned. The car was removed to a garage at 8836 Mackinaw av.

O. M. Darling of South Bend supervising engineer of DPC, said last night that Finnegan had reported to insurance investigators that he had fallen asleep at the wheel. Darling said he would insist that, because the car had been abandoned after it was wrecked, it be repaired and that the company "not allow Finnegan to drive a DPC owned car again."

A Phone Thief—That's Newest Shortage Wrinkle

St. Paul, Minn., April 10 (AP)—Here's the latest on the telephone shortage: Miss Delia Youngman told police that some time during the night some one pushed up a window in her house, snipped a cord and stole her telephone.

COURT UPHOLDS JOLIET IN FIGHT ON LABOR CAMP

A temporary order restraining two contracting firms from proceeding with work on a proposed 37 acre trailer camp three-quarters of a mile south of Joliet until federal attorneys answer charges of near-by residents that the camp would create a public nuisance was issued by Judge Michael L. Igoe in federal District court yesterday.

The action was brought by 112 property owners living on the outskirts of Joliet, who asserted thru their attorney, John P. Haley, Joliet, that the camp was intended to house 200 Jamaican families who would work in the Elwood ordnance plant, 15 miles south of the trailer camp site.

Haley told the court that construction of the camp would cause property values to deteriorate and create a condition detrimental to the health and safety of the plaintiffs.

Hearing on the injunction was continued until April 20, when the temporary order will be dismissed or a permanent injunction issued. The contractors restrained are the J. P. Miller Artesian Well company, 8826 Ogden av., Brookfield, and Elmer Gust of Oshkosh, Wis.

Hole Cut in Door Yields Burglars $8,000 Loot

Joseph Gaffin, 716 Buena terr., a war worker, reported to police last night that burglars who cut a hole in the door of his home stole clothing and jewelry valued at nearly $8,000, including two mink coats, a silver fox coat, and a string of pearls. The pearls belonged to his daughter, Mrs. J. Edward Klein. Gaffin's wife, Jeanette, owns a millinery shop.

PLAN TO EXTEND INSPECTION LAW ON MEAT BARED

A new meat handling program, designed largely to make more meat available on home tables, to stimulate stock production, and to eliminate the black market, will be put into effect soon by the office of price administration, it was disclosed yesterday.

The general plan was outlined by Edwin S. Janssen of St. Paul, Minn., president of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers, at an associate directorate meeting in the Palmer House. Later Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, admitted that a new meat program has been formulated, but said no details had yet been announced.

The principal move in the new plan will be the extension of federal inspection of slaughter houses to city and state inspected slaughter houses, Janssen said.

F. D. R.'S TRUSTEE PLAN IN PACIFIC IS 'HOT POTATO'

Opposition Flares in Democratic Ranks

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 10—The question of post-war island bases for defense of the United States has become a hot potato for the architects of world peace at the approaching San Francisco conference.

President Roosevelt is opposed to the United States taking title to the Pacific islands American forces have wrested from Japan. His objection is that such retention of the islands as American territory, tho it would serve as the outer line of our defense in the Pacific, would contravene the Atlantic charter in which the powers renounced territorial aggrandizement.

Mr. Roosevelt is in favor of placing the Japanese islands in a trusteeship under the new league of nations to preserve peace, with the United States acting as the trustee responsible to the league. This trusteeship would take over not only the Japanese islands conquered by American arms but the mandated territories of the Wilson league of nations and any colonial or other dependencies that might voluntarily seek such status.

Opposition Boils Up

What would happen if India, Burma, Malaya or the Dutch East Indies should seek transfer from British and Dutch rule to a league of nations trusteeship is a question that will be aired if the Roosevelt plan is pressed.

Secretary of State Stettinius announced last week that the trusteeship proposal would be considered by the five big powers before the San Francisco conference. Today he was not so sure. He thought it was still possible.

In the meantime, so much opposition to the trusteeship for islands needed for American defense has boiled up in and out of congress that the project is now fraught with all kinds of embarrassment for the administration. It turns out that the President's own party is shot thru with such opposition. Within the last few days Representatives Hebert [D., La.] and Mahon [D., Tex.] have introduced resolutions in the House declaring that the United States should retain possession outright of the Japanese islands for national defense. They have been deluged with pledges of Democratic support.

Scoff at Argument

Opponents of the Roosevelt trusteeship scheme scoff at the argument that annexation of the Jap islands to the United States would represent territorial aggrandizement. The islands are of no value economically, in fact would be a liability in every way except that of furnishing a location for naval and air bases for national defense.

In the senate the sentiment in favor of outright cession of the islands to the United States is so substantial that the adoption of the trusteeship plan at the San Francisco conference might lead to a reservation to senate ratification of the peace league charter.

Brooks' Viewpoint

"The American forces taking these islands," said Sen. Brooks [R., Ill.], "stopped the advance of the enemy on Australia and held back the Japs at terrible cost of life and resources. We should hold every island we have captured which our naval and military leaders deem it desirable to utilize for the future defense of America in the light of the modern development of the instruments of war.

"What may be developed in the nature of cooperative effort in relation to some islands should be considered after we have determined which islands, in the light of the best advice of the men who led our forces in battle, are essential to our future protection. This will give us even greater strength in helping to preserve the peace of the world."

The American delegation to the San Francisco conference continued today its consideration of proposed amendments to the Dumbarton Oaks peace league draft. Secretary Stettinius said that the delegation decided to act on all questions by majority vote. He looked for unanimity but minority views could be presented to the conference. No information would be given out, he said, until definite decisions have been reached.

DAY by DAY on the FARM — by GAIL COMPTON

April 10, 1945.

An examination of the hay fields shows an unusually strong and early growth of alfalfa but a spotty growth in the clover fields. The farm should harvest a large first cutting of forage.

The alfalfa plants are about four inches high and mat the ground thickly. The first cutting is destined for the silos to furnish grass ensilage for the beef cattle. The farm has had a great deal of success in feeding hay silage and this year it proves an extra boon because the farm will be short of corn and unable to use any for silage.

The clover field on the west side of the farm has not come thru as well as expected. Last year the field was in oats and some of the grain lodged, covering the ground and preventing the legume seedlings from getting a good start.

Some Clover Killed

Wet spots also killed some of the clover. The hay taken from this field will be dirty as there still is the straw from the lodged grain clogging the field. The hay will be fed to the sheep.

The pastures are coming along perfectly and in a few more weeks, if the weather continues warm, they will be able to offer the herds plenty of feed. Right now the grass still is too skimpy to make good pasture.

The small tractor and the big caterpillar have been busy readying the old corn land for oat seeding at the Wheaton farm. The "cat," pulling a three bottom plow, roars along in fourth gear at a speed of nearly seven miles an hour. It can turn over a big piece of ground in a day. The little tractor, with a two bottom plow, chugs along more slowly but still does a good job.

Cows Await Pasture

The plows are set to cut about five inches, this being just enough to cover the corn stalks. The fields then are disked and dragged in one operation and seeded to oats.

Almost all of the manure now has been spread on the fields. This was a tremendous task, complicated by the fact that little was moved during the winter because of the heavy snows. The men make a practice of putting the heaviest applications of the soil builder up the slopes in the fields because the rain washes it down eventually to the lower ground.

The Guernsey cows will start their spring freshet of milk as soon as pasture becomes available to them.

Another reading of the thermometer in the black oak showed 58 degrees in the trunk while the outside air was 62 degrees.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

[This is the third of a series of articles on asparagus.]

After the asparagus planting trench has been dug 24 inches deep, as described yesterday in this space, the bottom six inches of the trench should be refilled with small stones to insure ample drainage. An inch of sand should be placed over the stones, two inches of sand mixed with compost or leaf mold, three inches of compost to which some manure has been added, and then three inches of black dirt. After these materials have been placed in the trench, it will have been refilled to within nine inches of the surface.

The asparagus crowns should be placed on the black dirt about 18 inches apart, with the crowns and buds up. After placing the crowns, cover them with two inches of loose black dirt or topsoil mixed with sand. As the plants germinate, additional loose soil should be returned to the trench, always leaving enough foliage to nourish the plants. The trenches should be completely refilled by late July.

DE MILLE GROUP OPENS FIGHT ON TYRANNY IN U. S.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 10 [Special]—Aimed at the abolishment of political tyranny, national headquarters of the De Mille Political Freedom Foundation were opened here today.

The foundation, which will have branches thruout the United States, was organized by citizens who protested the principles which recently cost Cecil B. De Mille his job on a national radio network because he refused to pay his union a $1 political assessment.

Spokesmen for the organization said there would be no fees for membership and financing will be by voluntary contributions.

Frank P. Doherty, one of the members, said: "The foundation is organized to insure the right of every one, union or nonunion alike, to be politically free. It favors unions and the right of men to bargain collectively.

Opposed to Coercion.

"Mr. De Mille's union assessed him $1 to oppose a political measure to be voted upon by the voters of California. Mr. De Mille refused to pay the assessment. The union, in suspending him, denied him the right to work.

"The De Mille Foundation denies the right of any majority to force upon any unwilling minority its political views. We oppose coercion by any business, industry, or union which compels any one to support or oppose any political party, candidate, or measure."

De Mille in a statement said:

"Appeals of countless numbers of Americans, at home and overseas, who are seeking leadership in the fight against political oppression compel me to accept this responsibility. I am not obligated to any individual, organization or group—other than the American people.

Sees Threat to Liberty

"It is unimportant that I, as one American, was denied the right to work because I refused to pay a $1 political assessment, but it is important that other Americans have realized the threat to the liberty and the necessity for organization to defend it.

"They are the people who have created and named the foundation.

"I welcome to this foundation the heretofore great unorganized force of the many millions of Americans who still believe in the Constitution of the United States and in the right of the individual to be politically free.

"I am sure the dollar I refused to pay will return priceless dividends to the American people."

Unpaid Transit Board Urged; Bankruptcy Problems Faced

The New York Way

Success of New York's port authority over a period of 25 years has been due to the high quality of the men composing its unpaid governing board, members of the Union League club were told at a luncheon yesterday by Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the authority.

Austin J. Tobin

Tobin said he had not studied the proposed Chicago terminal authority plan, but that it would be unfortunate if it followed the precedent of the metropolitan transit authority law and paid its board members $15,000 a year—or any appreciable sum.

"I know of nothing that has added so much to the character and reputation of the Port of New York as the honorary service of its commissioners," he asserted. "It has provided us with directors of wide experience and wisdom, most of whom never would have considered a salaried position."

Protection to Members

The system, Tobin said, had removed the board members from the character of office seekers and from slurs which are often the price of public office in a democracy.

The proposed Chicago transit authority would not only pay the seven board members, but would allow them to fix extra compensation for the chairman. This Tobin called an "unfortunate arrangement." He also criticized the overlapping powers of the board chairman and the general manager. All board members, he said, should be free from detailed tasks and responsibility for administration should be on the manager.

Ready Response for Bonds

Tobin said that since 1924 the New York port authority had issued bonds for 466 million dollars and had expended 240 millions on new construction. The authority's bonds are secured only by revenues from its self-liquidating enterprises, but its credit is so good that a recent issue for 12 million dollars sold at an interest rate of only 1.53 per cent. These securities have no backing from taxes.

The New York authority built the Holland and Lincoln tunnels and four huge bridges now in use. All were designed by the authority's staff.

Tobin was introduced by Joshua D'Esposito, federal engineer.

A Financial Maze

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Legal difficulties that have been given slight consideration in discussions of the proposed Chicago metropolitan transit authority favored by Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green as a solution for Chicago's traction ills began to loom yesterday as major obstacles to early formation of the authority.

The surface and elevated lines, which the authority would buy with 87 millions of borrowed dollars, are in bankruptcy and under the control of Judge Michael L. Igoe of the federal District court. To get them out, admittedly, will not be easy; it is doubtful if this could be done within six months at best.

The city has asked the court to submit its buying price—75 millions for the surface lines and 12 millions for the "L"—to the security holders.

Owners Want Money on Line

The security owners have announced they will not accept these prices until it is certain the city money is available. This certainty cannot be achieved until the authority law has been approved, with a franchise ordinance, at a referendum slated for June 4, and has been tested by the Illinois Supreme court.

Undoubtedly some of these actions will be speeded up, if investment bankers find bonds of the authority, secured only by earnings, worth purchase.

Bankruptcy law is exacting in many respects, however. The interests of investors, in a strict order of priority, must be protected; and the court must find that the price offered represents a fair value.

1942 Unification Rejected

In 1942, a unification plan for the two lines was approved by the city, the court, and the investors. The paper valuation was 179 million dollars. This plan, based on a 1941 franchise ordinance, was rejected by the Illinois commerce commission as financially unsound.

This ordinance was drawn under a state law enacted in 1929. The "L" surface trustees have a plan to resubmit the scheme, much amended, to the commission. The city would prefer to scrap this plan, but is keeping it alive at the request of the court, at least until June 4.

Judge Igoe has laid the valuation problem in the lap of the securities and exchange commission, designated by bankruptcy law as advisor in such matters to the court. The SEC may need six months to report. Until it does, the court is unlikely to pass the city offer on to the security holders.

LEWIS SCHOOL RADIOS STOLEN

OPA GETS TOUGH; HITS FOOD STORE POINT CHEATING

The area office of price administration yesterday announced it had started to bear down on food stores which are holding out on their ration bank deposits. Marion W. Isbell, area director, named eight stores as defendants in suspension cases in which each was accused of shortages of points in deposit envelopes. They are:

Stephen A. Kryslanski, Whiting, Ind.; Lorenz Food mart, 5246 Fullerton av.; Richard Sklenar, 2340 S. 12th av., Maywood; Albert Wishnick, 3500 Cortland st.; Schneider's market, 750 North av.; Herbert J. Goldstein, 3574 Armitage av.; Highway market, Lyons, and Werner Doellstedt, Griffith, Ind.

Six other retailers accused of overdrawing their ration bank accounts and made defendants in suspension actions are F. A. Duplesses, 1548 E. 53d st.; Polonia Sausage company, 2060 Milwaukee av.; A. A. and L. B. Abrams, 1743 E. 55th st.; Louis Ursitti, Chicago Heights; Alice Behm Utpadel, Wheeling, and Oscar Warnke, Chicago Heights.

MAYOR, SIX AIDS ARE RE-ELECTED IN LAKE FOREST

Lake Forest held its usual quiet city election yesterday and returned to office seven officials who ran for reelection and a new city treasurer. Mrs. Calvin Beauchamp, city clerk, observing that the uncontested election was one of the lightest in history, disclosed that it cost the taxpayers slightly more than $2 per vote to conduct the annual election.

Mayor Charles F. Clarke was elected to a third one year term with 190 votes. J. Russell Heitman also received 190 votes to become the next treasurer, succeeding Edwin G. Lindemeyer. Others reelected to one year terms were Roy S. Wells, supervisor for Lake Forest since 1918, and William Harding, marshal and collector.

Four aldermen reëlected for two year terms were Keith Carpenter, 1st ward; Edwin Roseman, 2d; Thomas Pester, 3d, and Eugene H. Leyle, 4th. The Citizens' Party ticket was drawn at a caucus Feb. 18.

RAIL EXECUTIVES OPPOSE LAW TO ELECTRIFY LINES

Conversion of locomotives from steam to diesel power on railroads entering Chicago would be more suitable than complete electrification of the roads, rail executives said yesterday at a meeting of a city council subcommittee headed by Ald. Cohen [4th]. The subcommittee is considering a proposal by Ald. Kells [28th] for an ordinance to require electrification of railroads.

C. H. Longman, assistant to the vice president of the North Western railroad; J. P. Kiley, assistant general manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul, and Thomas J. Barnett, assistant general attorney for the Santa Fe, said locomotive power could be converted gradually to diesel as the steam engines become obsolete, but electrification would require complete wiring at once of every railroad yard and switch track in the city.

Chicago railroad problems cannot be compared, they said, with New York's electrified roads, which do not handle a comparable volume of freight. J. H. Cooper, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad, said his company is improving its steam locomotives and is opposed to electrification or dieselization.

FIND WOMAN BEATEN

Miss Harriet Hirschfeld, 35, of 4933 Kenmore av., was removed to County hospital early yesterday by police after she was found, severely beaten, at Wells and Erie sts. She told Detectives Edward Hart and Thomas Downs she had been drinking with two Negro women.

TROUBLESOME WAR PRISONERS ARE SEGREGATED

Many Resent Pro or Anti-Nazi Label

(This is the concluding article in a series by a Tribune reporter who recently visited five large camps for German prisoners of war in this country.)

BY CARL WIEGMAN

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

American officers at prisoner of war camps said they operate on the principle that the only good German is a German who is working hard to relieve the man power shortage of the United States. They do not concern themselves with Nazi and anti-Nazi debates unless they interfere with work and discipline.

Camp commanders said that at first the Nazi leaders among the prisoners had the quaint idea that they would run the camps, designating the amount of work to be done by each prisoner. They were soon disillusioned. Troublemakers were shipped to special camps. Protection was given to every prisoner who felt fear for his safety.

At Camp Ellis, Ill., Col. C. P. Evers established a separate compound for prisoners who said they needed protection. Since last August, the number of prisoners in this compound has grown from 160 to 330, altho no effort has been made to gather recruits.

Night School Classes

Camp Ellis has 656 prisoners attending night school classes in English, other languages, history and geography, mathematics, science, commercial subjects, drawing, and other studies. The teachers are all prisoners, some of them doctors of philosophy. American officers make sure that no class is used as a medium to teach Nazi doctrines.

Maj. Thomas J. Spalding, intelligence officer of the army service forces depot, Memphis, Tenn., said most of the German prisoners there resent being classified as pro or anti-Nazis.

"They insist they are only Germans," he said. "Many of them look on the Nazis simply as loyal henchmen of the ruling party machine, much as Americans look upon the loyal henchmen of any big city machine. It is not a matter of ideology so much as it is personal advantage to belong to the machine. We had one man here who complained bitterly because somebody called him a super-Nazi."

Frugality Comes First

Camp commanders agreed that many of the Germans' instincts for frugality and craftsmanship seem to be greater than their desire to serve Hitler.

At Camp Shelby, Miss., prisoners accidentally left an ice pick in a dough mixing machine and it was ground up with the dough. They reported the accident to the American sergeant in charge of the bakery. He rebuked them for carelessness and ordered them to throw the dough into the garbage.

"Ach, nein, nein," the camp commander said the prisoners told him. "We mustn't waste 700 pounds of dough. Let us bake it and use it in our mess. We'll tell everybody to be careful, so no one will break a tooth."

Take Pride in Work

"The German doesn't seem to know how to loaf on a job," remarked Maj. John M. Moore, prisoner of war camp commander at Fort Custer, Mich. "Those with special skills take pride in their work as craftsmen. Needless to say, we make use of those qualities of industry and craftsmanship."

Camp commanders also reported that prisoners respond to any kind of competition, working their heads off to beat another team. Fort Custer has a shop were prisoners rebuild electric motors. After each motor is rebuilt, it is tested, pulling a load. When a motor fails to meet the test, the prisoner who rebuilt it is ribbed unmercifully by his mates, the officer in charge of the shop said.

"Get a load of that slang! I oughta' ankle in there and read the riot act to those kids!"

Again in Court

Joan Berry as she testified in paternity suit against Charles Chaplin yesterday in Los Angeles court. [Acme Telephoto]

Los Angeles, Cal., April 10 (AP)—Joan Berry begged Charlie Chaplin to marry her and give her baby a name but she was spurned, his 24 year old former protegee testified today in the retrial of her paternity suit against the comedian.

He said: "That's not important, Joan. My career is important." Miss Berry quoted Chaplin as replying. "You can go to New York and have the baby, and in two years every one will have forgotten. It won't interfere with your career."

This, the red haired mother testified, ocurred five months after three alleged intimacies with Chaplin at his Beverly Hills home in December, 1942, which she again admitted.

Earlier she recounted a scene in which she said she asked Chaplin why he was going with Oona O'Neill, now the comedian's wife.

"Te told me he was sorry for her as she was living in a $28 a month auto court cabin," testified Miss Berry, "and that he was being nice to her because he knew her mother well."

4 WORKERS SUE DAIRY FOR $12,200 IN OVERTIME PAY

Suit for overtime pay and penalties totaling $12,200 was filed in Superior court yesterday by four employes of the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., who alleged they received only straight time for work of more than 44 hours a week from Oct. 24, 1938, to April 10, 1943. The employes and the overtime judgments they asked are: Edward A. Chill, $1,600; Henry Kantzer, $1,700; John Schuster, $1,100, and Evert Mink, $1,700. Each man also seeks his "double damages" rights of twice the overtime due under the labor standards act.

ASKS CIVILIANS FOR RED POINTS TO FEED EUROPE

Jamestown, N. D., April 10 [Special]—A plan to collect 500,000 red ration points in the next 10 days, and millions more later, to purchase from the civilian market large stores of meat and butter for shipment to "the starving people of Europe," was launched here today by Glenn J. Talbott, president of the North Dakota Farmers' union.

He proposed that civilians pledge themselves to a meatless and butterless day each week, regardless of whether they produce the food themselves, as in the case of farmers.

"We hope to collect half a million points by April 20," Talbott said, "so that the first shipload of food may be on its way to Europe before the world security conference opens in San Francisco on April 25."

It Won't Stop There

"But we're not going to stop the drive on April 20; we hope to get more than 500,000 points."

All those desiring to indicate they are not "personally isolationists," Talbott said, will turn in their red points, "tighten their belts," and help feed Europe's hungry people.

Altho his appeal, in a radio broadcast last night, was directed to the people of North Dakota, Talbott said he hoped the plan would spread quickly thruout the nation.

He sent copies of his speech, embodying his proposal, to the headquarters of farmers' unions in 28 states, to their national headquarters in Denver, and to its office in Washington.

"We have nearly 30,000 farm families in North Dakota and I believe all of them will make substantial contributions of points," Talbott explained. "In addition, we are calling on other groups, churches, schools, and labor, civic and veterans' organizations, to join in the campaign."

Points Rolling In

Red points started rolling into the farmers' union offices here immediately after the broadcast last night and continued today, Talbott said. He was unable to estimate how many had been received.

He directed that the ration points and stamps be turned over to local OPA offices or to the farmers' union which will act as the donor's agent and submit them to the OPA. Thru OPA channels, the points finally will reach Washington and will be turned over to the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

Asked where he expected UNRRA to buy meat and butter in the civilian market when many housewives who have the points frequently are unable to find such food, Talbott replied:

"There's plenty of meat in the country. We're producing more than we ever did before.

Pressed for his idea of the location of available meat in the civilian market in such quantities as UNRRA would need under his plan, Talbott said he did not have that information.

He said he hoped to collect the 500,000 points before the San Francisco conference as a demonstration to the foreign delegates that "rationing has not been too tough for the people of this country."

Speaker Green Returns; Eye Still Discolored

Springfield, Ill., April 10 (AP)—Speaker Hugh Green of Jacksonville returned today to preside over the Illinois house after a week's absence which he said was caused by injuries received when he was attacked last Tuesday by a man he had prosecuted 13 years ago while he was Morgan county state's attorney. The speaker's right eye was discolored.

THE CIO AND THE SOLDIERS

The discharged veterans employed at the Dodge-Chicago plant have received a plan, proposed by the United Automobile Workers' union, of which most of them presumably are members, for the protection of their seniority rights in relation to those of employes without military records. They decided that they did not want to accept the union's plan until they had heard what the employer proposed. This, in itself, is a departure in labor relations as they have been conducted in the last few years, during which direct contact between management and employe has been discouraged as if it were unwholesome.

The union's seniority proposal does make some concessions to the veterans. Employes at the Dodge plant, and in most other plants having union contracts, have to serve a probationary period before they are counted regular employes. Under the union scheme, the veteran who went to work at Dodge-Chicago could be laid off at any time during his probationary period, just as any other new employe could be, but once he finished the probationary period the term of his military service would be added to his seniority. In effect, this would put most of the veterans now working at Dodge-Chicago at or near the top of the seniority list once they became regular employes, since the plant did not begin hiring until two years ago. The arrangement, naturally, would apply only to veterans who never worked in the plant before, since seniority of those who left it to go into service is protected by the draft act.

The union officials who proposed this plan may regard it as a considerable concession to the veterans, and indeed it is, from their standpoint. The officials are, after all, paid from the dues of the existing employes in war plants, the vast majority of whom have had no military service, and as paid representatives the union officials have an obligation to look after the interests of these civilian workers. The fact that concessions are being made to veterans indicates awareness of the danger that a wedge may be driven between workers who stayed in war plants and men who have come back from the war looking for jobs.

The union plan protects to some considerable extent the veterans who have already returned. Obviously, it will do no good to men who return after the plant starts laying off help, because they will never be able to get a job. However generous the plan may appear to the union, the public and the veterans may think it otherwise. There will undoubtedly be pressure for statutory provisions to give veterans greater seniority rights, even at the expense of existing employes.

CONSISTENCY, THY NAME IS OKLAHOMA

On the same day that the United States senate received a resolution from the Oklahoma state house of representatives calling, in flossy language, for the establishment of a "federation of the world," it received a second Oklahoma house resolution and a concurrent resolution from the Oklahoma house and senate.

The house resolution for the world superstate said that mankind was indivisible. The second house resolution denounced Mayor La Guardia for letting the gin mills of New York stay opeh after midnight and demanded that the curfew apply equally to every one. We thus find something of a schism in the Oklahoma soul. On the one hand, the house wants to unite the world. On the other, it indicates it would be content to unite New York City with the rest of the country. It first contends that everybody, everywhere, in every nation, can be governed by a single rule of law. It then argues that New York City is seceding from the Union.

Where we really find difficulty in following, however, is when the Oklahoma house and senate combine to urge universal military training, because "every able bodied American owes it as a duty to his country . . . to help defend the United States whenever it is attacked" and because "our record of unpreparedness cries aloud" for the adoption of universal training.

The house had just got thru advocating a super-state on the ground that it would lead to lasting peace and make possible the elimination of armaments. It comes right back wanting every youngster to pack a rifle. Perhaps it wants to raise this army to make war on New York cafe society, but we wouldn't be sure. There was a hairpin turn there somewhere in the reasoning, and we got lost off the sled.

AMERICA FIRST!

In the senate debate on lend-lease Mr. Taft and Mr. Vandenberg, among others, spoke in terms which the vast majority of Americans will approve. These gentlemen and some others, including Mr. Brewster, are in no mood to regard the United States as a soft touch for any nation that comes around with its hand out.

Mr. Brewster called attention to the fact that the United States can no longer be regarded as a creditor nation. He reminded his colleagues, on the authority of the department of commerce, that by last September we owed the world 6 billion dollars on short term account and had less than half a billion coming to us. We have been losing gold steadily since the war began because our purchases abroad have far exceeded our commercial exports. In the aggregate, on long and short term account, we now owe the world more than it owes us.

It was in view of such facts that Mr. Taft and Mr. Vandenberg could speak as effectively as they did on lend-lease. Mr. Vandenberg reminded his colleagues that, in addition to the 34 billion dollars already given to allies, no less than 28 billion dollars have been committed in the form of unexpended balances. He asked for "an over-all survey of what obligations this country already has made before we are asked to submit to further commitments for the post-war period."

Mr. Taft went on to insist that lend-lease gifts come to an abrupt halt with the end of the war. He was not opposed in principle to foreign loans for reconstruction, but he emphasized the folly of throwing money around in the hope of buying good will with it in foreign lands. That can only wreck our economy, already threatened with a post-war inflation, without doing any lasting good overseas; and good will is not for sale.

Among New Dealers and their sycophants, including the Wall street internationalists, this kind of talk is heresy, but it is not heresy to the American people. They are not ashamed to put American interests first and to keep them there. That is what they expect their government to do. The note struck by the senators in the lend-lease debate is popular even tho their views did not prevail. The American people are only waiting for the opportunity to echo and reecho it.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT CODES FOR COLONIALS

Francis M. Forde, Australian vice premier, addressed the conference of empire delegates in London on the theme that the San Francisco meeting this month should concern itself not only with the Dumbarton Oaks peace scheme but with raising living standards thruout the world. "We feel strongly," said he, "that the powers and functions of the proposed economic and social council should be strengthened so that world organization may in practice be a potent force in raising living standards and promoting economic advancement in all lands."

It was appropriate for Mr. Forde to bring this matter to the attention of the leaders of the British empire at this precise time. Australian troops are busy in their former mandated Pacific islands cleaning out the Japs left behind in the American advance. Conditions which obtained before the Japanese invasion may soon be expected to be restored. They badly want correction.

Arthur Veysey, Tribune war correspondent, who spent some months with Gen. MacArthur's forces in these areas, has just described these conditions. Before the war, the mandated area was run by and for 4,000 white inhabitants, most of them Australian and British, who were plantation and mine operators and traders. From among the native population these overseers had levied a labor force of 39,000 indentured workers, who worked on contract for three year periods.

The natives were paid the magnificent sum of 10 Australian shillings [$1.61] a month. The government of Australia leases plantation sites and concessions tax free to the white exploiters, assists them in recruiting labor from the native villages, and provides them with police protection to insure that the natives won't run away or offer trouble. Who pays for these services benefiting the whites? Why, the natives, of course. A head tax is levied, so that the white man collects back again practically all of that handsome salary of $1.61 a month. The only right enjoyed by the natives—and it is by no means universal—is to help designate their No. 1 police boy to assist the Australian government overlord in keeping order among the rest of them.

It will be quickly conceded that these facts are a cogent argument in support of Mr. Forde's contention that living standards in certain parts of the world badly want improvement. Mr. Forde should know. So should his brothers in the imperial rule assistance association—or is that the name of the Japanese party that was just dissolved? Mr. Forde and his colleagues in the Australian government should realize the urgency of the situation and refuse to wait for the San Francisco conference. They ought to start effecting reforms at once.

For gentlemen with their declared abhorrence of substandard living, it should be an intolerable thought that human labor should receive only $1.61 a month, and not even be permitted to keep that. The Australian mandates are crying for the establishment of a fair employment practices act. Maybe the natives would pass that up if some responsible empire spokesman would declare Lincoln's emancipation proclamation as governing their condition.

We shall look forward with interest to the course of improvement Mr. Forde and his colleagues will pursue before the San Francisco conference. We might have more confidence in their good intentions if there were not quite such a manifest belief among the gentlemen who did not come to their present station in order to preside over the liquidation of the British empire that if there is to be any general improvement of living standards in the empire's depressed areas, it is the mission of this country to effect it. We do not see any one in London or Canberra reaching for the cash drawer, except, perhaps, to ring up a "No Sale" on some lend-lease transaction.

We should be rather more reluctant to believe that the design is, as usual, for this country to foot the bill if the Australian government were not in the habit of tendering a bill for $3 for each coconut tree knocked over by an American bulldozer in restoring the mandated islands to Australia. A dominion so little reckless in its handling of cash is not likely to embark upon social service crusades, even if the reward is to be self-gratification over some trifling alleviation of the misery of a considerable number of fellow human beings.

Wonder if this army has revived the mournful ditty of 1918, dedicated to the mess sergeant, "Don't Bite the Feed They're Handing You."—Detroit News.

THIS WAS VIENNA

If Vienna, too, becomes a region of blasted rubble, as seems likely, she will have many mourners in many lands. The reasons for this sorrow have been recorded in countless books, among which we will choose Stefan Zweig's "The World of Yesterday," written shortly before his suicide as a refugee from the city of his birth. In speaking of the spirit, the atmosphere, that was peculiarly Viennese before the World Wars, Zweig put the matter in a brief and quotable way. If there must be requiems, his voice should be heard.

* * *

"There is hardly a city in Europe where the drive toward cultural ideals was as passionate as it was in Vienna. Precisely because the monarchy, because Austria itself for centuries had been neither politically ambitious nor particularly successful in its military actions, the native pride had turned more strongly toward a desire for artistic supremacy. . . .

* * *

"Here all the streams of European culture converged. At court, among the nobility, and among the people the German was related in blood to the Slavic, the Hungarian, the Spanish, the Italian, the French, the Flemish; and it was the particular genius of this city of music that dissolved all the contrasts harmoniously into a new and unique thing, the Austrian, the Viennese. . . . It was sweet to live there, in this atmosphere of spiritual conciliation, and subconsciously every citizen became supernational, cosmopolitan, a citizen of the world. . . .

* * *

"Only the coming decades will show the crime that Hitler perpetrated when he sought to nationalize and provincialize this city. . . . Whoever lived there and worked there felt himself free of all confinement and prejudice. Nowhere was it easier to be an European."

RENDEZVOUS WITH SPRING

At dawn I take a vagrant road
Past rivers gently flowing,
Thru orchards bright with pink and snow—
Don't ask me where I'm going.

I wander far from blaring towns,
From streets of maddened mortals;
I seek dear lands of quietude,
I'm bound for springtime's portals.

The noon will find me on a hill
With violets new-peeping,
Or by a river, free at last,
Awake from winter sleeping.

Some road that was not built by men
Shall lead my feet, unresting,
Thru bramble bushes, friendly-like—
Companions in my questing.

When sunset tints the distant hills
And shadows long are growing,
I'll be far out from streets and towns—
Don't ask me where I'm going!

Final Test of Spring Bonnet

With a caution that befits such occasions, Mrs. Flibberty removed her new spring bonnet from its box. She didn't want to disturb her lord and master [that's a laugh] on the near-by couch. After trying the hat at various angles for 15 or 20 minutes she decided she might as well loose the bad news.

"Darling! . . . Darling! Darling! Well, it's about time you paid me some attention. Do you see anything different? No, not the slip covers; my new hat. I bought it at the Bawn Tawn this afternoon and it only cost—well, the saleslady said it looks perfectly gorgeous on me. Don't you think so? It's just too cunning how they've combined a fly swatter with a well-filled ash tray. I'll bet that McSfuss woman will have a nervous breakdown when I wear it to church next Sunday. And I got a frightful bargain, too. Aren't you thrilled? Dear, put down that horrid old newspaper and tell me what you think of my new hat."

"I think it looks swell. It's the nicest hat of all you've owned. I like it very——hey! What's the idea of wrapping it up again?"

"I'm exchanging it tomorrow. There must be something terribly wrong with it, for it's the first hat I ever bought that you liked. Boo-hoo-o-o."

K. B. writes: "My son was killed in action and I am the beneficiary of his insurance. I am 78 years of age. The veterans' administration sent me a form for election of mode of payment and this form indicates choices for persons 30 thru 69 years of age. What I want to know is what happens to those of us over 69?"

Beneficiaries over 69 would be paid under option I for that age group, that is, the veterans' administration will guarantee at least 120 monthly payments to the beneficiary, with such payments continuing thruout the first beneficiary's life time. If the beneficiary dies before receiving all of the 120 payments, the remainder of such payments will be paid to the next eligible beneficiary. At your age, the payments would be $9.44 for each thousand dollars of insurance.

E. L. C. asks: "As the dependent mother of a deceased veteran, I receive a pension. If I should remarry, would the pension be stopped?"

The pension would not be discontinued provided that dependency exists notwithstanding such marriage. In any case of remarriage, however, a new determination of dependency by the veterans' administration is required.

THE BREAKING POINT.

IT has often been said that each and every one of us has our breaking point under certain conditions of stress and strain. When this time comes, the body may react in a variety of ways.

Some encounter headache, rapid heart action, shortness of breath, abdominal pain, indigestion, fatigue, or muscle paralysis. Nervousness, irritability, and depression may be pronounced. During the financial crash of 1929, there was so much pessimism that the suicide rate rose.

What causes our minds to play pranks such as these? A combination of overwork, associated with an unfavorable environment, may be responsible. A conflict is present which is disturbing the personality. This may develop in the tired business man, the stenographer, or the housewife. In some instances, the patient is to blame; in others, he is not. Many of these factors can be lumped together and termed "social-economic disorders."

For obvious reasons, one can readily see why a few men in the armed forces go to pieces. Some chaps who are capable of carrying on useful employment as civilians are unable to grapple with the routine and the strain of basic training. Their previous occupations make it difficult to adapt themselves to regimentation and the usual duties of a soldier. Unsettled conditions at home, financial worries, or an interrupted romance may cause considerable anxiety.

Others can withstand this phase of military service but become unnerved upon reaching foreign soil. The hardships have now increased several fold. Proximity to the danger zone as well as thoughts of broken family ties may create additional worry. If this is survived, despair may finally develop after many days of trench warfare with little or no sleep, erratic mealtimes, monotonous food, along with mounting casualties including one's best friends.

This state should be differentiated from fear altho the two are comparable. To the civilian and the noncombatant, apprehension is not related to life or death. As a matter of fact, in the face of danger, all of us become perturbed. It is a natural phenomenon. Many of our greatest men have been demoralized after a trivial mishap.

The terrors of modern warfare may be sufficient to shatter even the best of us. The soldier uses the sum total of his personality to combat fear and, if he fails, symptoms result. He may become panicky but he does not necessarily encounter the manifestations described above. That one person may come to the breaking point before another does not mean weakness or inferiority. Each nervous system differs, as does the shape of the nose, the color of the eyes, and the curl of the hair. Under ordinary circumstances, these individuals are able to handle normal responsibilities. The ability to reason is not lost. They are not insane nor should they ever be considered as such.

To the majority of victims, the war's end will bring considerable relief. Proper adjustments to difficulties resulting from this combat will help others. The remainder must school themselves to practice a type of control which demands only a little response from the nervous and other body structures. By stabilizing our emotional life, months of suffering may be prevented and years of happiness reserved.

FIND OUT

H. L. writes: I am engaged to a man whose two sisters and a brother are humpbacked. I love him very much and do not like to ask how so many in his family were afflicted but my parents tell me that if we have any children, they will be humpbacked, too. Can you tell me what the disorder comes from?

REPLY.

Hunchback refers to a number of conditions and few, if any, are passed from generation to generation. Tuberculosis may have found its way into the household, selecting the spine for its dirty work. Or, it may be that no one cautioned the children against round shoulders. You are entitled, as a prospective member of the family, to know the details. If it is not inherited, profit by their mistakes in rearing your own offspring.

The stomach is capable of destroying the mucus which seeps down from a draining sinus. Your nausea may result from psychic factors or an overzealous attempt to clear the throat.

Food for Thought Only

It is our personal conviction that the best selling books of the last year or so have had nothing to do with amber haired wenches who rioted in the reign of Charles II. They have had nothing to do with economics, hours for decision, just peaces, or what the marines have done in the Pacific. They have been cook books, particularly those like "How to Cook a Wolf," where the author spends far more time describing how the food looks and tastes than how it is prepared. Any one of these is good for a breathless, ecstatic evening. As escape literature in these rationed times, they are unparalleled until you turn the last page, wander to the kitchen and look wistfully in the refrigerator or, a modern Mother Hubbard, in the cupboard, and reflect that really there is little any one can do with a can of apple sauce, three years old.

This being true, the Chicago Historical society should draw a ravening mob Sunday when it opens a display of historical menus of the past century. The menus are the property of O. Andreas Garson of Oak Park, a gentleman associated with an industry the public is inclined to think has ceased to exist, that of meat packing. Mr. Garson claims he collects the menus because of the names scribbled on them, such as Woodrow Wilson, who took his mind away from a leg of beef at a dinner given him in England in 1918 on his way home from Paris to write his name for his aide, Adm. Grayson, or Stanley, feted on his return from darkest Africa in 1900, who still had the strength after 18 courses or so to scrawl his name on the menu. The names of the famous, and well fed, include Grant, Sherman, Theodore Roosevelt, Louis Pasteur, Mark Twain, and numerous others you may recall as having at one time had a hearty, beef trust look.

The oldest menu, 1845, is from the first place in America to have the elegant name of hotel, the old City hotel of New York. Well, hungry friends, here are a few of the things they ate, or tried to eat: First course, green turtle soup, a plate of boiled fresh salmon, boiled turkey, corned beef and cabbage, ham, beef tongue, lobster, boiled mutton, sweetbreads, stewed ducks and turnips, a mess of broiled pigeons. Second course: cold chicken, braised duck with olives, 18 dishes with French names. With appetites then fully aroused, they could next heave into roasted beef, chicken, goose, lamb, or veal. Dessert included pastries, watermelon, pies, and vanilla ice cream.

The first dinner served on the Chicago and North Western railway in 1880, included antelope with jelly. This, together with nine other courses, cost 75 cents. Another neat little dinner with a dish long forgotten was the 1905 dinner of a society called the Canadian camp. Its central dish was fillet of Borneon rhinoceros. Prince Henry of Prussia jerked this beast from the Berlin zoölogical garden for the occasion.

Still listening? Well, the Chicagoan, John B. Drake, once a year for 32 years entertained his friends with a game dinner. It was the talk of the fat people the world over. The Garson collection contains the menu for the 25th, which took place on Nov. 13, 1880, at the old Grand Pacific hotel here. The menu contained the most complete list of American game dishes that ever appeared at one time on any table and offered four courses—animal, forest birds, marsh birds, and waterfowl. Animal included leg of elk, loin of buffalo, saddle of blacktail deer, saddle of mountain sheep, and black bear, loin of moose, mountain bison, coon, jackrabbit, and seven other wild animals now as extinct as the gentlemen who gorged on them. There were also 14 varieties of marsh birds, 13 varieties of forest birds, and 27 varieties of waterfowl, including 17 of duck alone. [N. B.—They also ate the brant and the coot.] But this, O, hungry moderns, was not all. A few, a very few, of the accessory dishes: green turtle steak, frogs fried in crumbs, stewed terrapin, shrimp, lobster salad, and bluepoints.

Moral: Eat little, live long; never get your name on a menu.

HE SEES MORE BLIGHT

Chicago, April 7—Every citizen—especially every taxpayer—in the state should be grateful to you for your common sense analysis of the housing bills and the revelation of the fraud that is inherent in them in your editorial today.

The bills are a demonstration of one of the cleverest pieces of chicanery that the combination of professional public housers and less professional politicians has ever produced. In three of the five so-called companion bills a pretense is made toward implementation of private operation in slum reclamation. That is pure hokum. The sponsors know as well as I do that the laws will be impractical, ineffective, inoperative, and probably unconstitutional. So what do they care?

Behind this booby trap is the devastation contained in the two bills which expand public housing beyond all limits, make any house a slum by law, and permit the city to condemn as slum almost any piece of property in its limits. No place is there any pretense at eliminating the cause of slums.

Every place there is the inference of more public housing, more tax exemption, more subsidy, more blight—as you have revealed so aptly.

You have seen in the scheme a plan to expand public housing. It goes farther than that. It is part of a master plan to destroy private property, extinguish home ownership, institutionize housing, and regiment society thru distribution of shelter.

MORGAN L. FITCH.

HIGHER TAXES, NO IMPROVEMENTS

Chicago, April 8—In the year 1931 I acquired two vacant lots in Stickney township. I have done nothing with these lots since, such as erecting buildings. Neither has anything changed in regard to them. There are the same street pavement, sewers, curbs, sidewalks, etc., and the lots remain the same as the day I purchased them. Here is a record of the regular general real estate taxes I have had to pay each year from 1931 to the present time: 1931, $21.44; 1932, $16.48; 1933, $13.50; 1934, $15.88; 1935, $18.12; 1936, $20.60; 1937, $18.72; 1938, $19.52; 1939, $29.36; 1940, $30.68; 1941, $31.88; 1942, $33.56; 1943, $33.88; 1944, $34.48.

Please notice that the trend is always up and up and up. Where does the money go to? How is it spent? Certainly the service the general public gets is not improved in proportion.

ILLINOIS' SURPLUS—$145 PER VETERAN

CENTRAL PACIFIC, March 31—With all the talk going on about what aid shall be extended to returning service men, it's noticeable to many of us stationed overseas that the state governments seem content to leave most of it to the federal government. The propriety of this attitude I will not argue about now, but since it is a matter of common knowledge that almost every state in the Union has a tremendous cash surplus, it would seem that each state could at least make one simple gesture that would win universal approval of all the returning service men. Provide means that would enable each honorably discharged service man to get a complete set of civilian clothes at state expense, thus making it unnecessary for the service man to have to dig into his own meager savings for this purpose. A scrip book, a coupon book, or some other means could be used in lieu of a cash bonus to make sure that this benefit is expended for the purpose intended. His mustering out pay is doled out at the rate of $100 a month for three months and will only serve to maintain him for his current living expenses while he is preparing to adjust himself for his place in society.

ARMY SERGEANT.

PUBLIC HOUSING "FACTS"

Chicago, April 6—J. Soule Warterfield, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board issued a statement this week in which he stated that tax exemption of publicly financed housing would create unfair competition for privately owned rental property, and also increase the tax share for all private property.

Those persons who concern themselves with the tax exemption privileges of public housing rarely make it a point to go into the cost of maintaining slum areas, nor do they go into the matter of the attendant human misery.

Altho no formula has been advanced which will replace that of the United States housing act, whereby low rent decent housing can be made available to low income families, nevertheless a hue and cry is constantly raised by certain selfish interests against subsidy and tax exemption which make this possible.

An article which recently appeared in Work, a publication of the Catholic Labor alliance, stated that for every dollar paid in taxes more than $5 were spent by the taxpayers to maintain rundown areas, and that public housing stabilizes property values in surrounding neighborhoods, checks the spread of blight, reduces extra cost to taxpayers, and stimulates the building and construction industry.

According to Arthur Kruggel, past president of the Chicago Real Estate board, a study was made of one square mile of slum and blighted area in Chicago which revealed the astounding fact that the cost of servicing this square mile was $3,200,000 and the tax collected was $586,000—a loss or a burden to the city of over $2,600,000 a year.

Lists Four Point Air Policy; Urge Island Landing Strip

C. A. C. Forum Held

A strong national air policy that includes not only an adequate air force but bases essential to national security and overseas trade was declared last night to be a post-war necessity by G. M. Williams, senior vice president of Curtiss-Wright corporation.

Speaking in the La Salle hotel at the first session of the Chicago forum on aviation conducted by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the University of Chicago, Williams listed four minimum essentials of any national air policy:

1. An adequate air force of such strength and in such readiness as to preclude any successful assaults upon our country and its possessions.
2. Acquisition and maintenance of air bases essential to our security and our overseas trade.
3. Facilitation of the orderly and economic expansion of domestic and international air transportation and private flying.
4. Maintenance of a strong aircraft manufacturing industry.

Opposed to Subsidies

Williams expressed opposition to government subsidies for the aviation industry, but declared maintenance of research activities must call for developmental contracts and limited production of military models by the industry.

"It is of critical importance that we develop a national air power policy which will guarantee continuance of the air supremacy we now enjoy.

"We dare not become complacent, as we did after the first great World war," Williams warned. "The next threat of war may see aircraft so far advanced that our oceans lose entirely their protective significance. Allies may be helpless to save us from attacks which start from great distances and strike without warning. Los Angeles, Detroit—even Chicago—could be the next Pearl Harbor."

Sees No Rapid Changes

Williams warned against expecting revolutionary airplanes and practices in commercial aviation immediately after the war ends.

"Put it down right now that by far the majority of your post-war air travel, at least for several years, will be in airplanes little larger than those in regular airline service today," he said. "Nor in private flying either will you see the sky blackened with grasshopper planes."

The growth of air transport was discussed by L. C. Sorrell, director of research for the Air Transport Association of America and professor of transportation of the University of Chicago.

Seek Council Action

Immediate construction of an experimental air field on Northerly Island, in the lake off 14th st., was recommended yesterday at a special meeting of the Chicago Aero commission in the Morrison hotel.

Tentative plans approved by the commission, serving as an advisory body to the city council, call for a one direction air strip 2,000 feet long and 300 feet wide.

Cost of preparing the field for use by small, privately owned planes has been estimated at $2,000, to be paid by the city.

Could Start Work at Once

Merrill C. Meigs, chairman of the commission, said work on the project could be started as soon as the undertaking has been approved by the council and the Chicago park board.

The field has the approval of the civil aeronautics administration and will be operated during its experimental phase under auspices of the National Aviation Trades association, representing nonscheduled airport owners thruout the United States.

Roscoe Turner, Indianapolis, Ind., president of the NATA, who was present at the meeting, said his group had selected Chicago for the experiment because of the many advantages this city has to offer in proving that small fields are desirable in downtown metropolitan locations.

Wants City to Pioneer

As a post-war development, he pointed out to Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, that alternate locations suggested by Dunham would void the purpose of the experiment and take away from Chicago the opportunity to pioneer in testing the advisability of such centrally located air sites for national use.

Dunham expressed the thought that other members of the park board might inquire into possible hazards which planes taking off and landing on the Northerly Island site might constitute to the Adler planetarium, the Shedd aquarium, and the treasures of the Chicago Museum of Natural History.

Supported by Mayor

Mayor Kelly said he was heartily in favor of the development.

The centrally located site, Mayor Kelly declared, could serve as a near loop landing strip for taxi plane service between the downtown district and the airport. It also would constitute a desirable airport link between Chicago and midwest cities for quick air travel by executives into Chicago's business district, he pointed out.

PEORIA WORKS OUT OWN PLAN TO HELP VETS

Peoria, Ill., April 10 (AP) — This Illinois river city is solving its own veterans' rehabilitation problems. The Peoria Plan has placed all but three of the hundreds of returned war veterans in jobs and is ready to take care of the rest of the 8,000 Peorians in the fighting forces.

The plan was introduced by Dr. Harold A. Vonachen, medical director of the Caterpillar Tractor company, and is being carried out by Capt. Jake Haberle, who has an office in the United States employment service office.

The plan's principal purpose is to help the veteran adjust himself to some type of job that his physical handicaps will permit, providing he is unable to resume his pre-service job.

Other features include: A medical director who advises proper employment for handicapped veterans; a survey of all jobs that disabled veterans may fill is kept up to date; a vocational training committee helps him obtain schooling or vocational training; a reviewing committee checks thru each case and makes sure he gets complete assistance.

CIVIL LIBERTIES GROUP BREAKS WITH U. S. UNION

Affiliation of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee with the American Civil Liberties union was severed yesterday at a meeting of the board of directors of the committee.

Philip Wain, chairman, stated that the committee "can serve the cause of civil liberties more effectively if it is entirely free from the restraints imposed by affiliation" with the union. He did not amplify his reference to restraints.

Last December five directors of the committee quit in a factional dispute in which one group was charged with partisanship. One of the directors who resigned said last night that a new committee will be organized in affiliation with the national union. He said there was friction between the Chicago committee and the union over questions of political partisanship, racial troubles, "and the right of free speech for persons opposed to radicals and so-called liberals."

'WE ARE ALL CAPABLE OF MORE THAN WE DO'*

IN THESE CHALLENGING words, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy, points to a central truth in the teaching of this Science, namely that every individual has capabilities surpassing those of which he has been aware.

Further emphasizing this fact, and indicating also the practical results of its scientific recognition, Mrs. Eddy writes, "Business men and cultured scholars have found that Christian Science enhances their endurance and mental powers, enlarges their perception of character, gives them acuteness and comprehensiveness and an ability to exceed their ordinary capacity."*

Countless instances of this kind are on record. Through the understanding of Christian Science, writers have found their skill and usefulness increased, business executives have worked with greater assurance and success, men in the armed forces have been more resourceful, effective, and free from weariness, anxiety, and other distresses than they had thought they could be. And so on in other occupations.

The complete explanation of Christian Science and its method of releasing the latent capabilities of men and women, as well as of healing disease, is given in the Christian Science textbook,

CHICAGO HOUSING BILL VOTED; TAX BATTLE FLARES

Renew Fight Today Over Exemption Plan

BY GEORGE TAGGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10 — An eleventh hour battle against tax exemption features of the Chicago public housing program ended momentarily today with final passage of the key bill in the house. The fight will be resumed tomorrow with introduction of a bill to keep city owned housing on the tax rolls.

Altho the key measure of the Kelly-Green slum clearance series had passed in the senate without a dissenting vote, today's fracas in the house produced seven "no" votes plus a number of refusals to vote. The count was 120 to 7, leaving 24 members unaccounted for. Most of the members had committed themselves during the earlier peaceful progress of the measure or today's fight might have been more bitter.

See Big Burden on Others

Stanley C. Armstrong and Noble Lee, Chicago Republicans, and Clinton Searle, G. O. P. member from Rock Island, led the opposition to tax exemption for the proposed housing. All of them pointed out that lifting the tax load from some property makes the burden heavier for all other property.

"Under the housing act of 1934, as amended in 1938, the 100 million dollars of city owned housing will be exempt from taxation," Rep. Armstrong said. "When the old law was enacted the chief argument for it was that no federal money would come to Illinois for housing projects unless tax exemption were provided. That argument does not exist as to this new program. The city would go ahead without tax exemption.

"Already there are 8,500 dwelling units, costing about 50 million dollars, in Chicago free from taxation. The state is considering the purchase of an office building in Chicago costing 5 million dollars, also tax exempt. Last week we passed the traction bills, taking 3½ million dollars of taxes a year from Chicago's governments.

"I cannot understand why one man earning $2,000 a year should pay taxes while his neighbor in a city owned housing project, with the same income, pays no taxes. If this keeps up the only people left in Chicago to ride on the tax-free street cars will be those living in tax-free houses."

Rep. Lee recalled that in the last three sessions of the legislature bills were introduced to repeal the housing tax exemption law. He asked Majority Leader Homer B. Harris [R., Lincoln] whether the state administration will support a similar bill.

"I'm not in a position now to speak for the governor," Harris replied. "I will take it up with him."

Rep. Searle made a blistering attack upon what he described "this hodge-podge thrown in as a Kelly-Green bill," which would permit the city to condemn and purchase substandard property and keep it or sell or lease it to private interests for slum clearance purposes.

"It might be well for us and for his honor the mayor and his excellency the governor to stop, look, and listen," Searle said.

"I don't know what Mayor Kelly fed the governor. But go out on the Illinois prairies and you'll find people there are not much interested in spending money for every fish pool and Tom, Dick, and Harry idea. They have some old fashioned common sense.

'Out Dealing New Deal'

"You can't take property out of taxation, then turn around and spend more and more thru government. We're out dealing the New Deal. Who is going to pay the taxes?"

Rep. Burnsmier [R., Mason City] in voting "no" on the housing bill, said he favors the American system of home ownership and is opposed to "state socialized housing." Other G. O. P. members who dared the displeasure of the Republican-Democratic leaders by voting no were Representatives Jones of Tuscola, Laufer of Hampshire, Peel of Galesburg, Robbins of Augusta, Schaumleffel of Monmouth, and Searle.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

No woman in America should have to do this

AN OLD American custom has placed a needless burden on our women.

That custom is to put the laundry in the cellar of the average American home:

—where it is often dark and damp.

—where a woman must carry her soiled clothes down an extra flight of stairs. Often, the most dangerous stairs in the house.

—where she must race upstairs each time the phone rings, each time the baby cries, each time someone comes to the door.

—where, finally, she must stagger upstairs with baskets of wet clothes that would tax the strength of many a man.

The cellar-laundry is a nuisance, a danger, a waster of time, and a cause of much unnecessary hard work.

A crusade to move the laundry

We, at Good Housekeeping, intend to do everything we can to get the laundry out of the cellar and onto the first floor, where it belongs.

And we're renewing our crusade now—so the idea will be well entrenched by the time laundry equipment is again available.

To find out into how small a space we could fit a workable laundry, we planned one just nine feet square.

Then we built it here at Good Housekeeping. And washed clothes in it. And did the ironing in it. And found it wonderfully convenient. So would you!

If you had this first-floor laundry; you could keep an eye on the children, answer the phone and doorbell easily, do your wash in pleasant, well-lighted surroundings, and not have to carry anything up or down cellar stairs.

The day will come when you can have it. So small a space can be "borrowed" in many homes; or added without great inconvenience. It can easily be planned before a new home is built*.

And you can put everything in it. Our nine-by-nine experiment contains a tub, washing machine, ironer, ironing board, and convenient shelves. There's room left for a heated drier, too, if you have one.

Much of this equipment has been, or will be, written up in our editorial columns. Some of it appears in our advertising pages.

If you see it in either place, you know we have tried it out in the only laboratory of its kind maintained by a women's magazine.

Week in, week out, we carry on experimental work and investigation of products, because we want you to have confidence in every page of every issue of Good Housekeeping.

For your faith in us is our most jealously guarded possession. To deserve it, and to maintain it, we make you this pledge:

That at no time, and not for any reason, or any profit, will any page of Good Housekeeping—editorial or advertising—trade unfairly on your trust.

CON CON BACKED BY HOUSE GROUP; BIG FIGHT AHEAD

Kelly Democrats Pile Up Votes for Measure

BY ROBERT HOWARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10—A resolution favoring a constitutional convention was approved by the house executive committee today, but hard sledding on the house floor was indicated for the scheme to tamper with the state's basic law.

The "Con con" resolution was recommended for adoption by an 18 to 4 vote, getting the support of exactly two-thirds of the committee's 27 members. The Green administration and spokesmen for Mayor Kelly had made an intensive drive for the measure.

To go on the 1946 ballots, the con con referendum proposal must get a two-thirds vote in both houses. Rep. Cutler [R., Lewiston], former majority floor leader, surveyed the field and said he would lead a successful fight to kill the plan when it comes up for a house vote.

Backed by Kelly Men

"I vote aye now but I'll vote no later," said Rep. Rhodes [R., Normal], yielding to the pleas of Green leaders that the resolution not be bottled up in committee. It was introduced by Rep. Homer B. Harris [R., Lincoln], floor leader, and all the Kelly Democrats were on hand to vote for it. Some downstate opponents were absent.

Rep. Keller [R., Waukegan] said he has "strong feelings both ways on this matter." Keller had been under strong pressure to support the con cor plan.

Labor and agricultural leaders raised their voices against the plan for a war time tampering with the constitutional principles, tested by time and the courts, under which Illinois has achived its national leadership.

"Labor is afraid that a new constitution would be less friendly than the constitution under which we have been operating since 1870," said Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor.

Olander Opposes Measure

Labor has thrived under the present constitution, he asserted.

The strongest agitation for a new constitution comes from outfits crying the loudest for forced labor controls, said Secretary Victor A. Olander of the Federation of Labor, who also spoke at the committee hearing.

Constitutional revision should wait for five years after the war until fighting men and battle front laborers come home, said Thomas H. Humphries of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' union.

Should a constitutional convention be called, said Paul A. Mathias, representing the Illinois Agricultural association, public attention would center on revenue and reapportionment debates, while vicious changes could be slipped into other parts of the new document.

VETS TO STUDY CHRYSLER, UAW SENIORITY PLANS

Members of the United Veterans of World War II., a newly formed organization, representing a majority of the 3,700 veterans of this war employed at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, met last night at 6908 S. Western av. and prepared to present the corporation's job seniority plan for veterans and the CIO United Automobile Workers' proposal to a mass meeting to be held tomorrow night.

New officers of the veterans' group also were elected last night. Robert J. Kelter, 6416 Cottage Grove av., was elected to replace John Ford as chairman. Ford announced he was forced to resign because of illness. Paul Hunter was elected vice chairman, Joseph Silka was re-elected recording secretary, and G. De Bartolo, financial secretary.

Kelter, who also heads a committee of the veterans selected to invite a representative of the Chrysler corporation to the meeting tomorrow night, yesterday received from Robert W. Conder, company labor relations head, a letter which expressed the company's regret that it would not be able to be represented, but Conder incorporated the company's entire plan for veterans' seniority for their consideration.

A spokesman for the veterans revealed that both company and union plans would be presented to the veterans tomorrow night. It is planned, he said, to attempt to take "the best for veterans" out of each and "make our own veterans' job seniority plan," and to submit it to the union and company for adoption in the union contract.

2 G.O.P. GROUPS URGE GREEN TO OUST BRANDON

Say Welfare Bureau Run by Theorists

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10 — Two groups of Republican leaders recommended today that Rodney H. Brandon of Batavia be replaced as state director of public welfare, despite his reappointment by Gov. Green.

By unanimous action the executive committee of the Republican county chairmen's association asked that Brandon not be confirmed.

The committee's resolution was sent to a caucus of the Republican senate majority, where after extended debate a roll call showed sentiment 17 to 12 against the retention of Brandon.

Still Has Chance

The caucus action wasn't binding, and indications were that Brandon would be confirmed if he receives the nearly solid support of the 15 active Democratic senators. Chairman Carpentier [R., East Moline] called the senate executive committee into session tomorrow morning to consider the appointment.

Gov. Green didn't send word to either meeting, but one of the county chairmen said that all speeches there were based on the theory that they were "doing the governor a favor" by opposing Brandon. Most of the chairmen hold Green administration appointments.

"The social welfare workers who have surrounded Brandon are doing to the state government just what Harry Hopkins and his New Deal crowd in Washington have done to the nation," said Sen. Armstrong [R., Lawrenceville] just before the caucus.

Served Under Emmerson

Brandon was welfare director in the Emmerson administration and was returned to office by Gov. Green. Criticism of Brandon has been strong, partly on the basis that businesslike administration of his department has been wrecked by welfare theorists and partly on the ground that he has ignored the wishes of the legislators. In the caucus, some senators took the ground that it would be politically unwise to have a party fight made on one of the governor's major appointees.

Bill Would Add 150 Vets to State Highway Police

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10 — The state highway police force would be increased from 350 to 500 men by the employment of veterans of World War II. under a bill to be introduced tomorrow at the request of Gov. Green. Sen. Walker Butler [R., Chicago] will be floor manager for the bill.

U. OF I. SALARIES UP 1½ MILLION, SENATOR SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., April 10 — Sen. Peters [R., St. Joseph], who represents the Champaign-Urbana district, issued a statement today declaring that salaries paid the academic staff at the University of Illinois have been increased $1,527,629 in eight years. He replied to charges by Ernest Bernbaum, resigning professor of English literature, that culture was being sacrificed for material interests.

"Many times in the last years buildings have been eliminated in order to save academic courses," Peters said. "Even tho it is largely a professional school the college of liberal arts and science, in which Prof. Bernbaum is an instructor, is receiving the third largest amount out of our present appropriation. Agriculture leads with an appropriation of $2,319,733. Medicine is second with an appropriation of $1,791,452. Liberal arts and science is third with $1,357,023. . . .

"Since Gov. Green has been the chief executive the biennial appropriation to the university has increased by leaps and bounds. I consider him to be the most friendly governor to the university that the state has ever had."

SHOULD MANAGEMENT BE UNIONIZED?

A Statement by General Motors

THE National Labor Relations Board has ordered a bargaining election among the foremen and other supervisory groups of a Detroit automobile company.

This company is not a part of General Motors, but we are concerned with the principles involved.

This confusing action by the Board means that it is sanctioning and promoting the unionization of management personnel, in spite of the fact that the National Labor Relations Act includes as an employer ". . . any person acting in the interests of an employer directly or indirectly."

We are sure that Congress did not intend to approve unionization of management when it passed the Act.

The results if applied throughout industry would be bad for the management groups involved, bad for industry, bad for labor, bad for America.

Bad for Foremen

We think it would be bad for foremen if American industry should be compelled to make a change in its proven type of organization, which would unavoidably reduce the foreman's status, diminish his responsibility, authority and influence, decrease his opportunities for personal advancement.

In General Motors, foremen have always had important responsibilities and authority.

We have always guarded the status of our foremen, and have provided special training to improve their abilities, increase their efficiency and enhance their opportunities for promotion to even more important management positions. The great majority of General Motors' principal executives at one time were foremen.

We are convinced that it would be impossible for a foreman to follow both management and union leaderships at the same time, and under those conditions to carry on all his duties as they now exist. All elements of management must have a common objective.

It would obviously be impossible, for instance, for him as a fellow unionist with those under him, to perform his functions which relate to their working conditions, wages, promotions and assignments on the unbiased basis which is essential to good management.

THE POSITION OF FOREMEN IN GENERAL MOTORS

In General Motors, foremen are the MANAGERS of their departments. They participate in establishing management policies in both production and personnel matters. They have full authority to approve or disapprove the hiring, to supervise the work, and to make work assignments of the employes under their supervision. They initiate wage increases, transfers and promotions. They are directly responsible for the efficiency and safety of their group. They have full authority when necessary to take immediate, appropriate disciplinary action for violation of shop rules, and other improper conduct of their employes. They are the first point of management contact and make the first management decision on all matters relating to the employes under their direction.

Bad for Industry

From our experience both before and during the war, we are certain that the accepted American method of spreading managerial authority and responsibility among foremen—so that management is in close, direct contact with comparatively small groups of workmen—is the best and only sound method of handling day-to-day relations with the thousands of employes engaged in modern mass production.

Anything which would require a change in this set-up would interfere with employer-employe relations and with production.

For example, there have been many strikes in war production plants, particularly in Michigan. Charges have been made that workmen have been loafing in plants engaged in war production and that they are being paid high wages for not working. We are conscious that the public feels that there must be something wrong. The attempt to tear down the position and authority of foremen and to unionize members of management is importantly contributing to this condition.

Bad for Labor

As a matter of fact, the close-contact method is about the only way that management and labor can work harmoniously together in large organizations.

Much is said these days about cooperation. It would be a serious handicap to any hopes for teamwork and the pursuit of common interests, if anything were done to remove this facility for knowing and understanding each other.

It is our firm, sincere belief that loss of this close contact would make harmonious relations between management and labor almost impossible and would interfere with practical collective bargaining.

Bad for America

The removal of foremen from their present position as a vital, integral part of management would require reorganization of factory management on a basis far more complicated and decidedly less effective. Necessary factory discipline would suffer, worker efficiency would be impaired.

We believe the effect on you—on the public as a whole—would be very real.

It would interfere with the war effort.

It would make war materials cost more.

It would slow up postwar reconversion to civilian production.

It would delay adequate postwar output of cars, refrigerators, ranges, furniture—all the things people need so much and have waited for so long.

Finally—and, in the long run, perhaps most important of all—it would so increase production costs as to boost prices and the cost of living, and make the problem of reasonably full employment much more difficult.

Action Called For

When people have as deep a conviction about anything as we have about unionizing management, they ought to do something about it.

If the meaning of the National Labor Relations Act can be so confused as to promote unionization of management—and thus impair the effectiveness of the American production system of which we are all so proud—then the meaning ought to be cleared up.

General Motors believes—and hopes others will feel the same—that it is a patriotic duty, a duty to the foremen, to industry, to labor, and to the public as a whole—to oppose the unionization of management by every proper and lawful means.

That is our intention.

27,000 VETS ARE IDLE; DRAW JOBLESS PAY

Half of Discharged Men Apply

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—About 27,000 war veterans monthly are drawing unemployment pay from Uncle Sam.

Here in Washington there are 14,000 job openings in government and private employ. But 400 veterans monthly are getting unemployment pay.

The total number of civilians—exclusive of the 27,000 veterans—drawing unemployment pay in the nation is only about 100,000.

In poorer times, with jobs scarce, 27,000 men drawing unemployment pay would be a drop in the bucket. But the number of men discharged back into civilian life by the army and navy combined is about 65,000 a month. So, 27,000 getting unemployment pay monthly is almost half those discharged.

USVA Puzzled

The United States Veterans administration headquarters here says it doesn't know why so many veterans can't find work to suit them.

By special act of congress, a veteran unable to find suitable work applies for unemployment pay at his local unemployment insurance office. He must be available for work to qualify for the pay. If he qualifies, the local office pays him. Then the bill is sent to USVA.

It's different with civilians. Under the social security act a civilian, covered by unemployment insurance but unable to find suitable work for which he is available, gets paid by his local unemployment office. This system for civilians has federal backing but is not connected with USVA.

Nervous Trouble

At the Washington unemployment insurance office—as part of the explanation as to why 400 veterans should be getting unemployment pay in a city with 14,000 job openings—this was said: "Some of them are suffering from nervous trouble, or heart trouble, or shock."

An unemployed veteran gets $20 a week. The maximum unemployment pay that can be drawn is for 52 weeks. But not all veterans can go that long drawing on Uncle Sam. This is why: For each of his first three months of service, he is allowed eight weeks' unemployment pay, or a total of 24 weeks for his first three months of service. [He must have had at least 90 days' service unless discharged before then for disability.]

In order to draw those 24 weeks' unemployment pay, a veteran must have been unemployed all that time. If he's jobless only one week, then he gets only one week's pay. But for every month of service after those first three months he is allowed one month's pay.

Clayton F. Smith, County Board Head, Is 70 Today

Clayton F. Smith, president of the Cook county board of commissioners for 11 years, and his wife, Maymie, will celebrate his 70th birthday today with a party for 50 relatives. Smith has been county recorder of deeds, alderman of the 33d ward, member of the city finance committee, city treasurer, member of the board of local improvements, and deputy commissioner of public works.

CIO SLOWDOWN IN STEEL PLANT ORDERED TO WLB

Disputes over a new work schedule in the sheet and tin mill of Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation at Gary, Ind., which have caused the loss of 53,874 tons of sheet steel and tinplate needed for the production of food containers, army and navy quarters, shells, and other war materials, were certified to the war labor board by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, in Washington, D. C., yesterday.

Her action followed futile efforts made last week by William G. Murray, federal conciliator, to settle the controversy between the company and pickling line employes at the plant, which started March 11, when the company posted the speed up work rate.

Yesterday, on the day shift, five of the 25 employes of the crews of the three pickling lines punched their time clocks for work, but then left the plant without reporting to their department.

A RAILROAD?

WHY, IT CAN'T BE DONE!

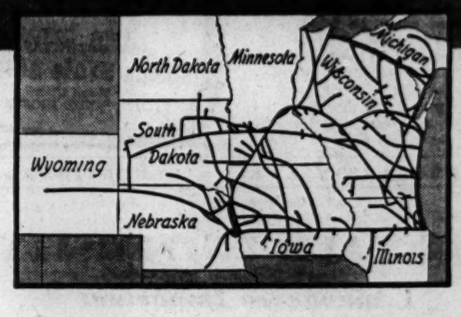
Some of Chicago's elite laughed at William B. Ogden when, in the late 1840s, he asked their support in building a railroad from Chicago to the West. They knew that the charter, granted in 1836, had been gathering dust for years. But Ogden, man of vision, was a determined soul, and by the end of 1848 the first 10 miles of railroad were completed.

Chicago's claims to distinction in those days were mud, a second rate river and a progressive spirit. Now the railroad had come.

The rails were of Norway pine, topped by strips of oak an inch and a quarter thick and three inches wide, with iron straps on top to support the cars.

The Des Plaines river, near Maywood, Illinois, was the "end of the line," and on this 10-mile right-of-way chugged and swayed the first trains to operate west of Chicago. That same stretch is one of the busiest in the West today, but back in 1848 it was quite an achievement to operate an occasional train at 15 miles per hour!

CHICAGO NORTH WESTERN SYSTEM



"North Western's" story has been one of steady progress during the past 97 years. Today, over its 10,000 miles of railway, has moved, and is moving, much of America's mighty war machine. You help to keep these war supplies rolling when you travel only when it is absolutely essential. Out of "North Western's" wealth of experience will come many new improvements and a finer transportation service—both freight and passenger—in America's postwar years.

Rummage Sale Reaches Field of Big Business

BY JUDITH CASS

THE FACT that rummage sales have become big business is reflected in the high respect which charitable organizations now have for their annual sales. Long time members of the rummage sale committee of the Women's Guild of St. Elisabeth's church, Glencoe, for example, are interested to see that the public also has increasing regard for rummage.

Mrs. G. Lyle Fischer, of the committee, reports that instead of looking for bargains, customers now search for scarce articles. Accordingly, the guild now pays more attention to storing and refurbishing the goods, so that a bright array of clothing, household furnishings, and even choice antiques, jewelry, china, and silver will be on display when the guild opens its rummage sale at 7 o'clock tonight in the church parish house.

The evening opening is an innovation also, planned especially for women who find it difficult to leave their homes or their work in the day time. The sale will continue all day tomorrow under the general direction of Mrs. Harold B. Salmon, and tho there has been a drain on the guild's rummage sources because of demands of various relief organizations, the committee has a large stock on hand.

North shore residents who responded to the appeal for clothing and white elephants from St. Elisabeth's church and to another from the Winnetka Congregational church will find, like Old Mother Hubbard, that their cupboards, and closets as well, will look rather bare. More than 200 women of the Congregational church are preparing for their annual spring rummage sale, to be held May 10 in the Winnetka Community house. Mrs. Don H. Rose is in charge of the event, which last year brought in more than $7,000 in one day in more than 25,000 transactions completed by thousands of customers.

On the Calendar

The Beverly Hills center of the Infant Welfare society has issued 1,600 invitations to four teas to be given April 20 in the homes of four members. The guests are the persons who have donated used clothing and other articles to the center's Roseland Thrift shop during the last year, from which the proceeds go to the Cornell Square station of the Infant Welfare. The tea hostesses will be Mrs. Lewis Barker, Mrs. Chester Kulp, Mrs. Hartley Laycock Jr., and Mrs. Albert Peters. Plans will be completed at a board meeting Monday in the home of Mrs. H. M. Witt. The shop has raised $3,000 during the first three months of this year.

The annual spring benefit of the La Grange Center of the Infant Welfare society May 5 in the Edgewood Valley Country club, will be an all day affair, with brunch, bridge, and a fashion show in the afternoon, followed by a dance at 8:30 p. m. Mrs. Leonard Vaughan Jr. is general chairman, assisted by Mrs. Norman Korfist and Mrs. George Borman.

For the first time in 25 years the spring benefit card party, which is given annually by the Sunbeam league, will not be held this year, due to war time transportation and rationing. Instead its members have decided on a series of small teas and book reviews to raise funds for its nursery kindergartens. The league will hold its annual luncheon for members April 17 in the Illinois Athletic club.

Here and There

At the annual meeting of the woman's board of the Travelers Aid society yesterday in the Racqu club, Mrs. William Friedeman was elected president, replacing her twin sister, Mrs. George Rose Jr. The other officers elected are Mrs. Willard S. Jaques, vice president; Mrs. Richard D. Nugent, treasurer, and Mrs. Ralph Ellis, secretary. Several of the board's 30 members will be present at the annual dinner meeting of the society April 17 in the Knickerbocker hotel.

The Alliance Francaise's first large benefit in many years raised almost $1,500 for the children's hospital in Bayeux, France. The hospital was given to the Alliance six years ago by Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, who hopes to purchase a new X-ray machine for the institution from the party's proceeds.

News of Births

Maj. and Mrs. Roger D. Shaw [Margaret Wilder] became the parents of a daughter, Judith, last Saturday in the Chicago Lying-In hospital. Maj. Shaw has been overseas since January, serving in Italy. Mrs. Shaw and the baby will join young Roger and William Shaw in the home of Mrs. Shaw's mother, Mrs. William H. Wilder, until Mrs. Shaw is able to take the children back to the house near Wright field, Dayton, O., in which the family lived while Maj. Shaw was stationed there. The children's paternal grandparents are the Arch Shaws of Winnetka.

Lt. and Mrs. William Merritt Belding [Jean Woolhiser] became the parents of a son, William Jr., March 30 in the Evanston hospital. Lt. Belding, son of the junior Hiram H. Beldings of Glencoe, is on duty with the navy in the Atlantic. Young Mrs. Belding and the baby will live with her parents, the H. L. Woolhisers, in Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Coulter [Mary Alice Leach] of Evanston are being congratulated on the birth of their second daughter April 3 in the Evanston hospital. The baby, who will be named Anne, has a 4 year old sister, Sally. The youngsters are granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Leach of E. Delaware pl., and Mr. and Mrs. David Coulter of Coral Gables, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Roberts [Mary Jane Schultz] of Evanston became the parents of twin sons, John Northmore and William Taft, March 26 in the Evanston hospital. The babies, named for their great-grandfathers, are the grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. Whitt Schultz of Highland Park and Dr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Rogerts of Chicago.

"Othello" Makes Erlanger Success With Robeson and Ferrer in Webster Production

In theater, the only performance that counts is the one you are seeing, and the long anticipated "Othello" that brought Paul Robeson, José Ferrer, and Uta Hagen to the Erlanger last night, is a better show than when I saw it more than a year ago in New York, probably in the doldrums of the late season slump. I still can't beat the drums that would herald unqualified triumph, for this "Othello" is no flaming sword of a production that slashes away all doubt, but despite a vast number of cast changes, some miserably inept, the production has been pointed up for Chicago and it has the undeniable mark of success.

The chief improvement, for my money, is Mr. Robeson himself. He was, of course, a natural for the role of the Moor. Tall, broad-shouldered, with a touch of barbaric splendor in appearance and with one of the richest voices in the world, he was the obvious Othello, if he could act the role. When I saw him before I had more doubts than convictions. There was too little fire, too much intonation. But last night there were glints of steel in that velvet voice and tongues of flame. He had moments of humor that were all Robeson and little Shakespeare, but when the barbs of jealousy began to prick, a touch of satanic sulphur began to smoulder. Whether or not you go all the way with this Othello, it is not one you will want to miss.

"OTHELLO"

Play by William Shakespeare, in Margaret Webster's production designed and lighted by Robert Edmond Jones, with music by Tom Bennett. Presented by the Theater Guild in association with Tom Hagerti [an American Theater society subscription] in the Erlanger Tuesday evening, April 10, 1945.

THE CAST

Roderigo	Don Keefer
Iago	Jose Ferrer
Brabantio	Francis Compton
Othello	Paul Robeson
Cassio	Ralph Clanton
The Duke	Louis Lytton
Lodovico	Ronald Bishop
Desdemona	Uta Hagen
Montano	Argus Cairns
Emilia	Edith King
Bianca	Nan McFarland
Gratiano	Louis Lytton

And others.

Mr. Ferrer's Iago, credited these record breaking months with a redoubtable job of show stealing, is a shade too pedestrian for a role that needs a touch of quicksilver. He makes sense as a plodding plotter, and he plants his barbs shrewdly, often with a quirk of ironical humor. You can't completely understand him when he speaks fast, and he sometimes goes after an exit line like a trout after a particularly delectable fly, but for many people he steals the show as Iago has been doing for centuries.

Miss Hagen's Desdemona is a willow wand of a girl who moves exquisitely in lovely costumes, but never gets below the cool surface of the part. And these three are all that remain of the original cast. Edith King, once the Bianca, now plays Emilia without any change of pace at all, so that Iago's wife seems a rather stupid trollop. But Ralph Clanton is a distinct improvement as Cassio. He is a handsome young actor with quirks in his eyebrows and a budding bravura style that might go places. As for being too young to succeed Othello in command, who is going to argue about that in the middle of a young man's war?

Of the others, Don Keefer has the idea back of Roderigo's gullibility, and Louis Lytton is capable as the duke, at least by comparison with his sad lot of courtiers. Miss Webster's direction flows smoothly without challenging splendor, and the same is true of Mr. Jones' utilitarian settings.

'Glass Menagerie' Wins Drama Critic Prize in New York

New York, April 10 (AP)—The New York Drama Critics' Circle today voted "The Glass Menagerie," Tennessee Williams' drama of life in an impoverished section of St. Louis, as the best play of the 1944-'45 season.

Ward Morehouse, drama critic for the New York Sun, said the play received nine votes on the first secret ballot.

"The Glass Menagerie" opened here on March 31, last day to be eligible for the 1944-'45 Drama Critics' Circle award. The play opened in Chicago last Dec. 26 and ran for 13 capacity weeks. It left Chicago for the purpose of opening in New York in time to be eligible for the drama critics' award.

"The Glass Menagerie" was named in 20 minutes, setting a new record for brevity at the circle's annual vote sessions. Other plays receiving votes were "Harvey," 2; "I Remember Mama" and "A Bell for Adano," 1 each. The critics made no award for the best foreign play of the season.

Orchestra Ends Tuesday Series on Heavy Note

Concert by Chicago Symphony orchestra, Desire Defauw conducting; Zino Francescatti, violinist. Presented in Orchestra hall, Tuesday afternoon, April 10, 1945. The program:
Symphony No. 4, D major ..... Johann Christian Bach
Concerto for Violin, No. 6, E-flat major ..... Mozart
"Pictures at an Exhibition" ..... Moussorgsky-Ravel
"I Palpiti" ..... Paganini

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

There was the substance of a good idea in placing side by side, at yesterday's final Tuesday matinee of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, music by the worldly youngest son of Johann Sebastian Bach, Johann Christian—the so-called "English"—Bach, and that by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, who greatly admired the older composer and more than once paid him the tribute of imitation.

But the comparison was deprived of validity by the neglect of two rather important factors: [1] Bach's Symphony No. 4, in D major, a sprightly and charming work, was played by Mr. Defauw with exactly the same number of strings he quite properly employs for Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique," completely overbalancing the woodwinds and brass, and giving a distorted impression of how this music sounded to Mozart; and [2] the Mozart performed, the sixth violin concerto in E flat played by Zino Francescatti, is a work of doubtful authenticity. Alfred Einstein, the eminent Mozart authority, even going so far as to state that the slow movement is "a crude forgery."

But what was more important to yesterday afternoon's audience than abstract historical comparisons, was that the Bach was played with heavy handed, almost Tschaikowskyian emphasis, and that the Mozart, spurious or genuine, turned out to be a dull piece, both inherently and in the clean cut but monotonous reading by Mr. Francescatti.

The violinist was completely in his element, however, when he returned to complete the program with Paganini's "I Palpiti," variations on an air composed while Rossini, a famous epicure, waited for his cook to prepare his fried rice for supper. All the usual Paganini bedevilments are there: The fiddle tuned a half tone higher, an entire variation in both single and double harmonics, double stops, octaves, arpeggios, exaggerated cantilena. All this was fried rice, not to say sirloin steak, for Mr. Francescatti, who devoured every technical hazard with great gusto and gave his public as much delight as any sword swallower.

When Francescatti played this piece in Detroit recently the audience applauded so much that the conductor, Karl Krueger, took offense and refused to conduct the remainder of the program, sending an assistant on to face the inevitable anti-climax. Mr. Defauw forestalled this possible embarrassment by placing the soloist last, tho by all rules of effective programming the noisy finale of Ravel's orchestration of Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" should not precede Paganini's slender tho brilliant variations.

But the final result would probably have been the same. Ravel's extraordinary instrumentation precludes a completely colorless performance, but it cannot prevent a perfunctory, unimaginative, tonally coarse reading—which was what the work received.

Fine Handwork Gives Beauty to Cotton Gowns

BY REA SEEGER

The gifted imagination of a world famous lingerie designer, after years of working with fine silken materials, has been turned to cotton creations. The results are as beautiful as the more sheer affairs. The new early summer cotton gowns, so exquisitely made under the direction of this genius, are tempting not only because of the fine handwork but also because of the cool, smooth sheen of the fine white batiste and the decorative details.

Because the gowns and costume slips are of cotton, the yardage is appreciably more ample than in the somewhat skimpy gowns made with the more scarce material. This batiste launders with ease. Tho all-white affairs are all that are available, a lot of trick contrast is achieved with colored thread fagoting in between the expertly contrived scroll motifs made with tiny rolled tape. For instance, a cool, white cotton gown with elaborate scroll pattern motif thru the diaphragm, the neckline, and the shoulder straps has a delicate spider web contrast of scarlet fagoting in between the cut-out outlines of these scrolls.

There are a half dozen good buys. There are slips that match the nightgowns. One model, a long sleeved nightgown, has lace gathered at the cuffs, down the chest panel, and around the round neckline. Another gown has a daintily embroidered yoke and tiny puffed sleeves edged with fine narrow lace.

Final State Group Meeting of Illinois D. A. R. Is Scheduled

Cancellation this year of the usual state conference of the Illinois society of the Daughters of the American Revolution gives added importance to the society's final state committee meeting of the current season, scheduled at noon tomorrow in the Wedgwood room of Marshall Field & Co. Mrs. Robert M. Beak, fourth division director, will preside.

Mrs. Robert M. Beak.

Membership prizes generally awarded at the state conference will be conferred by Mrs. Frederick A. Sapp, state membership chairman. The winner of the good citizenship prize—this year a $100 bond instead of the usual trip to Washington, D. C.—will be determined by Mrs. Ira E. Owen.

Mrs. J. De Forest Richards, state regent, plans to leave for Washington, D. C., to attend a national board meeting immediately after giving her yearly report and a summary of the state society's work during the year. The national organization has been granted permission by the office of defense transportation to conduct regular board sessions in order to continue the society's patriotic and war service program.

New Exhibition of U. S. Artists' Work Excellent

BY ELEANOR JEWETT

The Encyclopaedia Britannica collection of contemporary American paintings makes up the new exhibition which opens tomorrow in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. The exhibition will continue thru May 13. Yesterday saw a preview of the exhibit and a cocktail party late in the afternoon at the Stevens hotel. The exhibition does not need the stimulus of cocktails to make its impression upon the visitor, however. It is an excellent show, full of vigor and vitality and extremely characteristic of the contemporary art which is popular in progressive circles.

Sometimes it is interesting to see the people responsible for a painting that catches your eye and there were a number of artists yesterday at the opening. One of the familiar faces was that of Frances Chapin, who long has been associated with the Chicago Art institute school. Frederic Taubes was present, and John Steuart Curry [from Wisconsin], Thomas Hart Benton [his great friend], and Marshall Glaser, William Schwartz, and Copeland Burg.

The collection of paintings fills the east wing galleries comfortably. The walls are not crowded. Rockwell Kent's "Polar Expedition" is one of the attractive canvases in the first room, and Randall Davey's "Rainy Day at the Track" strikes a nostalgic note in the same gallery. Among the outstanding paintings is Peter Hurd's stirring "Fourth of July." War is brought close in the realistic and tragic "Guerrillas" by Joseph Hirsch. Two paintings, "Strawberry Soda" by Lily Harmon and "Family Unit" by Alexander Brook, present typical American scenes in a beautifully competent manner.

Probably the most American canvas in the collection is the exciting "Batter Up" by James Chapin, a glorious picture to signalize the opening of the baseball season. Jerry Farnsworth shows perhaps the loveliest picture with his exquisite "The Spring Hat." Grant Wood is represented by "Portrait of Nan" and Paul Sample by another American moment "Maple Sugaring in Vermont." There are now 121 paintings in the collection, representing as many American painters. It is one of those exhibits no one should miss. The quality of its nonmodern pictures is high and all of the paintings are worth seeing.

Now I'll Tell One

The other morning, before the boss came in, a stenographer was telling her associates how and why she deserved a raise. She enumerated, among other things, her accuracy, efficiency, punctuality, responsibility, etc. After that, she said, "If I were my boss, I'd say, 'Because you worked so long and hard for me, you are getting a raise!' and then give myself one."

Her face turned beet-red when she wheeled around to find that the boss had come in and heard most of the oration. She got the raise.

Obstacle Course

If you think the course of true success runs smooth consider such people as Estelle Hamburger, advertising manager of a New York newspaper. She didn't step into a top notch job, but began as a department store clerk and pushed herself into the copy department thru uncovering spelling mistakes in the company's ads. . . . When Mary Engle Pennington, brilliant authority on the refrigeration of perishable foods, took a civil service examination early in her career [for appointment as chief of the bureau of agriculture's food research laboratory] she signed her examination papers with initials only so no one would guess "M" stood for Mary—and a woman. . . . When pretty Elizabeth Oakes Smith, in 1851, was championing women's rights—and supporting her family by her lecture tours—her husband, Seba Smith, was writing a magazine story poking fun at these "feminine firsts." . . . Novelist Dorothy Canfield Fisher, after taking a Ph. D. at Columbia and studying further at the Sorbonne in Paris, put in four years as secretary of the Horace Mann school, then began her writing career. . . . Hattie Carnegie's first business venture [on her own] was a tiny shop, opened in 1909, called "Carnegie—Ladies' Hatter." She previously had been a desk girl at Macy's. . . . When Susan Palmer, famous restaurant owner, opened her New York restaurant, the sidewalk was torn up for repairs, the national bank holiday followed, then came six solid weeks of rain.

Church Guild's Fashion Show Is Smart Event

There was a rustle of shantung and a swish of crepe as the models in the fashion show presented yesterday by the Woman's Guild and auxiliary of St. Chrysostom's church hurried up the curved stairways of the Casino club watching for their turn to "go on." They paraded on a raised runway thru the ballroom before an audience which packed the smart oval room and crowded into the doorways to catch a glimpse of the show.

The fashions varied from trim brown and white checked slacks, worn with a yellow wool blazer by Miss Annie Lawrie Ryerson, to a sophisticated black jumper dress trimmed at the shoulders with gold and silver threads modeled by Mrs. Louis Sudler. Miss Nancy Cochran, who modeled a town suit of black and white checks with black and red touches and a new tight midriff waistline, hurried to change to her own navy blue crepe dress on which were appliqued white leaves, and watched the remainder of the show from the wings with her mother, Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy, and Mrs. Arthur Davis Fulton Jr. Mrs. Cudahy's hat was a conversation piece of white leather cigarets, and green and red leather packs in a nest of crisp green veiling.

The fashions of women at war had their day, too, as young women wearing the winter and summer uniforms of the SPARS, marines, and the WAC as well as those of the Red Cross and A. W. V. S. walked up the runway to form a semi-circle on the stage. Tea was served following the show in the Fountain room. Mrs. Press Hodgkins was chairman of the benefit.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 10—No wonder kids are willing to take a million to one chance. [That's just about the score on success in the movies.] One hit will do it. Elizabeth Taylor only needed "National Velvet" to have Metro pay $150,000 for the rights to "Green Mansions" for her. Elizabeth, who broke a bone in her foot a couple of weeks ago and was told she'd have to wear a cast for six weeks, had it taken off after two. Now the X-ray doesn't even show where the bone was broken. . . . Jack Wilson is here on his annual visit to confer with Metro and perhaps agree on a selling price for his "Bloomer Girl," the stage production they backed. He may also give them first chance to back his next musical. He hopes to snare some good names to take back to Broadway. But what he really came for was sunshine. . . . I hope when Lucille Ball starts work in "The Girl from Rector's" that the original George Rector, who's a grand old man, will be in there playing himself. They're going to miss a bet if they don't have him.

All This, and Very Funny, Too

I'm told Walter Pidgeon gives the surprise performance of the year in "Week-end at the Waldorf." He turns out to be a comedian. The teaming of Lana Turner and Van Johnson in it also has the studio shouting. . . . Mildred Cram's beautiful story "Forever," which was first bought by Janet Gaynor, then sold for Norma Shearer, and then was supposed to star Joan Fontaine, won't ever be made, I believe. At least, not for many years. . . . What's this? Has Mark Hellinger signed up with Arthur Rank to produce pictures in England? . . . Ludwig Bemelmans loves to have people think he gets $15,000 a week, which was only a slip of the typewriter. I hear he really gets $1,200, and that ain't bad. . . . Billy Rose aims to follow "Seven Lively Arts" with glorified vaudeville. He's trying to get a couple of Noel Coward's sketches.

There Is No Place Like Home

I'll lay you a bet right now—before Margaret Sullavan's lived in Connecticut six months, she'll be the sorriest girl in the world that she sold her beautiful home in Brentwood, Cal. She already wants it back. . . . The David Selznicks' party the other night included none of David's beautiful stars. Not Jennifer Jones, Ingrid Bergman, nor Joan Fontaine. . . . I met Raymond Gilbert the other night. Ray not only wrote the lyrics for "The Three Caballeros" but also did the vocals for Decca's album of the picture's song hits. Ray's knowledge of Spanish stops with "Agua Caliente" but the album is a best seller. Now that he's hit the jackpot and can afford a machine there aren't any for sale, so he depends on friends to hear his own records.

This Story Is Hard to Believe

Some months ago Mrs. Leigh Battson and Mildred Bren, members of the Naval Aid auxiliary here, were flown to Honolulu to try and find a house they could rent as a rest home for navy men. They couldn't rent one. There was one for sale, all arrangements to buy it were made. The deal was reported stopped by 16 neighbors, who were alleged to object to having the boys in blue so close to them.

Thru the Looking Glass

It's not only growing girls who are bothered with blackheads and pimples across the back and shoulders. Mature women have them too, especially if the skin is inclined to be a little oily.

And they're apt to sprout with a maddening abundance just about this time of year, when the skin has been shrouded for such a long time in heavy fabrics and dark colors. They won't be very attractive when the sleeveless, backless dresses hit the fashion horizon, as they're scheduled to do shortly.

Pressing blackheads out is rather risky business, but it can be done safely if you take special precautions about cleanliness. Use a very clean, soft cloth beneath the fingers with which you plan to do the squeezing, and when you do press, press ever so gently. Don't dig deeply; if the blackhead won't spring out with very little effort let it go. After pressing it out, touch the spot gently with an antiseptic on clean cotton.

To get the whole skin area of the back and shoulders in better shape try special cleansing, using either the cleansing grain type of preparation or a liquid cleanser. If you use the former, friction must be employed, and this is good for the skin that erupts. If you just want to try the soap and water method try steaming the skin with warm wet towels; then work in cleansing cream. Remove it, and then use soap and water and a bath brush. Finally, rinse in cold water. If the skin seems irritated, use a little cream to soothe it.

Half the trouble with blackheads that develop into pimples is just poor cleansing. ELEANOR NANGLE.

Ohio Orphans Left $104,000 —for 2095 A. D.

Toledo, O., April 10 [Special]—A cradle to the grave plan for taking care of Toledo's orphans 150 years from now was revealed by the will of the late James G. Halapleus, world traveler and archeologist, which was filed today in the Lucas county Probate court. Halapleus, a 73 year old bachelor, died Thursday in his home here.

Executors of the estate said Halapleus left cash and property amounting to $104,000 and that all of this is turned over by the will to trustees of the city of Toledo's sinking fund, to be invested and reinvested by them until the year 2095, when the principal is to be used to build a super-orphan's home.

Whether the city of Toledo will accept the responsibility of carrying out the testator's wishes was not indicated in today's proceedings. City officials said legal questions may be raised over the validity of a 150 year trusteeship.

Mathematicians in the probate office figured out that if the trustees should accept the estate and be successful in doubling its size each 20 years its value in 2092 would be in excess of 13 billion dollars.

Halapleus specified in the will that his orphans' haven be named "Plato's Academia," and that it offer education from kindergarten to advanced university work, with courses in liberal arts, dentistry, and engineering. The trustees are directed to acquire a 1,500 acre tract on some stream and erect at least two dormitories, each with accommodations for 300 orphans.

Orphans must be under 7 to be eligible for admittance, Halapleus said, but once admitted may remain for life. The trustees are directed to prohibit profanity, restrain drinking and to encourage matrimonial alliances among the orphans. Orphans, upon admission, will be required to drop their surnames and take the name "Halapleus."

Halapleus, according to friends, was born in Symrna in 1872 and came to the United States when he was 14. Much of his fortune was invested in Toledo real estate.

Menu Variety Aid to Child's Eating Habits

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Start him with his liver soup next week," said the doctor to the baby's mother with a smile. "It tastes awful but he won't know the difference, and it's very good for him."

That may be true, I haven't tasted the liver soup, but the other strained foods "our" baby has are delicious, especially his cereal. Once in a while he doesn't seem to care for something new his mother offers him. Then she tastes it, and seasons it so that it is more palatable. But also, if she finds he's getting tired of a fruit or vegetable puree he's been having, she skips it for a while and goes back to it later; or she changes the combinations.

For not only is the good cooking and seasoning of children's food important in helping them to enjoy their food and in stimulating their appetite but the selecting and combining enter in as well.

To begin with there are things that go well together and things that don't. When foods combine well a meal is eaten with more zest than when they don't. Take, as an example, the affinity of ham and eggs! The making of the menu is almost as important in the feeding of children as the deliciousness of each item.

I know cooks who will serve potatoes, spaghetti, and big white lima beans with the meat or chicken of the main dish, whereas potatoes, stewed tomatoes [if you like them], and string beans would be a more appetizing combination. That same cook would serve a substantial pudding after such a meal instead of a fruit dessert or a salad. In planning children's meals the combinations can be made appetizing.

Even doing this, a mother might fall down if, since a child's diet is more limited than an adult's, she serves the same foods too often, too close together. A child's palate becomes jaded, somewhat as an adult's does. Just as father will say, "What—string beans again!" so a child might often say if he were older, "What, the same breakfast again!"

Menus can be varied for children—even breakfast, where you might skip that stand-by, cereal, occasionally, and serve whole wheat toast, thick and golden brown, hot and buttered instead.

Paris Shows Gay Knitted Beach Attire

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 10 — Anny Blatt, famous for her knitted clothes, has started to make swanky beach togs. The vivid ensembles presented in her current fashion parade include strapless bathing suits, blouses and shorts, and wraparound skirts and jackets all knitted.

"Cannes" is the name of a six piece outfit modeled like a striptease act. The mannequin first appears in a grass green and ochre striped suit whose flared peplum jacket and circular skirt are attached with white linen bows. The same bows tie at the sides of the grass green shorts and down the back of the ochre colored blouse. More bows secure the strapless brassière and the tiny striped bathing pants.

Bright red lacing is fixed at the waist of "Nice," a knitted banana beige sports coat with perkedup shoulders, slim waist, and the new boxed skirt. The backless play dress, in a riotous orange, beige, and purple zig-zag print, and the one piece swimming suit in the same print are also laced with the bright red shoestrings.

Sunflower yellow dots on a night blue ground form the coat of the "Monte Carlo" model. The winged sleeves are elbow length. Two wide plaits appear on the skirt. The waist is strapped in by double knitted crimson belts, the tiny buckles of which are formed of sea shells. Identical shells fasten the clinging, extremely decolleté cocktail dress, the ruffled petticoat, and the polka dotted bathing suit.

Inquiring Camera Girl

The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by T. W. Kelly, 3127 W. Pierce st., Milwaukee, Wis.]

THE QUESTION

If you were allowed to buy one government restricted article right now, what would your choice be?

WHERE ASKED

Burnham building, 160 N. La Salle st.

THE ANSWERS

Joseph Bratek, route salesman, 2247 N. Lavergne av.—My automobile is a 1939 model and I have about 60,000 miles on it. What I'd really like to have is a brand new car—a 1945 model. I imagine the new models will be much more efficient, and of course, will be more attractive. I hope that day isn't too far away.

John Q. Veague, salesman, 8226 Drexel av.—I didn't own a car before the war and I don't have one now. But I know that now my family would get so much pleasure out of it. We anticipate buying one as soon as cars again are available and there's gas and tires. I'd buy a new one now—but I won't have a second hand car.

James Englebrecht, body maker, 7143 Halsted st.—I like shoes, and I'd go and buy the shoes I've been wanting to buy for a long time—without a ration stamp. I don't think three pairs of shoes a year is enough to be happy with. I can get along on three, but if there were no restrictions I'd probably be buying shoes right now.

Mrs. J. Rose, housewife, 5537 Thomas st.—My husband had an automobile before we were married but we had to give that up. It was so much fun to go riding at night in the summer and on Sundays, along the lake and out in the country. I don't think there's anything I would rather have than a new car right now.

Laura McCullough, secretary, 51 W. Delaware pl.—Remember years ago when we could walk into a hosiery shop and say: "Three pairs of nylons, please"? They were so sheer and beautiful and hardly ever wore out in the heels and toes—and on rainy days you could take a towel and wash the spots off them.

Mrs. Earl Smallman, general office work, 2244 Monticello av.—A combination phonograph and radio. That's one thing I could use right now. My husband, who is in the service, has quite a few records but I don't have anything to play them on. I know it would help me to pass the time away pleasantly if I could listen to the records.

The correct bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
1 spade	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead, eight of clubs.

It would appear to be good business reasoning that where it is convenient to try for a slam below the game level that method is preferable to making your effort after a game contract has been reached. The simple reason is that you will have explored the slam possibilities of the hand and are in a position to quit without having jeopardized the game itself.

I do not mean that you must not occasionally invite your partner to bid a slam by calling something like five spades. On certain hands that is inevitable. But where it is just as convenient to fire your big salvo early in the fray, you may avoid the risk of being set at a contract of one over game.

Today's hand is an illustration of just that point. North opened with one diamond and South responded with one heart. He chose not to make an immediate jump shift because without having as yet determined a good place to play the hand he did not wish to start a slam conversation. It was only after North rebid one spade that South began to show an interest in slam. He made the mistake, however, of bidding three spades and North naturally went to four. South feeling that he had not yet tried for a slam did so at this point by showing the ace of clubs. North signed off with five spades and South retired, but it was too late. The damage had been wrought and when trumps broke badly the contract was defeated a trick.

This was a bit of hard luck that could have been obviated by proper bidding. When South recognized slam possibilities, he should have given the slam signal below game by jumping in a new suit. It is true that he hasn't really another suit, but that does not matter much because, regardless of what partner does, South is prepared to return to spades. If North should be a little nervous about raising the clubs to four and decide merely to rebid the diamonds, South could jump again this time to four spades and in this manner will have succeeded in showing a very powerful hand within the game level.

It is well to note that a jump from one spade to three spades should not be employed when slam is in contemplation. When slam is in the air a jump in a new suit is the proper procedure. This avoids trying for a slam later by overbidding the game.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM.

As North you hold:
♠ 7 5 2 ♥ K 10 7 4 ♦ A Q 9 6 3 ♣ J

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

(The story of a Chicago hero's escape from German occupied France)

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune)

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

INSTALMENT XI.

Sunday morning, Nov. 4, the chief of the underground organization and the Belgian woman, who had led me such a chase the day I arrived in Paris, came up to Maurice's house.

Pere Maurice proceeded to show us off to the visitors as if we were children, pointing out our achievements and slight failings.

Herk had many more qualities worthy of mention than I. First, there was his baby. No one ever met Herk in that house without soon discovering that he was a prospective father, and a father with a ranch and 200 head of cattle. The boy's accomplishments in knitting, defeathering ducks and chickens, and the slight progress he had made in French were all highly commended.

I appeared to be a much less significant personality. My only achievement, which rated special mention, was my supposed long standing dispute with la Grandmere. However, le Pere spoke of this very dramatically, furiously jabbing his index fingers at one another to illustrate the intensity of the differences which existed between me and the old woman.

Louis and Michiline dropped in that day to tell us of a harrowing incident that occurred at their house that morning.

Just as they were finishing breakfast, one of them happened to look out the window to see a German military police car drive up to their gate. Their house was so constructed that there was no escape out the back that was invisible to the approaching Germans. They just had to hope that the police would not question Emile's identity.

Even as she told us, Michiline sighed with relief at the thought of their narrow escape.

When the police had departed, Louis went next door to ask his neighbors what had happened. They showed him around the house, which had been turned upside down in the search, and said that the Germans had been looking for two Frenchmen, long since called up for work in Germany, whom they were hiding. The two had dashed out the back door as the Germans came in the front.

In their search, the Germans had emptied every drawer in the house, but when they found nothing, they politely apologized before leaving.

Our next, and really great feast, came on Armistice day. As this was an occasion when the French usually gave vent to their patriotism, it was expected there would be demonstrations at the Arc de Triomphe. Madame said sternly to Pere Maurice, "Don't you go near that part of Paris when you are in town today."

That night, when le Pere and Louis returned, they reported that to their knowledge all had been tranquil during the day.

The only unusual occurrence happened at the house, when the gas was shut off for two hours during the late afternoon. La Grandmere was livid, and cried, "Aye, yi yi, les boches want to deprive us of our celebration feast." However, the gas came on again in time to cook the dinner.

"He was livid with rage and demanded to know why we were on the wrong side of the road."

Uncle Charles and Aunty had been invited, to dine with us, and they arrived just in time for our usual afternoon tea. Having decided that it was foolish to carry our little tea tablets any farther, I suggested that we use them. Aunty was very pleased and could not believe that the tea had been compressed into the little tablets. In her Corsican accent, she cried, "C'est quelque chose!" [That's something!]

After tea we all settled down to preparing the dinner. Herk and I helped with the menial jobs, such as peeling potatoes and washing the spinach. Le Pere appeared to be tremendously busy, rushing out of the house to get one last item, and then writing a menu.

I was so amazed with the menu that he made another, and promised Herk and me each one after the war. The menus were headed by a very ceremonious title, followed by a fantastic list of hors d'oeuvre, roast duck stuffed with chestnuts and mushrooms and served on a platter covered with watercress, pommes de terre puree, haricot verts en beurre, two different tarts, fromage de chevre, fruit, and coffee.

To drink, there were three different wines, mock champagne, and liqueur. It was one of the most delicious dinners I have ever eaten. It was a heavy strain on le Pere's already reduced supplies, and I felt not a little discomfort to think it was mostly for our sake that he made it so prodigious.

After dinner he showed us off, as he did to all his guests, and as usual it was Herk who received most of the attention. First his knitted bonnet was produced, and then every one was shown the great amount of home grown tobacco he had cut.

I prompted him to say the few French words I had taught him, but the big moment of the evening came when he played the Blue Danube for us.

After Herk had finished his bonnet I had persuaded him to study a little music, and, partly by ear and partly with the aid of some old scores, he had learned one or two odd pieces, of which the Blue Danube was his masterpiece.

After Herk's short recital, Michiline played for us. She had been a very good pianist, and still played quite expertly, despite not having practiced much in the last couple of years. Her father's favorite music came from the arias of "Madame Butterfly," so that is what she played, and he accompanied her with his usual bellowing. It was a very amusing scene and finally ended when Michiline could no longer stand the singing.

During the evening Aunty asked me a number of questions, the most amazing of which was: "It is true that almost all the American soldiers over here in the last war were convicts, is it not?"

I replied that I had always been told they were our finest American youth.

She maintained that this could not possibly have been the case.

"They were always so drunk, and acted so terribly that they must have been ex-convicts," she declared.

This excuse for the bad behavior of American troops seemed so tactful on the part of the French that I gave up my attempt to convince Aunty that her supposition was incorrect. Remembering some British reactions to our troops' behavior in this war, I could not help wondering what the French would say when they saw our men back in Gay Paree this time.

The last three weeks we were at the Maurices' house le Pere made frequent visits to Romilly, where he had friends who gave him food. He usually left in the afternoon, returning the following evening about 8:30. To avoid going thru Paris, where he might have been stopped by the police for carrying black market food, he left the train at the little station on the outskirts of the capital. Louis and I would meet him there with a little push cart and haul the food to the house, a distance of about three miles.

When we arrived home it was fascinating to watch the three bags and one large suitcase being emptied. The bags were usually full of flour, loaves of white bread, vegetables, butter, and at least one chicken or rabbit. In the suitcase there usually were potatoes, but one night when I opened it I found a freshly killed little pig.

When Louis and I took our cart to the station there usually were few people on the roads, so there was little danger of my being apprehended. However, once one of my adopted English customs put me in an uncomfortable position.

After having been in England a long time one naturally became accustomed to going on the left side of the road, and I found that as I pulled the little cart, I absent-mindedly veered toward that side, on which I felt more natural.

One night as I did this a cyclist, who could not see us in the blackout, bumped into the cart. He was livid with rage and demanded to know why we were on the wrong side of the road.

Swearing at us, he explained, "Nous ne sommes pas les Anglais ici!" ['We are not English here!']

I had learned my lesson about which side of the road to use, and after that our trips were uneventful.

TIGERS BEAT SOX, 7-2; ARMY CALLS MOSES

CUBS PICK WYSE AND DERRINGER TO OPPOSE SOX

North Siders Leave Camp Today

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

French Lick, Ind., April 10—Paul Derringer and Hank Wyse will pitch for the Cubs against the White Sox in Comiskey Park Thursday afternoon, and the one making the better showing probably will be elected to face the world champion Cardinals in the National league opener at Wrigley Field a week from this afternoon.

This announcement was made today by Manager Charley Grimm following a brisk workout under a brilliant sun and on a dry, firm greensward. The team will drill again tomorrow morning and thereafter the third exodus from this war time Cub training base will begin. Some of the players will travel overland tomorrow afternoon, others, including Grimm will arrive in Chicago on the Monon Thursday morning. Grimm will go to his office in Wrigley Field and the players will scurry for living quarters. All hands have been ordered to arrive at Comiskey Park at 11:30 o'clock.

Chipman and Prim Ready

After saying that Derringer and Wyse were the leading candidates to open the season, Grimm added that Bop Chipman and Ray Prim are ready, too. Claude Passeau and Eddie Hanyzewski, named in the list of potential season openers two weeks ago, both are shelved, with lame arms. Grimm said Passeau had informed him that he believed his calcified elbow is yielding to treatments he is taking in Chicago. Hanyzewski, who appears to have reached something of a panic stage, has said that he may be able to pitch with the arrival of hot summer weather.

After his first demonstration for Manager Grimm here yesterday, Jorge Comellas, the Cuban who won 18 for Los Angeles last season, tentatively was placed on the list of those who will be given starting assignments. Mack Stewart will be the main reliever, if the weather is warm, Grimm said.

Anxious to See Nicholson

In discussing other departments than pitching Grimm expressed satisfaction with the training span here. He intimated he would have liked to have had Bill Nicholson in training, also holdout Peanuts Lowrey, but that this disappointment will vanish when he sees Nick in a Cub uniform.

In the opener he will use players who did much to take the series from the Cincinnati Reds, that is, Hack, 3b; Hughes and Merullo, ss; Sauer, lf; Cavarretta, 1b; Secory, rf; Pafko, cf; Johnson, 2b; Gillespie and Livingston, c; Derringer and Wyse, p.

Since pitching camp here on March 8 the Cubs held routine workouts outdoors on all except three days, and on only one day was it necessary to excuse part of the squad. Six games were played, one here, which the Cubs won from the Reds, 5 to 0, one in Fort Knox, Ky., which the Reds won, 5 to 4; one against Louisville in Louisville which the Cubs won, 9 to 6; a game which was followed by a 13 to 4 loss to the Reds. Last Sunday, in Louisville, the Cubs beat the Reds, 18 to 5, and yesterday, here, the Cubs took a 6 to 5 decision from the Reds.

BOERINGER WILL HELP CROWE AS IOWA LINE COACH

Iowa City, Ia., April 10 (AP)—Arthur B. [Bud] Boeringer, former line coach at the University of Detroit, has been appointed to coach the Iowa football line next fall, it was learned today. His appointment needs only formal approval by university authorities and the state board of education.

Boeringer was an outstanding center for Notre Dame in 1926 and was graduated in 1927. He will work under Clem Crowe, newly signed head coach, with whom he played at Notre Dame in 1925. He now is at Park Rapids, Minn.

BROOKLYN AND BOSTON ELEVENS MERGE FOR 1945

BY EDWARD PRELL
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, April 10—For the third straight season there will be a combination team in the National Football league next fall. Today after five days of bargaining the merger of the homeless Brooklyn Tigers and the Boston Yanks was consummated for one year.

Still left open, according to Commissioner Elmer Layden, was the demand of the Tigers that they be allowed to transfer in 1946 to Yankee stadium. Negotiations between the Tigers and the New York Giants will continue, it was said, with the hope that a settlement agreeable to both parties may be reached.

Granted One Game in Stadium.

After the Boston-Brooklyn merger was announced, Tom Gallery, the Tigers' general manager and head of the club in the absence of Capt. Dan Topping of the marines said, "We're satisfied with the setup for next season." The combination eleven, which will be known as the Yanks, was granted one date next fall in the Yankee stadium. This game will be against the Giants.

The league's announcement on the merger included the statement that the Giants have committed themselves in no way to allow Brooklyn to come into Yankee stadium next year. The Giants, like all other league members, have territorial rights embracing a radius of 100 miles.

Gallery's Stand Is Unchanged

Asked the status of his request before the league that the Tigers' franchise be transferred in 1946 to the home of the Yankees, Gallery replied: "It hasn't changed one bit as far as we are concerned. We will have a football team in Yankee stadium in 1946—in one league or another."

Last year, the Chicago Cardinals and Pittsburgh Steelers merged but failed to win a game. In 1943, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia combined, forming a strong unit which was a contender for the eastern title. This will be Boston's second year in the league. Last year the Yanks won two games, both from the Brooklyn Tigers, who lost all their contests.

The Brooklyn-Boston combine will be strictly a Boston operation, except for the dozen or so players who will be contributed to the Yanks and their head coach, Herb Kopf. A private financial arrangement has been made between the partners for 1945. The home base and offices will be in Boston. Neither team gave up any of its constitutional rights in the National league.

Time to Select Coach

"Playing this one game in Yankee stadium next fall will keep us alive in New York," said Gallery. "Merging with Boston also will give us a chance to take our time in selecting a coach." Pete Cawthon was fired as the Tigers' head coach during the 1944 season and the post was not filled permanently.

Capt. Topping is one of the co-owners of Yankee stadium, the others being Larry MacPhail, presi-

Red Sox Rout Giants, 14-3, in Polo Grounds Exhibition

New York, April 10 (AP)—Scoring five runs in the first inning, the Boston Red Sox pounded three New York Giant pitchers for 19 hits and a 14 to 3 triumph as some 1,200 fans turned out for the first game of the season at the Polo grounds today.

The Red Sox collected 10 of their runs in the first three innings off Ray Harrell, while Joe Bowman checked the Giants until the fourth when Steve Filipowicz connected with a homer. Ernie Lombardi hit another homer for the Giants in the fifth off Otis Clark. George Metkovich got one for Boston in the second.

BRAVES WIN IN 11TH.

Wilmington, Del., April 10 (AP)—The Boston Braves won an overtime exhibition game from the Philadelphia Phillies today, 5 to 2, by scoring three runs in the 11th inning.

The score was deadlocked 2-all when Phil Masi beat out a hit with one out. Eddie Joost singled, Masi holding up at second. Bill Wietelmann flied to Coaker Triplett for the second out but Tommy Nelson, hitting for Al Schacher, hit a double thru Third Baseman Mott. Masi scored. Dick Culler's single to center brought in Joost and Nelson to seal the victory.

The three runs were scored at the expense of Dick Coffman, Phils' veteran right hander. Score:

DODGERS WIN CAMP FINAL

Bear Mountain, N. Y., April 10 (AP)—Brooklyn completed its spring training session at Bear Mountain today by defeating the Montreal Farm Hands of the International league, 5 to 0. Ervin Palica played seven innings at short for the minor leaguers, then hurled the final frame. Score:

TORONTO BEATS A'S, 11-4

Hagerstown, Md., April 10 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics, using mostly reserves, today dropped an exhibition game, 11 to 4, to the Toronto Leafs.

Toronto, taking the lead in the first inning, was never headed and pounded out 11 hits to the A's six. Seven hits off Chuck Dettrey yielded six runs in six innings while Gene Conway's one inning stretch cost another four hits and five runs.

Tom Annanicz and Luke Hamlin, former A's hurler, pitched four and five innings respectively for the Leafs. Score:

Philadelphia [A.]	010	201	000—	4	6 2
Toronto [I. L.]	130	002	80*—11	11	4

ROOKIE CRASHES WALL

Trenton, N. J., April 10 (AP)—Joe Riley, 29, of Philadelphia, Rookie center fielder with the Trenton Spartans of the Interstate league, was critically injured today as the New York Yankees walloped the Spartans, 15 to 2, in an exhibition game.

Riley suffered a concussion, two broken ribs, and possibly a skull fracture in the eighth inning when he crashed into the center field fence while chasing a long double by Johnny Lindell.

Right Handers Ken Holcombe and Allen Gettel held Trenton to nine hits while the Yanks made 15 off Lonnie Heisler, Clyde Russell, and Bob Page.

New York [A.]	101	050	350—	15	15 2

SAILORS ROUT SENATORS, 18-7

Bainbridge, Md., April 10 (AP)—Bainbridge Naval Training station's baseball team crushed the Washington Senators, 18 to 7, today with a 12 run fifth inning featured by Eddie Miksis' triple with the bases loaded.

The Senators were ahead 5 to 3 when the Sailors unleashed their big fifth inning barrage that saw 17 batters parade to the plate. Three Washington pitchers were needed to retire the side. The score:

Bainbridge	211	120	18	17	1

Batteries—Wolff, Ullrich, Burger, Roche and Evans; Lyons, McKee and Scheming.

PIRATES REGULARS WIN

Muncie, Ind., April 10 (AP)—Third Baseman Bob Elliott clouted one over the left field fence in the last of the ninth today to give the Pittsburg Pirate regulars a 9 to 8 edge over the second team.

Three other homers featured today's intra-squad game, two by Outfielder Bill Rodgers, and one by Outfielder John Barrett.

Amputees' Softball Team Wins, 12 to 6

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—You can't take the spirit of athletic competition out of America's war veterans, even when they have lost arms and legs.

Amputees from the Walter Reed hospital demonstrated this today by playing a four inning softball game in which the enlisted men, all leg cases, defeated the officers' team, 12 to 6. The game was a feature of the army's physical reconditioning program.

A big blond haired staff sergeant, Frank Bogdan of Buffalo, N. Y., hit two home runs and circled the bases in a gallop. He also pulled two double plays at short. Bogdan lost a leg in southern France as a member of an anti-aircraft battery with the 7th army. In his high school days he was an all-around athlete at Riverside in Buffalo.

Wally Pierowicz, also of Buffalo, N. Y., caught for the G. I.s sitting in a chair. As a medical aide, Wally lost both legs at Anzio beach. He hopes to "throw away the chair" but go right on catching. Wally once played in the Florida State league under the name of Pierce, for simplification, and was sold to St. Paul of the American association just before the war broke out.

First Lt. W. G. Holsberg, Winthrop, Mass., also legless, pitched for the officers.

Billy McGowan, dean of major league umpires, gave the occasion a big league touch by calling the plays. Lt. Bert Shepard, one legged P-38 fighter pilot now with the Washington Senators, played an inning, did some pitching, and sprinted 100 yards.

SPORTSMAN'S TO BE READY WHEN BAN IS LIFTED

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

The four month period that will have elapsed by April 28 since James F. Byrnes, former director of war mobilization, put the kibosh on racing, has created many problems. Owners, breeders, trainers, and track operators have had no end of perplexities but now, with the lifting of the ban promised when official Washington is satisfied that Germany is whipped, the racing secretaries are up to their ears preparing for resumption of the sport.

April 28 is the date on which racing is scheduled to open in the Chicago area—at Sportsman's Park, the Cicero half-mile plant operated by John L. Keeshin and associates.

Duke Is a Busy Man

The man who has his work cut out for him is the track's new racing secretary, W. R. [Duke] Dahlstrom, successor to the late Pat Galliger. Dahlstrom is a Chicagoan and is starting his 15th year in the business, most of which time has been spent as steward and placing judge. His worries are more than any fellow should have to bear on nice spring days.

It's Dahlstrom's job to put together a condition book, composing well balanced fields, assigning weights, lining up good races for Sportsman's 13 day spring meeting. His worries these days start early as he and Bill Hamilton, steward representing the Illinois Racing board, appraise horses in their workouts and watch the schooling [getting in and out of the starting gate] of 2-year-olds, the thorobreds just starting their racing careers.

It's a Tough Year

This year this phase is more troublesome than ever before, for in normal times most of the juveniles are ready for competition by the time the Chicago season opens because their training had been completed on the southern tracks during the winter.

It takes a long time to school a 2 year old properly and, as a result of the ban on racing since Jan. 3, few of the thousands of juveniles ever have run a race. As a consequence, there will be no events for 2 year olds during the first seven days of the meeting at Sportsman's Park, and there may be very few thereafter.

Just Like a Fresh Start

"It's just like starting racing all over," Dahlstrom said yesterday. "Even the 3 year olds provide a problem. Lack of actual competition has so retarded their training that they can't be included in fields with older horses. However, the older thorobreds have benefited by the enforced rest and there should be some fast times recorded in stake events wherever there is racing this year."

Among the 350 thorobreds at Sportsman's Park are many from the surrounding farms, but there also are a number from Florida, Arkansas, and New Orleans which wintered here. Robert McGarvey and Henry Tikulski have 17 horses in training, including Icangetit, winner of the $5,000 Joliet stakes at Hawthorne last year; Night Shadow, Terre Haute, Ind., April 10—The Tigers gave the White Sox a blast from one barrel today and Uncle Sam pulled the trigger on the other by summoning Wally Moses, right fielder for the last three seasons, into the army.

Wally Moses

The 36 year old fly chaser will be inducted Saturday in Chicago, according to an announcement made by an unhappy Jim Dkyes shortly after Moses, who came to the Sox in a deal with the Athletics, had started out on a short visit to his home in Philadelphia.

The Tigers furnished their bit of the day's mischief by taking the fifth and rubber exhibition of the spring series, 7 to 2, the shortage of Sox runs being due to the presence from start to finish of Hal Newhouser, the left handed winner of 29 games last season. The willowy youngster actually toyed with the Chicagoans, fanning 10 of them and steering clear of trouble except in the seventh when Oris Hockett boomed forth a homer after pinch batter Mike Tresh had singled.

Fourth Man Lost by Sox

Moses, who recently was called for reëxamination and accepted for limited service after a previous 4-F status due to old baseball injuries, makes the fourth important player the Sox have surrendered since the close of last season, the others being Ralph Hodgin, Thurman Tucker, and Gordon Maltzberger. Moreover, the calling up of the veteran, who presumably is destined for an army nine, reduced Dykes' outfield layout to Guy Curtright, Oris Hockett, and John Dickshot.

Dykes has long coveted Jeff Heath, who has declared he will not continue with the Indians, and Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh of the Cleveland club was here today, but the visit didn't arouse the Sox manager. The Detroit club is highly interested in giving Heath a job and to this end has both trading material the Indians can use and a large bank roll.

Only Papish Is Effective

For the last day in camp Dykes put 106 years of pitchers on display, but only 27 years of it was completely successful. This was Rookie Frank Papish, who kept the Tigers subdued during the last two innings. Prior to that the prospective pennant contenders gave the 39 year old Earl Caldwell, ex-Brewer, who started, a busy three innings in which five runs scored, and the 40 year old Clay Touchstone a noisy fourth in which two scored. Touchstone, however, followed with two impressive rounds.

Caldwell's chief difficulty was control when the Tigers counted their first pair of runs in the second inning. He yielded scratch hits to Bob Maier and Don Ross, after which he walked three successive batters. In the third, Rudy York and Doc Cramer led off with singles. Caldwell's wild throw of Maier's sacrifice and a double by Ross did the rest. The two Tiger runs off Touchstone in the fourth grew from a single by John McHale, a triple by York, and Cramer's long fly.

Dykes Shifts Batting Order

With Moses removed from the picture, Dykes was forced to give his batting order a going over. He moved Hockett into the lead-off position, which had been reserved for Moses. LeRoy Schalk was boosted from sixth to the No. 2 spot. Curtright took over at No. 3 for Dickshot and the lattered with the clean-up job. Rookie Bill Nagel, who had been caarying this honor along with first base duties, with which he has only a speaking acquaintance, was dropped to fifth place.

The Sox will take a train out of here tomorrow morning, arriving in Chicago early in the afternoon.

Vernal Melody

In springtime there's a haunting sound
That bids me go upon my way;
I cannot quell the restless urge
That causes thus my heart to stray.
It seems to say, "Come on, come on!
And join me as I sweep along."
And I, a yearning vagabond,
O, how I love this plaintive song.
Each time I hear the piercing call,
I'd leave undone without a sigh
The daily duties that are mine,
To all of them I'd say good-by.
What is this haunting sound of spring
To which my saner self says "nay"?
Train whistles moaning thru the night
That bid me go upon my way.

If We Meet No More

I have grown weary watching for the dawn,
Hoping each day might bring you back again,
Night has brought only tears since you are gone
And I have drained the very dregs of pain;
Sometimes I wonder why this aching heart,
Like a bruised bird beating against a cage,
Has not long since severed itself apart
Ere sleep and sweet oblivion could assuage.
And if we meet no more, know that the hours
That were so happy in the days of old
Are strewn along our paths like withered flowers
That have been seared by winter's piercing cold,
And that in spite of all our feigned delight
We've bartered the warm sunshine for cold night. —T. E. B.

Pork chops sizzling on the stove,

So there's no cause to regret them.

The smell of coffee brewing,
In its old time earthen pot,
And sunset streaming thru the door,

Mom busy setting the table,
With regard for the proper spaces,
Pausing a moment to dry a tear
O'er a couple of empty places.

Is there anything quite so homey,
As when suppertime draws nigh,
Waiting for loved ones to come home,
Day's worries all past and by?

A legion of boys across the sea
Are dreaming of just such scenes—
One must stand far away from the picture
To know what it really means.

BROWNS DEFEAT CARDS, 7-2; TAKE LEAD IN SERIES

McQuinn and Kreevich Hit Homers

St. Louis, Mo., April 10 (AP)—Thirteen hits including homers by George McQuinn and Mike Kreevich produced seven runs for the St. Louis Browns today in their second triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 2. It was the third of a seven game exhibition city series.

The Cardinals made five of their nine hits in the first two innings, but were held effectively in check by Al Hollingsworth, whose arm improved as he went along, and by Weldon West.

Don Gutteridge and Pete Gray worked a double steal in the eighth, the Brownie second baseman scoring from second while Gray advanced on the futile throw to home plate.

There Are a Lot of Them

Mrs. J. Nemeck's Happy Hour farm has several horses in the stables, including Happy Pilot, Martian, and the great distance runner, Starcress. Al Gael has 10, including Tough Target. Then, too, E. B. Carpenter is on his way with 10 horses from Tropical Park in Florida.

Secretary Dahlstrom may be a bit overworked, but still he doesn't anticipate the burdens heaped upon Francis Dunn, racing secretary of Hialeah Park, and himself as Dunn's assistant when Byrnes issued his edict just two days before Hialeah's Christmas day $7,500 Inaugural handicap. Every one at the track wanted to get in on the last big purse before the shutdown, scheduled for Jan. 3, and 150 entries still were on the list on Christmas morning. After much confusion the race was run in two divisions, with 13 thorobreds in each.

State Bowling Tournament to Open Saturday

The 48th annual tournament of the Illinois State Bowling association, which drew an entry of 1,605 five man teams, will open Saturday at 4 p. m. when two squads, comprising 37 teams, will take the alleys at Bensinger's Wabash house, 131 S. Wabash av.

Geremonies attending the opening will be very brief, being limited to a few words of appreciation and welcome from Judge Stephen Adamowski, president of the Chicago and Illinois associations and newly appointed member of the American Bowling congress board of directors.

Three squads are scheduled for the opening day, shifts at 6:30 and 9 o'clock following the first. Four squads will compete Sunday with starting times designated as 2, 4:30, 7, and 9:30 o'clock. All are booster teams, no regular fives being scheduled until Monday, April 30.

Defending champions in the event, which will run thru May 20, are the Hughes team of the Chicago West Side Knights of Columbus Major league; Jerry Skovie and Adam Plunge, Chicago in the doubles; Joe Heinrich, Chicago, in the singles; and Pvt. Joe Wilman, Fort Lewis, Wash. and Chicago, in the all-events.

C. A. A. WILL HOLD ITS ANNUAL GOLF CLINIC SATURDAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

The Chicago Athletic association's spring golf clinic, perennial harbinger of the local fairway season, will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday in the club gymnasium, 12 S. Michigan av. A number of outstanding professionals, including Bob Hamilton, the present National P. G. A. champion who shortly will report to an induction center; Johnny Revolta, past P. G. A. and Western Open titleholder, and Jerry Cooke of Edgewater, the C. A. A.'s winter professional, will be present and give demonstrations.

Herb Graffis, frequently accused of being one of the founders of the game in these parts, will return to his old stand as master of ceremonies of the party.

Altho the Professional Golfers' Association of America, committed to another wartime year of war relief, with 1945 emphasis on an extensive program of veterans' rehabilitation, has made no official announcement, it is understood that one of the finest matches of this or any other season is in immediate prospect.

Nelson and Snead to Meet in Exhibition Late This Month

This duel, a 72 hole argument between Byron Nelson and Sam Snead, the two men who have dominated the recent winter tour, has been tentatively set for April 28 and 29 at the Fresh Meadow course in Flushing, L. I.

Advices from the east now indicate that the two day benefit battle between Nelson and Snead will be fought over the Fresh Meadow course in Flushing, L. I., where Gene Sarazen won the United States Open of 1932.

Tommy Armour, long one of the most popular figures in Chicago golf, soon will report to his new assignment at the Rockledge Country club in West Hartford, Conn.

Norman Cameron, Byron Nelson's assistant the last two years at Toledo's Inverness club, this season will return to the site of his first Chicago golfing assignment as he reports to the Green Acres Country club in Northbrook. A 38 year old native of San Francisco, Cameron first appeared there in 1928, as assistant to Al Espinosa, when the club was known as Illinois.

Cameron represents one of the transformations in the most changed professional golfing picture Chicago has seen in years. His predecessor, Jack Grout, has moved to Butterfield. Chicago Golf club, the grandpappy of the district by reason of having been the only local charter member of the U. S. G. A. in 1894, will have a proven veteran as pro in Pete Thomas, the south sider who formerly was stationed at Park Ridge, Riverside, Oak Park, and Beverly. Pete succeeds Jack Drucker, who enters his first year as professional at Ravisloe.

Other Changes Made This Year in Chicago Area Pro Assignments

Other changes in the Chicago district, with their former positions listed in parentheses, follow:

Ralph Guldahl, Medinah [San Diego Cal.]; Jim Foulis, La Grange [Ruth Lake]; Pete Wilcox, Riverside [Westmoreland]; Matt Jans, Rolling Green [Racine, Wis., where Jans was long time president of the Wisconsin section of the P. G. A.]; Pat McDonald, Rob Roy [Rolling Green]; Maurie White, Country Club of Peoria [La Grange]; Marty Walsh, Hickory Hills [Country Club of Peoria].

Aronson Returns

Wes Aronson, Roller Derby record holder, will return to action tomorrow night with the Chicago team after a year's lay-off because of injuries. The New York team defeated Chicago last night, 14 to 10.

Six Titles Will Change Hands in A.A.U. Meet

Record breaking Ann Curtis will do her stuff, but at least a half dozen titles will change hands in the national women's indoor A. A. U. swimming meet in the Town club Friday thru Sunday.

The reason is obvious—Miss Curtis, the phenomenal lass from San Francisco; Hollywood bound Brenda Helser, 100 yard free style champion, and Patricia Sinclair of the New York Women's Swimming association, 100 yard breast stroke champion—are the only returning champions.

Will Receive Trophy

Miss Curtis will receive the Sullivan trophy at the meet, but the ceremony isn't expected to rattle her so much that she won't paddle off with the 220 and 440 free style crowns again.

She may even upset Miss Helser in the 100 to avenge an eye-lash defeat by the former Portland, Ore., star last year.

Missing champions are Suzanne Zimmerman in the 100 yard back stroke; Nancy Merki in the 220 yard breast stroke and 300 individual medley; the 300 medley and 400 free style relay teams of Portland on which the Misses Helser, Zimmerman, and Merki competed; and Diver Anne Ross of New York.

Miss Sinclair Is Favorite

Miss Sinclair is the favorite to replace Miss Merki as the 220 breast stroke and individual medley champion, while Betty Shields of the New York Women's Swimming association, and Eleanor Schetzer of St. Louis, Junior A. A. U. record-holder, may fight it out for Miss Zimmerman's back stroke title.

dent of the baseball Yankees, and Del Webb.

With the merger problem out of the way, the club owners and Layden immediately started grappling with the 1945 ten-team, ten-game schedule. There still was work to do on it when a halt was called tonight. They had hopes of getting it in acceptable form tomorrow, thus winding up a stormy conclave that started last Friday and which tomorrow will go into its third extra day. Charles Bidwill, owner of the Chicago Cardinals, left for home tonight, leaving his schedule responsibilities in the custody of Arch Wolfe, business manager.

Prepare for Competition

The big plank in the National league's ambitious plan to successfully repulse post-war competition from rival leagues is a 12 team, 12 game round robin schedule to be instituted in 1946. If New York yields and agrees to Brooklyn coming into the Yankee stadium the uniform schedule plan will be a practical one, with a 12th team to be added. Cities prominently mentioned for this vacant berth are Los Angeles, Baltimore, and Brooklyn.

Before the merger was completed the league again showed it is competition conscious by restraining individual members from scheduling exhibition games with teams from other professional leagues. An exception was made for clubs in the Dixie league and American association, which, before suspending because of the war, had working agreements with the National league.

ARMY SLASHES SHELL ORDERS, TANK PROGRAM

Several Plants Not to Be Completed

The army yesterday cut its artillery ammunition program 10 per cent, canceled contracts for new shell plants and facilities totaling nearly 200 million dollars, and decided not to complete 12 new tank plants which would not reach peak production until the last quarter of this year.

The heavy ammunition cutbacks were announced in Chicago by Brig. Gen. R. E. Hardy, chief of the ammunitions branch of army ordnance, and the tank plant construction halt by the war department in Washington, D. C. Several Chicago area plants will be affected in each case.

The ammunition program also involves cutbacks in production of some types of shells, fuses, and boosters, Gen. Hardy said, but has no connection with plans to be placed in effect after victory in Europe. It was ordered after consultation with the war production board and war man power commission.

Goals Boosted in December

Gen. Hardy and other government officials met Monday with the contractors involved to determine "the most efficient, economical, and equitable manner of making the necessary reductions." The new schedules represent a 10 per cent reduction in the entire artillery ammunition program authorized last December, when rapid consumption of many kinds of shells had depleted reserves, he said.

"A number of new as well as old ammunition manufacturers were asked to shoulder an added production load at that time," Gen. Hardy said. "Rapid progress has been made, but fortunately the war in Europe has made it possible to cut down our insurance in this instance so that full emphasis can be placed on more critically needed items."

The plants in the Chicago region affected are the Hammond, Ind., plant of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, which had a contract for 105 mm. shells on which production had not started; production cuts in M-54 fuse output at the plants of Litho Equipment company and International Harvester company in Chicago, and Milwaukee Gas Specialty company, Milwaukee, and M-48 fuses at the Fort Wayne, Ind., plant of Bowser, Inc.

Few Layoffs to Result

The percentage of cutbacks in the four plants producing fuses has not been determined, WPB officials explained. Man power officials said few, if any, layoffs of workers would result from the curtailments in production.

A war department statement said of the tank situation:

"American production is now at a level which assured American fighting men of a sufficient production rate to complete the war against Germany and provide the output necessary to supply forces to be used against Japan.

"The war department emphasized that this action is not a cut-back in production but the elimination of a planned increase in tank output.

"Because most of the proposed operations would have been in critical labor areas this change in plans will ease the present and expected labor shortages in these areas.

Four in Detroit Area

"Four of the projected tank plants—Chrysler corporation, Chrysler subcontractors, Ford Motor company, and General Motors—would have been in Detroit Mich.

"Other plant expansions affected are: American Steel Foundries cast armor plant East Chicago Ind.; Ford Motor company, Dearborn, Mich.; General Motors, Fisher Body division, Flint, Mich.; Oilgear company and subcontractors, Milwaukee, Wis.; Ordnance Steel Foundry plant, Quad Cities tank arsenal [International Harvester], both Betendorf, Ia.; Waukesha Motor company, Waukesha, Wis.; and Standard Steel Spring company, Coraopolis, Pa."

[A spokesman for the American Steel Foundries said last night that the cast armor plant has been completed and in operation for two years, turning out tank hulls and turrets. It is operating near capacity. The only possible change in its status, he said, would be a reduction in the rate of output, concerning which no information has been received.]

Eighty Plants Ruled Surplus

Meantime the surplus property board disclosed in its monthly report for February that 80 government owned war plants and their sites have been declared surplus or excess. They cost an aggregate of $552,474,000.

Of the 80 plants, 23 were on a standby basis for possible future use for the purpose for which they were built; 46 had been declared surplus, which means they are no longer needed and are ready for disposal; and 11 were being used as disposal center warehouses.

The principal sale in February was the purchase by the Buick division of General Motors of installations, fixtures, etc., at Melrose Park, Ill. These cost $770,000 and the sale price was $578,000.

[Buick officials said last night the purchases were of minor items of equipment, representing an unimportant part of the vast quantities of machinery and equipment in the Buick plant.]

Reopen Trade to Argentina; Chicago Aided

The lifting of restrictions on United States trade with Argentina as a result of resumption of normal diplomatic relations will be a boon to Chicago area exporters and importers, foreign trade experts said yesterday. The Chicago area normally provides about a quarter of the country's trade volume with Argentina.

They explained that any immediate effect would hinge on the relaxation of controls on materials and products needed in the United States to carry on the war, but that the ending of restrictions was timely because it will permit much spade work on post-war markets.

Argentine Orders on Books

One exporter said that many Chicago companies for months have had Argentine orders on their books and that increased demands may now be expected.

Because of the strained relations with Argentina, the United States government had denied most requests for export licenses. These requests will be resubmitted and, if approved, a substantial increase in trade volume will result, he said.

"All companies that are on the alert to build business in Argentina are resubmitting their license applications," one exporter said. "This should take only a week or two, and the stream of trade between the two countries should soon start moving in larger volume.

Big Exchange Backlog Available

"Argentina, which has about 1 billion dollars in gold and foreign exchange, should be a good customer of the United States after the war because it has a large pentup demand for articles the United States can provide."

Altho Argentina historically has done much business with Great Britain, her needs after the war will be so large that she will obtain all the materials and supplies she can from both the United States and Great Britain, he said.

Chief among the articles this area has supplied Argentina are automotive and electrical equipment, office supplies, and drugs. An exporter said that when American supplies become sufficient, trucks and service parts will become a large export item.

MAY RYE RISES AGAIN ON LIGHT SHORT COVERING

Short covering in May rye advanced the price 2⅛ cents a bushel to $1.31¼ at one time yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but the buying was not as aggressive or as broad as recently. Despite profit cashing a substantial part of the upturn was retained at the close and net gains were 1¼ to 1⅞ cents, September leading.

May wheat sold at $1.74¼, up ¾ cent from Monday, but evening up for a department of agriculture winter wheat estimate due later caused a reaction and the close was ¼ higher to ¼ lower. Corn closed unchanged to ⅝ higher, oats ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, and barley 1 higher to ½ lower.

RAIL GRAIN RATE TO SOUTHEAST REDUCED BY ICC

Washington, D. C., April 10 (AP)—The interstate commerce commission today ordered reductions of 1 to 11 cents per 100 pounds in rail rates on grain shipments to the southeast.

Ordered in a 152 page report climaxing a long investigation the reduction included 11 cents a 100 pounds from the Pacific northwest to the southeast, 7 cents from Oklahoma and southern Kansas, 8 cents from Texas, about 5 cents from Ohio and Mississippi river crossings, about 4 cents from Gulf and South Atlantic ports, and 1 to 3 cents from a section of eastern territory.

CHARGE GRAIN CARS TIED UP BY EASTERN RAILS

Group Will Demand Prompt Return

Kansas City, Mo., April 10 [Special]—An eight man delegation to go to Washington next week to demand government help in ending asserted discrimination by eastern railroads against the midwestern grain belt was named today at a conference of representatives of 11 states.

This conference, held at the call of Gov. Schoeppel of Kansas, heard reports from grain men, farmers, railroad executives, and government statisticians that a shortage of boxcars for moving grain has overtaxed midwest storage facilities and already caused serious damage to grain piled in the open.

Harvest to Begin Soon

Unless boxcars now in use on eastern railroads are returned promptly to begin moving grain from elevators and storage bins, farmers will have no place to store this year's expected bumper crop of winter wheat, it was said. The wheat will be ready for harvest in June and is expected to amount to 538,474,000 bushels in the 11 state area, an increase of 100 million bushels over last year.

H. L. Collins, statistician for the department of agriculture, told the conference that farm elevators and bins now hold 1,307,207,000 bushels of wheat, corn, oats, and barley, with an overflow on the ground and spoiling in the current damp weather.

Lawrence Norton, chief of the Kansas war board, said that in Kansas alone 2,450,000 bushels of corn have been dumped on the ground. Much of it already has deteriorated, he said. Samples of spoiled corn from outdoor piles were exhibited with assertions it would bring only 18 cents a bushel on the market.

Cars Retained in East

Henry B. Lautz, general manager of the Sante Fe railroad, said the road has only 11.9 per cent of its grain cars in service and that the remainder were in the east. F. E. Sperry, general superintendent of transportation for the Burlington railroad, reported that 10,000 of the road's 24,000 grain cars are in the east.

Walter Scott, secretary of the Kansas City Board of Trade, who presided at the conference, accused eastern railroads of retaining grain cars for handling general merchandise, and said Washington officials have refused to intervene in behalf of the midwest.

"I don't have much use for short-sightedness," said Gov. Schoeppel, in referring to the attitude of the office of defense transportation toward the grain storage crisis. Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, was described as asking, "Don't you know there's a war on?" when the board of trade requested a return to the midwest of 950 cars daily.

"Ike's" Brother on Committee

Ben C. Larkin, public service commissioner for North Dakota, was named chairman of the committee which will go to Washington. Larkin said the group will arrive there next Tuesday and carry their appeal to the ODT, the interstate commerce commission, and the Association of American Railroads.

Others on the committee are Milton Eisenhower, president of Kansas State college and brother of Gen. Eisenhower; C. B. Bee, special counsel for the Oklahoma commerce commission; John W. Ellis, agricultural commissioner for Missouri; Mark G. Thornburg, executive secretary of the Western Grain and Feed association, Des Moines, Ia.; C. A. Merkle, public utility commissioner for South Dakota; A. W. Nielsen, general manager of the West-Central Coöperative Grain company, Pierre, S. D., and R. A. Trovattan, secretary of agriculture for Minnesota.

Mid-Continent Reports Big Gain in Oil Reserves

Jacob France, president of Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation, yesterday told stockholders "many millions" of barrels were added to the company's oil reserves in 1944. 75,000 shares of 5 per cent preferred.

Two Big North Side Buildings Are Auctioned

BY AL CHASE

Two large near north side properties, one on Michigan av. and the other on Astor st., were sold at separate auctions yesterday for a total of $1,219,000. The 7 story 840 N. Michigan av. building, at the southwest corner of Chestnut st., was bought for $877,000. The 16 story apartment building at 1209 Astor st. was bought for $342,000. Both auctions were held in the Chicago Title and Trust company offices by L. D. McKendry, assistant vice president.

Ben Cleaver, of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis, was high bidder for the 840 Michigan building. He represented an undisclosed buyer. Bidding started with an offer of $725,000 by Ross, Browne & Fleming.

Formerly Saks Store Site

The building was erected in 1929 at a cost of $850,000 by a syndicate headed by the late Vincent Bendix on a leased site and became the property of a land trust thru foreclosure when ground rent was defaulted. It formerly was occupied by Saks-Fifth avenue store. The four upper floors are occupied by General Motors corporation under a lease expiring in 1947. Blum's Town and Country shop occupies the first floor corner space.

Twenty-five of the 31 families living in the Astor st. building bought it to prevent its sale and remodeling into small units. Carroll Sudler of Sudler & Co., agent of the property, submitted to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for the bondholders, an offer of $325,000. The trust company, however, decided to auction the property. It was built in 1927.

Ridgeview Hotel Sold

Title will go to the 1209 Astor Street corporation, coöperatively owned by the 25 families, which was represented by Bernard Nath of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautmann, Levinson & Morse.

Chicago Title, as trustee, sold for $500,000 the seven story Ridgeview hotel and annex at the northeast corner of Main st. and Maple av., Evanston, to a syndicate represented by Maurice H. Kamm, attorney. Glatt & Price was broker.

WINTER WHEAT CROP EXPECTED TO SET RECORD

Washington, D. C., April 10—[Special]—A record winter wheat crop of 862,515,000 bushels was forecast today by the department of agriculture on the basis of April 1 conditions which were termed unusually favorable. A harvest that size would be 100 million bushels more than last year and 37 million more than the record set in 1931. No estimate on the smaller spring wheat crop will be made until later.

The one unfavorable aspect in the report was that last week's cold wave caused extensive damage to fruit crops, tho loss was less serious in the main northern fruit belts east of the Rocky mountains.

HOG SUPPLY DIPS MORE; PRICES OF STEERS WEAKEN

Only 7,500 hogs, including shipments direct to packers, arrived at the Chicago stock yards yesterday. This was the smallest Tuesday volume since August, 1937, and the smallest for an April Tuesday in more than 60 years. All hogs sold at price ceilings.

Demand for other meat animals was surprisingly narrow. Cattle buyers obtained concessions of 10 to 15 cents in many of the steer classes which sold mostly from $15 to $17.25. The best offered brought $17.65. Other cattle sold steady. Lambs ruled weak to 25 cents lower in a slow session.

STOCKHOLDERS OF 3 COMPANIES VOTE SPLITUPS

Best & Co. stockholders approved a two for one split of common stock at the annual meeting yesterday. Stockholders of Safeway Stores approved a three for one split of common. Stockholders of Signode Steel Strapping company voted a two for one split of common and to create 75,000 shares of 5 per cent preferred.

DEALERS LASH SURPLUS PLANE SALES METHOD

Charge U.S. Chokes Private Business

C. R. Mooney of Kansas City, Mo., executive director of the National Aviation Trades association, representing most of the country's non-scheduled airport operators, yesterday accused the federal government of misrepresentation and attempts to throttle private initiative in the sale of thousands of surplus planes at public auction by the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Mooney explained that 7,000 planes have been sold and that 3,000 primary trainers have been placed on the market by the surplus war aircraft division of the Defense Plant corporation, an RFC subsidiary.

May Need Extensive Repair

He charged that DPC has advertised the primary trainers in hundreds of newspapers as "meeting rigid army and navy specifications" without telling unwary civilian purchasers that many will not meet civil aeronautics administration standards and may need extensive repairs that cannot be made because all spare parts are in the hands of the army.

"Purchasers of these high powered PT jobs which eat gas are permitted to fly the planes by special army permit from the auction field," Mooney said. "But when the buyers land on a civilian field they discover the CAA has grounded many of their ships as nonairworthy.

"Faced with such a dilemma, the more enterprising purchasers resort to cannibalizing and take needed spare parts from a discarded ship of the same make if they are lucky enough to find one. But less fortunate buyers are stuck. And it's a shame to know they have been gypped by their own government."

Competes with Private Dealer

Mooney said that sale of the planes direct to the buyer by the RFC rather than thru regular dealer channels placed the government in direct competition with accredited aircraft distributors who have had no planes to sell to civilians since the war started.

This practice is a clear violation of the letter and spirit of the surplus property act of 1944, he said, which is described as having been enacted "to discourage monopolistic practices and to strengthen and preserve the competitive position of small business concerns in an economy of free enterprise."

Mooney's charges that the RFC thru its subsidiaries is defying the intent of congress, received support from Col. Roscoe Turner of Indianapolis, president of the aviation trade association, who was in Chicago with Mooney to attend a meeting of the Chicago aero commission.

Termed "Harmful Competition"

Turner characterized the RFC's entrance into plane selling as "harmful competition," and Mooney said it was driving many small operators out of business.

The sales procedure being followed by the RFC thru its subsidiaries, Turner said, "puts decrepit planes in the hands of persons who, in many instances, do not know plane inspection methods."

He said the trade association has requested a congressional investigation of RFC policies and has asked for an accounting of expenditures which he said his association was convinced would show that the surplus war aircraft division was spending more to sell the surplus planes than it was receiving.

Easy Handling of Big Bomber Achieved by Electronic Device

Use of an electronically operated control stick said to make the largest bomber as easy to handle as a small pursuit ship was announced in Los Angeles yesterday by the air technical service command and the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company which developed the new device.

"Actually less effort is required to control a heavy bomber with the new device than a child uses in turning his bicycle," said W. J. McGoldrick, Honeywell vice president in charge of aeronautical engineering.

The control is known technically as a "formation stick." It is a pistol gripped lever about 10 inches long mounted with an arm rest beside the pilot. It is free to move in all directions in a manner similar to the pursuit ship's "joy stick." It works thru electronic amplification and tiny motors of the control surfaces.

First Installed on Liberator

The stick moves the airplane in the same direction—and in the same proportion as the stick itself is moved. It was designed especially for heavy four engine bombers, including the B-29 Super Forts, and was first installed on Consolidated Liberators.

The formation stick eliminates much of the hard work the pilot of a big bomber formerly had to do and consequently lessens his fatigue.

Col. R. E. Jarmon, chief of the air technical service command's test flight division at Wright field, O., said advantages resulting from its use include better bombing patterns by formations because pilots arrive over their target much less fatigued than if they had used manual controls and return to bases fresher for new missions.

Tight Formations Required

"Early in the war bomber flights were likely to spread out over many miles with wide air gaps between planes of a formation," explained McGoldrick. "Improved enemy tactics compelled American daylight raiders to 'tighten up' their formations to bring more guns on enemy planes.

"But tight formations created new problems. In turbulent air, with planes flying so close together, both the pilot and the co-pilot, each exerting all his strength, are required to hold their plane on a steady course and retain a fixed position within the formation."

Minneapolis-Honeywell in 1943 undertook to develop a device that would correct this situation. Working in coöperation with armament laboratory engineers of the air technical command it developed the new stick.

Stock Market Turns Higher; Trade Is Slow

New York, April 10 (AP)—Rail, motor, and steel stocks, rallied in today's market and, at the high time, recoveries ran to 3 or more points.

Only 260,000 shares were traded in the first three hours. This led to a flurry of short covering and new buying on the belief the drying up of liquidation meant the list was in condition to resume the rise.

Gains Trimmed Near Close

Top marks were reduced in the majority of cases at the close and Wall street skeptics reverted to caution pending further study of reconversion problems and other economic difficulties which may follow V-E day. Transfers totaled 760,000 shares against 570,000 yesterday.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was up 0.4 at 61. Of 886 issues registering, 500 closed higher.

BONDS RALLY LATE

New York, April 10 (AP)—The bond market scored substantial gains late today after remaining little changed most of the morning. Advances among rails and certain industrials ranged to 2 points and more. Sales were $6,840,000, compared with $5,180,000 yesterday.

CHICAGO PRICES RISE

Prices continued higher yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange and turnover increased to 24,000 shares. Most active issues included Cities Service, up ½; Commonwealth Edison and Chicago corporation common, each up ⅛; Midland United preferred, down 1, and Peabody Coal, down ⅛. Central States Power and Light preferred closed up 1½ at 20, a 1945 peak.

People and Events

Joel C. Hudson, first secretary of the American embassy and consul at Santiago, Chile, will be in Chicago April 13 to 16 for conferences with business men interested in doing business in Chile, George C. Payne, Chicago regional manager of the department of commerce, said yesterday. Appointments may be arranged by telephoning Payne's office in the United States court house, Harrison 4700.

Appointment of Earl E. Diehl as northwestern district treasury manager of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company was announced by Fred T. Whiting, vice president. Diehl will have charge of treasury department activities in the midwest with headquarters in Chicago.

R. D. Burnet, secretary and controler of Zenith Radio corporation, was renominated for president of the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association and T. E. Davison, controler of Hart Schaffner & Marx, was renominated for vice president. The election will be held Tuesday in the Stevens hotel.

Chicago Mail Order company announced that Harry C. Ekman, who has been equipment and layout engineer, is leaving the company after 15 years to form his own organization, Harry C. Ekman & Associates, productive consultants.

Dawson Womeldroff of Public Service company of Northern Illinois will show a film depicting Illinois farm life in war time to the agricultural council of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the La Salle hotel Friday.

Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference board, will address the Chicago Association of Commerce next Wednesday in the Hotel Sherman.

BIG EQUIPMENT PROGRAM TOLD BY UNITED AIR

Caution in Dividend Policy Advised

United Air Lines expects to spend 35 to 55 million dollars after the war for air and ground facilities which will include electronic installations and aviation advancements now known only to military personnel, W. A. Patterson, president, told stockholders at their annual meeting in the Palmer House yesterday.

W. A. Patterson

His forecast was made in reply to a stockholder's question on whether the common stock, in view of the company's doubled earnings last year, could be placed on an annual dividend basis of $1 a share instead of the present 50 cents.

"Save as We Go" Urged

Advising a cautious dividend policy, he told of plans to purchase new and modern equipment "incorporating the many inventions developed during the war period. We plan to discuss our 1945 dividend program soon, but in the meantime we are thinking about post-war conditions."

"Altho we have 15 million dollars in free cash earmarked for post-war, shouldn't we save as we go?" he asked. "Would it not be better to do this instead of issuing new stock which some day we may not be able to support?

"It will be impossible to make as much money on our investment in normal times as we are making now because competition will be severe and because 90 per cent of the people now traveling on planes are on expense accounts which means that some one else, usually the military, is paying the fares. We also face the prospect of reduced revenues from mail."

Warns of Inadequate Volume

In another reference to post-war prospects, Patterson said reliable research agencies were agreed there would not be enough transocean travel for seven foreign companies and several American lines without subsidies.

United applied to the civil aeronautics board recently for a 10 per cent cut in passenger fares, because "both the CAB and the company felt too much money was being made," Patterson said.

20,000 OFF JOBS AS STRIKERS CUT OUTPUT FOR WAR

Walkouts Force 9 Plants in Detroit to Close

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

More than 20,000 employes in industries other than coal were idle yesterday as a result of strikes. In Detroit walkouts were affecting production of military tires, motors, and other war material in nine plants, altho one dispute was settled. Other strikes were ended in Kansas City, Mo.; Akron, O., and Ottumwa, Ia.

In Yonkers, N. Y., a new walkout affected 5,500 employes of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet company, making cotton duck and woolen blankets for the services, when the United Textile Workers demanded a wage increase for workers in the lower pay bracket.

Order Gas Strike Ended

The national labor relations board wired representatives of 1,500 employes that a strike in a Lake Charles, La., 100 octane gasoline plant "must be terminated immediately." The board said the walkout was to protest what workers termed exorbitant rents charged by a private contractor.

In Detroit 5,000 workers were idle at three Kelsey-Hayes Wheel company plants as a result of a strike caused by the discharge of several CIO auto worker officials. During the day 4,000 Packard Motor Car company workers were idle when 100 CIO auto worker inspectors protested a reduction in the inspection staff. This strike was settled at a WLB hearing. At the United States Rubber company plant, 180 workers were out on strike and at the Detroit Gear division of Borg-Warner corporation, 700.

Vote for Negotiation

The intermittent strike of 300 mixing machine operators affecting 7,000 employes of Goodyear Tire and Rubber company Plant No. 1, Akron, O., ended when members of the CIO rubber workers voted to negotiate grievances with the company resulting from discharge of a union committeeman operator.

An official of the CIO chemical workers said an army order canceling use of German war prisoners as workmen ended a protest walk-out which began April 2 at the North Kansas City plant of the United States Gypsum company.

At Ottumwa, Ia., 3,000 employes of John Morrell & Co., meat packer, idle since Thursday, agreed to return to work and await settlement of seniority issues by the WLB.

Walkouts Halt War Work.

Ottawa, Ill., April 10 (AP)—Production of parts for fighter aircraft and glass used in war work was halted today by walkouts involving approximately 850 employes in the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass company and the Ottawa Silica company, officials said. Ten glass workers were involved.

Approximately 100 office workers walked out in the Libbey-Owens-Ford plant in a dispute over job shifts. R. R. Nickerson, plant manager, said 600 others were laid off because there were no receiving clerks to unload airplane parts. About 150 were idle in the Silica company in a dispute over one employe, plant officials said.

RFC WILL SELL 500 SURPLUS OIL PRODUCT ITEMS

The Reconstruction Finance corporation disposing agency in Chicago, together with 22 other RFC agencies thruout the country, is offering for sale about 500 items of surplus petroleum products, Peter I. Bukowski, manager, said yesterday. Included are automotive and industrial lubricating oils and greases; cutting, flushing, transformer, transmission, and white mineral oil; insulating, filter, recoil, cylinder, deep drawing, and viscosine oil; slushing, rollator, various compounds, rust preventative, and other oils, and chloronaphthalene and paraffin wax, raincoat dressing, and other types of petroleum products.
